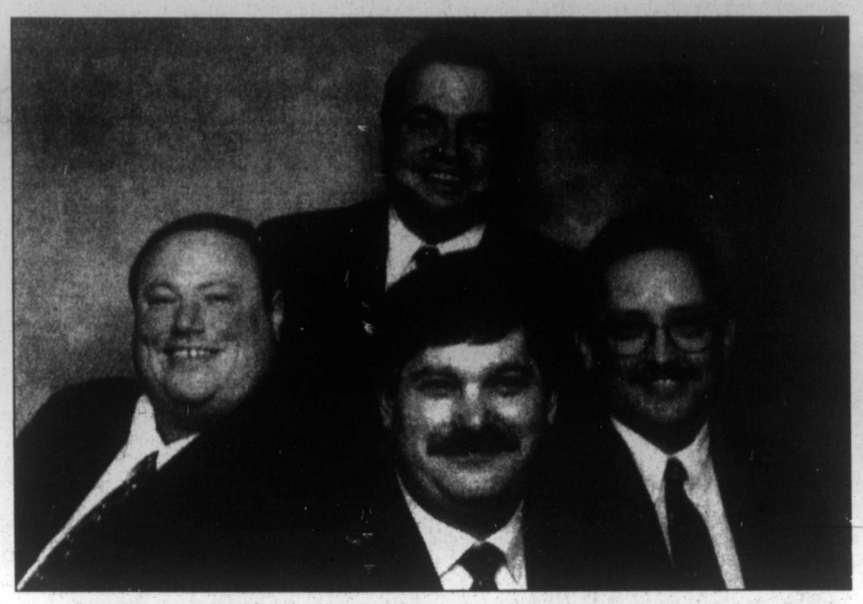
Next "I Can Cope" Session Slated By Cancer Society

The fourth session of the American Cancer Society's I Can Cope Series, titled "Understanding Feelings and Relationships," will be held Tuesday, Oct. 14, at 6 p.m. in Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Community Services building.

The guest presenter will be Nancy-Elizabeth Nimmich, a licensed clinical social worker, who has helped people with cancer for more than 10 years. Through her practice, Life Transitions, she has worked with family members of cancer patients and conducted workshops and retreats focusing on wellness.

In "Understanding Feelings and Relationships," participants will learn how to identify emotions surrounding a cancer diagnosis, communicate with family and friends, and adapt to changes brought by cancer and its treatments.



OAK PARK CHURCH TO PRESENT "MARCH FORTH" – The Pennsylvania quartet March Forth, shown above, will perform a program of southern gospel music beginning at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 18, at the Oak Park Church of the Brethren. The group, which has four recordings to its credit, has been ministering for several years throughout the United States at gospel sings, local churches, evangelistic crusades, and campgrounds, and was invited to sing at the 2002 National Quartet Convention in Louisville, Ky. The Oak Park Church of the Brethren is located across from Southern High School at 110 Church Lane. A free-will offering will be collected during the program. For further information, persons may call Jason Buckley at 301-334-1608.

She also works part time for the Garrett County Health Department and Hospice, and serves on the board of the local ACS unit.

"Helping people cope with difficult emotions that come with dealing with cancer has helped reduce the stress they experience and increase the positive emotions that can promote better health and improve family relationships," said an ACS spokesperson.

The workshop is free and open to all Garrett County and surrounding area residents. To register for the workshop or to find out more, persons may call Sara Burdette at Garrett County Memorial Hospital at 301-533-4311. Registration is suggested to guarantee materials but is not required.

Tuition Increases Prompting More Parents To Invest In Education

by Lydia X. McCoy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Laura and Courtney Douglas, both teenagers, may not be thinking about the cost of their college educations, but their father is.

Bob Douglas of Pasadena has signed up for a prepaid tuition plan with the College Savings Plans of Maryland, a state program that locks in tomorrow's tuition at today's costs with the security of a Legislative Guarantee.

"In the end, this is the best investment for college," Douglas said. "It's grown faster than they've grown."

The College Savings Plans of Maryland saw about a 19 percent enrollment increase for the 2003-2004 school year, due to annual and mid-semester tuition increases, officials said. The increase made the enrollment group the second highest since the program's beginning in 1998. Enrollment for the 2004-2005 school year begins in November and ends in March.

The price of tuition is going up compared to family income, said Helen Szablya, public relations and marketing manager for College Savings. College students are being left with 30 percent more debt compared to 10 years ago, she said.

"It's a different time," Szablya said. "People are becoming more aware and it's something you have to give a lot of thought. We make sure the money is there to pay their education."

Maryland tuition increased as much as 21 percent for this 2003-2004 school year over the previous fall's advertised rates, after funding cuts of $120 million, according to published reports.

Mitchell Alkon of Gaithersburg knows all about planning. Alkon has six children, between the ages of 2 and 14, whom he's signed up for the prepaid plan. Alkon said he already was planning for their education future when he heard about College Savings, but he likes the "idea of locking in tomorrow's cost at today's fees."

Alkon also said he likes the fact that if one of his children follows a different track, the money can be used by his other children.

The College Savings Plans of Maryland offers two programs: a prepaid college trust and a college investment plan managed by T. Rowe Price. The plans are not charged state or federal taxes and there is an income deduction up to $2,500 for each account annually. A state guarantee makes sure if not enough money is available for the student; the education is paid by the state.

"We're nowhere near that," Szablya said. "We're in good shape until 2018 and doing very well compared to other states."

The money invested for the prepaid tuition plan allows for families to have the money when it's time to pay, she said.

Officials at College Savings Plans of Maryland said they want people to be aware of the future earlier in their child's lives. "Anything you do early is good," said Tim Richards, public affairs officer.

And that's what Bob Douglas is banking on.

Douglas, one of the first to sign up in 1998, has finished paying for his plan and is now moving to the next step. Douglas's 17-year-old daughter Laura is looking at colleges to attend.

"It's a shame more people don't take advantage earlier," he said. "All those people socking their money need to move it into this program."

Only a Prayer Away

"Do you smell smoke? Where is it coming from? Oh, look next door at the neighbor's. It's the garage...it's on fire...and they're gone for the day. Quick!! Call the fire department. Tell them it's an emergency. The flames will spread to the house!"

"Oh, thank God... they are here already. We are blessed to have them so close. They will know what to do to save the house from ruin. I pray that everything will be alright!"

How wonderful to have help nearby when you need it the most...when your life depends upon it. Each of us has help whenever we call upon our Heavenly Father. He promises us in Isaiah 41:13, "For I, the Lord your God, hold your right hand; it is I who say to you, 'Fear not, I will help you.'"

Wouldn't you like to learn more about your Savior? The better we come to know Him, the closer he will be in times of distress. Remember, God is only a prayer away. Won't you visit God in His sanctuary this week?

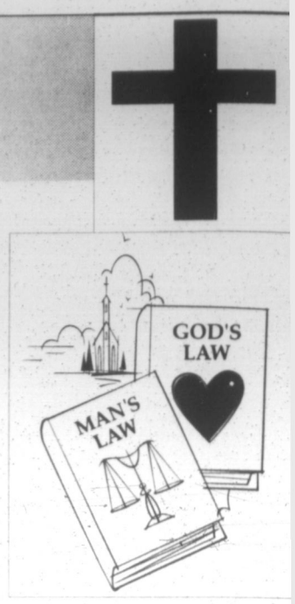
Man's Law and God's Law



Man's laws and God's laws are quite different. Forgiveness for breaking man's laws involves penalties, whereas forgiveness for breaking God's laws requires repentance. If someone breaks one of man's laws, we expect that person to be punished in one way or another. When we break one of God's laws, we should be remorseful and sorry for our offense, and we should try to refrain from sinning in the future. Of course, to help us live our lives as peacefully and stress-free as possible, it is never good to break either man's or God's laws. We sometimes think of God on the same parallel as man, and whenever we sin, we forget that God still loves and cares about us. The Bible tells us that if we confess our sins, God is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness (1 John 1:9). Man's laws are required in order to have a safe and orderly society, whereas God's laws are beneficial to obtain our Lord's peace and happiness.

You are forgiving and good, O Lord, Abounding in love to all who call to you.

N.I.V. Psalm 86:5

HERB FROM A TREE HELPS MEMORY LOSS

Ginkgo Biloba is a product of the ginkgo tree, indigenous to Asia, but now found across the U.S. Gingko is one of the most widely used supplements to help improve memory, learning, alertness, and mood. The typical dose of ginkgo, 120 mg of dried extract given in two to three oral doses daily, contains chemicals that have activity in the human brain.

Most scientific research on gingko involves patients with dementia associated with Alzheimer's disease (AD). Several different studies have shown that regular use of gingko by people suffering from AD improved performance on cognitive tests. These tests measured attention, short-term memory, and reaction time.

Although fewer studies have been conducted on healthy younger adults, improvements in short-term memory and attention have been reported in the medical literature.

Books

Q. I recently purchased several dozen books at a yard sale that appear to be first editions. Three of the more interesting titles are "Pearl" by Janis Joplin, "Up Until Now" by Eugene McCarthy, and "Love Lucky," the autobiography of Lucille Ball. All of the books are in their original dust jackets and appear to be in near new condition. How can I determine their value? — William, Shreveport, La.

A. Books are the king of collectibles. In fact, people have collected books — in one form or another — for at least 4,000 years. Although dozens of reference books have been published about books and their values, one of my favorites is the Antique Trader Book Collector's Price Guide by Richard Russell (Krause Publications, $24.99). It is an easy-to-use guide with more than 5,000 prices for first editions.

What makes a book valuable, and how can you spot a first edition? Russell, who has been a book seller for at least three decades, reveals all. His excellent guide includes both a directory of antiquarian booksellers and common-sense information so that it is fairly easy to establish the values of books.

The three titles you mentioned in your letter are all included in this reference. That's the good news. The bad news is they are valued at $15 or less.

This excellent reference book is perfect for the novice or casual collector, and it can be ordered directly from the publisher through either its toll-free telephone number, 1-888-457-2873, or Web site, www.krause.com.

Sibling Rivalry

Q. I am writing to you with great hope of sound advice. We have two male cats, adopted early in life from two different litters about 18 months ago. They got along very well until about 12 months of age; after that one of them became more aggressive toward the other. We spayed them both, hoping that this might take care of the problem. It did not.

Paulino has become dangerously aggressive toward the other cat, Johnny. We take care to keep them apart, but we have to find a solution. Please advise us if there is anything we can do to stop this behavior. Paulino is otherwise a very sweet cat. Will we have to search for a new, void of other cats, home? Thank you for all your advice you share so kindly. — Mags K., via e-mail

A. You're in a tough spot — territorial aggression between cats is difficult to stop. Many owners face this problem where their cats must be confined to separate areas of the house. It's no fun for anyone.

Spaying hasn't helped, and other medical solutions, like anti-anxiety drugs, probably won't curb aggressiveness. You could attempt to blunt Paulino's aggression by having supervised "play" sessions once daily, where you bring the two together with lots of toys, treats and TLC. But if these options don't work, you may be stuck with the original options: keep them separated, or begin finding new housing for one of the cats.

Check your phone listings or ask the vet to recommend a behavioral therapist before you throw in the towel. This specialist may find clues in both cats' behavior that can help you head off a fight.

Most people don't realize that there are 15 lakes in Garrett County. For the next several months, The Republican will provide information about each of those lakes in this column.

The author of the articles is Jack Slocomb, a retired industrial forester who resides in the Goodwill Village in Grantsville with his wife Evelyn. Originally from Cape Cod, Slocomb holds a master's degree in forestry from Yale University.

PINEY RESERVOIR

Location: Way up in the northeast corner of Garrett County, 2½ miles west of Finzel.

Ownership: The lake, dam, pumping station, and 1,400 surrounding wooded acres belong to the city of Frostburg.

Management: The City of Frostburg Water Department, with John and Betty Ball as resident caretakers.

Purpose: The impounded 450,000,000 gallons of water is a water supply for the city of Frostburg.

How to get there: From Exit #29 on U.S. Interstate 68 near Finzel, take U.S. Rt. 40 west ¼ mile to Piney Run Road, thence 3 miles northwest to the reservoir.

Description: This 110-acre lake is 2,367 feet above sea level. It is approximately 1¼ miles long, running from southwest to northeast, and 1/3 mile wide. The rock-faced, earthen dam at the south end of the lake is 1,600 feet long.

The depth of the water varies from 33 feet at the dam to the shallows of a marsh on the north side of Piney Run Road. In mid-summer, the temperature of the water may be 72 degrees at the surface and 55 degrees at the bottom.

The reservoir is fed from the north by Big Piney Run and from the east by Blandy Run. The overflow from the dam forms Piney Creek, again, and flows west, then northwest to finally enter the Casselman River near Salisbury, Pa.

Recreation: The purpose of the impounded water is to supply the city of Frostburg with a generous quantity of potable water. However, fishing is permitted from the shoreline and by wading. Fishing is not permitted from the dam, and no boats are allowed.

The lake is stocked with muskellunge, rainbow trout, and catfish. Other natural species include large and small mouth bass, yellow perch, black and white crappie, bluegill, and sunfish.

Testimonies of fishermen indicate that the fishing is "good on the right day." "I caught my limit of bass yesterday." "My friend caught and landed a 5-foot muskee."

General: Swimming is not permitted in the reservoir. It is a great spot for birding, however, with resident species including the red-tail hawk, buzzards, osprey, and great blue heron. Eagles are also spotted occasionally.

Guide To Higher Ed., Financial Aid Available

To assist students in their search for colleges and financial aid, the Maryland Higher Education Commission has produced the 2004-05 edition of College 411: Student Guide to Higher Education and Financial Aid in Maryland and its companion College 411: A Quick Guide to Cash for College & How to Get It.

High school juniors and seniors interested in learning about area colleges, universities, and state financial aid will find the Student Guide filled with valuable information, according to the commission. The Student Guide offers thumbnail sketches of every college and university in Maryland, a comprehensive list of academic programs offered, information about enrollment, tuition and fees, room and board, admissions requirements, and details about state financial aid programs. It also lists state private career schools.

The Quick Guide answers questions that students have like "Am I eligible for money for college?" "How do I apply?" and "Am I guaranteed financial aid?" On the inside of the publication is an overview of Maryland's financial aid programs, who may apply, award amounts, and application deadlines. A pocket version of this Quick Guide is also available.

More than 100,000 of the guides will be distributed to high school guidance offices, college financial aid offices, and libraries throughout the state. Online versions, along with other higher education information and links, are available at www.mhec.state.md.us.

Garrett County To Observe National Depression Day

Today, Oct. 9, has been identified as National Depression Day. Garrett County joins the nation in observing this event and is providing free depression screenings. This event has become very large with thousands of mental health providers providing screenings to the general public throughout the 50 states.

The screenings are provided by the Garrett County Mental Health Center staff at two locations: in Oakland at the Garrett County Health Department, Conference Room B at 1025 Memorial Drive; and in Grantsville at its location on Hershberger Drive.

The screenings will be held from 10 a.m. to noon in Grantville and from 1 to 4 p.m. in Oakland.

Screenings will also be available from Oct. 14 to 17 or by appointment by calling the Garrett County Mental Health Center at 301-334-7680.

"We are very happy to sponsor this event for Garrett County," said Brooke Schneider, director of mental health for the health department. "As the primary outpatient care provider for the county, we are committed to meeting the needs of Garrett County residents.

"Depression is very serious, but it is treatable. Depression can be caused by psychological stressors, by biochemical disruptions of the brain, or even by certain illnesses in the body. Depression is experienced as a painful emotional state. Oftentimes the depressed person feels sad, discouraged and even hopeless. People become unable to experience pleasure in the things that once brought happiness, and begin to feel as though life will never be better again."

Some of the most common symptoms of depression include: insomnia or increased need for sleep, psychomotor agitation or retardation, significant weight loss or weight gain, recurrent thoughts of death or suicide, or feelings of hopelessness.

In older people depression can be quite common. It is estimated that approximately 26% of the elderly population reported depressive symptoms. During this stage of life, depression may cause or intensify problems with memory, concentration, thinking, fatigues and aches and pains.

Maryland Delegation Splits As House Approves Partial-Birth Abortion Ban

by January W. Payne
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland's congressional delegation split largely along party lines last Thursday as the House voted to approve a partial-birth abortion ban, with Rep. Dutch Ruppersberger as the only state Democrat voting for the measure. All five of the state's other House Democrats voted against the bill, which critics said was so vaguely written that it could be used to limit all abortions. Both Maryland Republicans voted for the bill.

The measure passed 281-142, with 12 members not voting. The Senate still has to take up the measure, but is expected to approve it and send it to the president, who has said he would sign the bill.

Ruppersberger, one of 63 Democrats who voted for the measure Thursday, said he did so "as a matter of conscience," although the bill would prohibit the procedure even if the mother's life were at risk.

"I believe in a woman's right to choose, and after discussing the issue with my wife and daughter, I decided to vote for a ban on this extremely rare procedure as a matter of conscience," he said in a prepared statement.

It is the latest attempt to prohibit so-called "partial-birth" abortion: President Clinton vetoed two previous bills, in 1996 and 1997. The House and Senate have each passed versions of the bill this year, and are now voting on a final conference committee report that irons out differences between their bills. If approved this month, as expected, it will be the first federal limitation on abortion since the Supreme Court's Roe v. Wade decision in 1973.

Pro-choice advocates say the conference report's language is vague and represents the first step toward trying to ban abortion altogether. The bill does not define the point during a pregnancy when an abortion would be considered a partial-birth abortion. Instead, it specifies a procedure that begins with partial vaginal delivery of a live fetus that is aborted before it is fully delivered from the mother's body.

"This is the first time since Roe v. Wade that the federal government has criminalized a safe medical procedure," said Ashlie Bagwell, executive director of Maryland's chapter of the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League. "It doesn't just outlaw one procedure. It outlaws all associated procedures."

Ruppersberger said he preferred the version of the bill that allowed the procedure to protect the mother's health and welfare, but ultimately chose to support the measure even without those provisions.

"I regret that the alternate proposal [for mother's health] was not included in the final version," he said in a prepared statement.

Republican Reps. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Frederick, and Wayne Gilchrest, R-Kennedyville, voted for the ban. Democratic Reps. Steny Hoyer of Mechanicsville, Chris Van Hollen of Kensington, Al Wynn of Largo, and Ben Cardin and Elijah Cummings of Baltimore all voted against it.

"We are making a medical judgment," Hoyer said just before the vote. "That ought to be a deep concern to every American who believes that the federal government has no business injecting itself into the middle of the doctor-patient relationship."

But Bartlett called partial-birth abortion a "hideous procedure." He spoke twice before the vote, the first time next to a poster-sized picture of a fetus.

"It's clearly a baby. It's clearly smiling. It's clearly a human," Bartlett said of the fetus.

The Senate is on recess this week, but should take the measure up when it returns, said a spokesman for the House Judiciary Committee.

Maryland Sens. Barbara Mikulski and Paul Sarbanes, both Democrats, plan to vote against the ban when it reaches the Senate floor, their aides said.

Farms To Get Development Option, But Officials Expect Few Takers

by Dan Wilcock
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Maryland farms operating on state protected farmland for 25 years will begin to have the opportunity to buy back permanent development rights in two years. But that doesn't mean any buy-backs will occur, farmland preservation officials said last week.

The law that in 1977 created the Maryland Agricultural Preservation Foundation to preserve farmland and control sprawl makes termination very difficult. Farms would need to prove that profitable farming of any crop is no longer feasible and then meet strenuous local and state approval.

The chances of buy-back are "slim to none," said Craig A. Nielsen, an assistant attorney general and counsel to Maryland's Department of Agriculture, which operates the foundation.

"We believe it's going to be an extraordinary event that allows someone to get out of this program," he said.

Nielson attended last week's meeting of the Board of Public Works, the body that approves all state spending, to assure the board that buy-back chances are remote.

The foundation buys permanent rights for commercial or residential development on farmland in exchange for an easement. The payments compensate the owner for the difference between the land's market value and its agricultural value. Easements provide a retirement fund to many farmers who can't save money during their farming life and don't wish to sell the farm to developers.

And the program is popular. For every farmer who sells development rights, there are two more who want to, but can't because there aren't enough funds, said Valerie Connelly, director of government relations for the Maryland Farm Bureau. Obtaining an easement is a lengthy process, about five years, and farms must be inspected to ensure land quality. The only farms possibly eligible for reversal would be disaster-struck property where the land is too damaged to farm, Nielsen said.

But the built-in difficulties have not prevented officials from considering blocking the option all together.

This year, Carroll County began requiring new applicants to waive their rights to the 25-year option. Coincidentally, the first seven farms eligible for review in 2005 are all in Carroll County.

A similar statewide waiver strategy is under consideration, Conrad said. For some farmers it may pay to hurdle the obstacles.

"There's no doubt there's a lot of money in breaking an easement," said James Conrad, the foundation's executive director.

Conrad pointed out that farmers would have to buy back development rights at current value, rather than original price. Yet he said farms could profit from rezoning the land to allow development.

Still, there's not expected to be a mass exodus as the review date nears.

"I don't see any sentiment here for people petitioning to get out," said Bill Powel, a Carroll County preservation manager. "We're tied to a commitment for a permanent agriculture."

Wheat, Barley Harvests Down Sharply After Cold, Wet Growing Season

by Sofia Kosmetatos
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland small grain production dropped sharply this year, with farmers reporting the lowest average yield for wheat in 24 years and the lowest for barley in 14 years. The drop is because of a very cold and wet winter and spring that stunted growth and flooded some fields, preventing seeds there from growing at all.

The weather also delayed harvest of small grains for several weeks, according to a report this week from the Maryland Agriculture Statistics Service.

For most small grain farmers, it means "a significant loss of income," said Lynne Hoot, executive director of the Maryland Grain Producers Association.

"Nobody made any money growing anything" this year, she said.

The statistics service said farmers reported an average wheat yield of 37 bushels per acre, the lowest since the 1978-79 growing season. The average yield for barley was 57 bushels per acre, the lowest since 1989, when the yield hit 50 bushels per acre.

Maryland wheat usually goes to flour mills in Pennsylvania, but much of this year's wheat was not good enough for the flour mills and went to feed mills instead, where it fetched much lower prices.

Farmers' hopes were higher for corn and soybean production, after last year's drought. Those hopes were dampened by Hurricane Isabel, but the storm did not decimate the crops.

Deputy State statistician David Knopf said the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency predicted a yield only 5 to 15 percent lower than the forecast of 57.2 million bushels for corn and 14.9 million bushels for soybeans. Those levels would have been 77 percent higher for corn and 37 percent higher for soybeans than last year's drought-ravaged harvest.

Many corn farmers harvested early in order to avoid losing their crop altogether to the storm.

Soybean production was still looking good following the hurricane, but the first frost of the season Thursday night dashed farmers' hopes for a great harvest.

"The last thing they need this fall is an early winter," Hoot said. "It seems to be one thing on top of the other."

"It's over," said Jamie Jamison, a wheat, corn, and soybean farmer in Montgomery County, who said some of his soybeans were still green when the frost occurred.

"It killed them," he said.

But Jamison believes he has fared better than most other Maryland farmers this year, because his farm has a cleaner and a drier that got his wheat into "some kind of a condition that the flour mills wanted." "I was lucky," he said.

Despite the difficulties this year, Jamison said he would take it any time over an excessively dry year like 2002.

"With a drought you never stand a chance of ever winning," he said. "At least this year we've got something to cut."

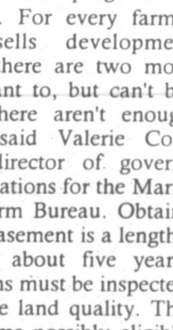
Harvest Heats Up As Temp. Drops

Significant changes in air temperatures announced the beginning of the fall season last week with highs in the 60s and lows in the 30s. Cooler air temperatures and little precipitation resulted in 5.4 days suitable for field work for the week ending Sunday, Oct. 5. Some Maryland farmers experienced their first frost Thursday night, Oct. 2. Most of the corn and soybeans received minimal damage, but fields in low-lying areas were affected by the cold temperatures.

Corn harvest is advancing rapidly with 32 percent harvested and 88 percent mature. Lodging from Hurricane Isabel is making corn harvest difficult in some fields. Soybeans are turning color quickly and dropping their leaves. A few fields are being harvested, but harvest will not be well under way for a week or two. A few isolated showers were around last week, but overall it was good haymaking weather. Over half of the fourth cutting of alfalfa hay is complete, and 39 percent of other hay. Hay supplies were rated 56 percent adequate, 25 percent short, and 19 percent very short. Planting of barley is advancing quickly while wheat is behind due to the delay in corn and soybean harvest.

Real Estate Facts by...



Dale Carpenter

SHOW YOU THE MONEY!

Many people try selling their homes on their own because they want to avoid paying a brokerage fee. On the other hand, their greatest concern is receiving the highest price for their home?

What most "By Owners" don't realize is that 80% of homes are sold by a real estate professional – and those homes sell at an average 27% higher sales price! In exchange for a modest brokerage fee, sellers can receive much more for their home, with none of the "by owner" hassles.

Keep in mind that the real estate agent assumes all the risk, since the agent is paid only when the home sells and the transaction is closed. The agent also does all the work, i.e. advertising, open houses, contacting other agents with ready and qualified buyers, coordinating inspections, title insurance, title work, and financial documents.

Having the knowledge and experience to properly price the property is also important. An overpriced (or even under-priced) home can actually keep buyers away. Using research and technology, an agent can provide accurate data to help price a home at "fair market value," attracting buyers who will recognize that fact.

It's easy to see that real estate professionals earn their commission. When represented properly, all that is required of the homeowner is to accept a purchase offer and collect the money! What a relief!

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE!

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Just one bright spot in Bittinger this week, and come to think of it, one that we have not seen for a long time. Yes, it is a shining sun in an autumn cobalt blue sky all day today.

Unfortunately, it was not like this last Saturday for the Northern Band Marching Spectacular on Saturday evening. The weather was very cool and that took its toll on attendance. It was, however, a good time, and a good time to continue to prepare for the big-time shows of the Maryland State Finals, Chapter 13 Championship, and hopefully a return trip to Scranton, Pa., for the ACC Championships. Anyway, the kids have a great time.

However, right now our kids really need a day off without much pressure. But it will not be this Monday, as my daughter Claire told me, "We will do badly at the States."

Tonight is also 4-H, with kids giving their annual demonstrations. Even though in past years we have had to do some last-minute, desperate thinking, this year my girls will have to file for an extension for next month.

Sometimes it seems that you can only ask so much of your kids, and the most important thing is to ask them to do their best. Sometimes this means that they might fall behind with chores. Better that than school work, I guess.

I know our computer has been very busy the last month with some big school projects, and tonight they are just worn out. I guess one month late won't be the end of the world in doing a demonstration, especially since many kids don't participate in 4-H or get the opportunity to do them at all.

I am also kind of worn out, not physically like my daughters, but this week more in heart or spirit, especially since we lost another of our Greatest Generation members, Jimmy Glotfelty, who passed away Saturday at age 72.

Jimmy and his cousin (my uncle) Dale were great buddies all their lives Jim was always such a good guy and go-to man when we had a problem or question on our farm, especially with the elderly machinery. The last time I saw him (as usual), he was on a tractor working on his farm on Rock Lodge Road. He was pulling a huge rock (as big as a dining table, but two feet thick) from a swampy area near the woods on his life-long home farm. How many can say that they died on the same farm on which they were born?

It seemed he never stopped working hard to improve his little piece of heaven. He was, to use a few cliches, the salt of the earth and the rock of his family. Looking back, I guess that last spring was the last I will have to watch his new lambs. I wish I would have known so I could have lingered longer on that sign of spring. Jimmy loved his sheep as much as most folks love their dogs. This November and December won't be the same without Jim's fresh turkeys, which graced many a Garrett County holiday table over the years.

Jimmy always seemed like an uncle to me. He really was just a first cousin, once-removed, so I know my sadness is nothing compared to the sorrow that his close family feels. Harriet Buckel lost her little brother, as did Bernadette and Bertie (Alberta). I can't imagine what Donna and the kids are feeling, losing a loving husband and dad. My heart goes out to all his grandkids; Jim always had a big place in his heart for all of them.

It takes me back to memories of losing my dad, who was 10 years older than Jimmy, but died in his 50s. I know that my life was blessed by his presence, and so often I have wished he were still here to give us all his solid roots and his love.

A sad thing about my dad's sudden death was that he never got to meet any of his 10 wonderful grandchildren or hold them as babies. He did love babies. Must be a thing with those Glotfelty men.

I saw Jimmy's oldest grandchild yesterday when I dropped off a pie; at times like this it seems that there is little else you can do. She is the daughter of Linda, who growing up together seemed like a cousin in the first degree rather than a second cousin. I was happy to find out that Shelly went to Penn State and breezed through. Donna is lucky that she has her four children close by, and several of the grandkids, too. It will be a small, but important, reminder that life goes on and that she isn't alone.

I know that Jimmy's cousin Helen Englar is on her way to Garrett County to be with family. Joining her is another cousin, Maria Blank of Baltimore, who plans to stay with another cousin, Rhea Hetrick, of Salisbury, Pa. I saw a group of women who look very much alike there in the "Cousin Corner" at the funeral home today. Their presence was comforting today, as lately I find I just don't want to go to the funeral home anymore – too many wrenching memories and too many losses over the past year. Over the years we meet with the same mourners there from our community, and today was no different.

I thought that I might be the only one from Bob's family who could make it today, so I just told myself to act like a grown-up and get out there. Mom is on the road again with her friend Betty. But both Rodney and Carol were able to get away from their jobs to pay their respects to Jimmy. I guess that is as good a term as any to describe how people felt about Jimmy – respect, and a lot of love. I know that whenever I drive past his home between the fields that he loved to work in I will try to still catch a glimpse of him out of the corner of my eye, be it on the tractor or working with his sheep or goats. I hope tomorrow will be the same kind of day as today for his funeral, a perfect Indian Summer day – a perfect day for some autumn field chores.

Many people will always link his name with one of the worst stretches of winter roads in this neighborhood. When you inquire about the road conditions on a snow stormy day, you always ask, "How was it at Jimmy's?" or "Is Jimmy's closed yet?" I know I won't feel quite as safe on Rock Lodge without him there with his tractor, always ready to take care of whatever comes.

Today I had an idea for a special painting that I want to do, of Jesus as the Good Shepherd. I want to use Jimmy as the model for the figure of Jesus. I guess that I can ask for a snapshot of him so I get it right. It will be a nice memorial for him from me. His face always radiated kindness and good humor, and few loved their flocks the way he did.

I felt lucky to see his mother-in law, my dear second grade teacher, Ida Reckner, at the funeral home today. She looked so chirpy and healthy, even though she is close to 100 years young.

Sleep well, Jim.

ACS Pink Ribbon Challenge Slated In Morgantown

The American Cancer Society will host its first Pink Ribbon Challenge to fight breast cancer on Sunday, Oct. 26, at the Radisson Hotel, Morgantown Wharf District. Registration will begin at 1 p.m., and the noncompetitive walk will be held from 2 until 4 p.m.

The event is designed to raise awareness, foster camaraderie, and raise funds for breast cancer research, patient services, education, and advocacy.

Breast cancer will strike more than 200,000 times this year and claim more than 40,000 lives, according to the ACS. Because of these facts, the American Cancer Society Mid-Atlantic Division has decided to organize West Virginia's first Pink Ribbon Challenge.

"Individuals who walk and raise pledges for the Pink Ribbon Classic are the key to finding a cure for breast cancer," said an ACS spokesperson. Since 1993, the American Cancer Society has used the pink ribbon to raise awareness about breast cancer and in fund-raising efforts to fight the disease.

For more information on participating in the event, persons may call 1-800-287-2317.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Why is it that in some years the fall foliage is brilliant, but in other years kind of drab?

Nobody has a very accurate answer to this question, because there are about a dozen competing bio-chemical processes going on at the same time, and the outcome is impossible to predict.

In the free supplement Splendour published by The Republican for the Autumn Glory Festival, a lengthy article spanning pages 55-56 tells about "Why Leaves Change Color." That article explains the details of chemicals within leaves, including chlorophyll, carotenoids, and anthocyanins.

The essential point is that the various brilliant pigments are there in the leaves all along, but in summer they are masked by the intense green color of chlorophyll. Only when the chlorophyll has gone away can the other pigments determine the color you see when looking at the leaves.

In order to see "brilliant" foliage, the chlorophyll has to exit early while the other chemicals stick around. If the autumn stays warm and chlorophyll lasts into November, the color stays green until it fades into brown. If it's too cold too early, all the chemicals go away at about the same time, and you see only the drab brown leaves. But when conditions are "just right," with the combination of warm days and cool nights, chlorophyll shuts off, and some sugars flow down the tree into the roots for winter storage, while others are trapped in the leaves. That's the combination that gives brilliant colors.

Rainfall all year around affects both the roots and leaves of a tree, but any one particular rainstorm in the autumn doesn't make a lot of difference. However, strong wind, sometimes coupled with heavy rain, hastens the removal of leaves from the trees, thus curtailing the length of time of nice colors. If the foliage is beautiful in the Appalachians, that doesn't mean it will be so in New England or in Colorado, and vice versa.

There are certain kinds of sunglasses which preferentially remove the green part of the spectrum. If you're wearing these on a sunny day during a boring year when trees remain green longer, you'll see brilliant colors that folks without such sunglasses don't get to see. Take off the sunglasses and the forest looks boring again.

Breastfeeding, Drug Access, And Marijuana Focus Of New Laws

by Debra George Siedt
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Maryland loosened laws affecting personal health this month by permitting a marijuana-for-medical-use court defense, allowing public nursing, and easing access to pharmacy information for the public and Medicaid recipients.

The new laws, which took effect Oct. 1, mean that Maryland mothers no longer have to fear being asked to move to a bathroom to nurse their children. It is now against the law for anyone to restrict the right of a mother to breastfeed in any public or private location.

"This legislation was two years in the making," said Sen. Paula Hollinger, D-Baltimore County, after getting complaints from women who were asked to leave public places when nursing. "We promote breastfeeding for all of our new moms," said Hollinger, a nurse. "The benefits keep growing for the mom and the baby."

Breastfed babies have lower rates of hospital admissions, ear infections, diarrhea, rashes, allergies, and other medical problems, according to the American Medical Association.

Two laws affect access to drugs: Pharmacists must now inform customers if a less expensive drug is available for a prescribed one; and pharmacy access has been increased for Medicaid recipients.

Medicaid recipients can call a hotline for information about prescriptions, drug reactions, and cost. The recipients and health care providers were informed of the new benefit and the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene will track the number and type of calls.

But the most controversial health care legislation involves the use of marijuana for medicinal purposes. The new law allows a person charged with possession of the substance to argue in court that it was for medical use. Success with that argument would reduce the penalties to a $100 fine and no jail time, instead of up to $1,000 and one year in jail.

"This is not a get-out-of-jail-free card," said Cynthia Boersma, finance and policy counsel for the Maryland Office of the Public Defender.

State law requires proof of a medical need, and does not shield the defendant from federal prosecution.

"You can be prosecuted federally and locally...there is no double jeopardy," said Frank Meyer, Baltimore County assistant state attorney.

The marijuana-for-medical-use defense does not apply to a person caught with enough marijuana to distribute, or a repeat offender, Meyer added.

"It's up to the defendant to generate the evidence," said Meyer. "I expect that means having a doctor testify."

Maryland State Police said the new law will have no impact on how it handles drug cases.

"They will be charged accordingly," said Thornie Rouse, State Police spokesman.

GARRETT COUNTY

GA1970G005/1 – Nestle Waters North America, 777 West Putman Avenue, Greenwich, CT 06836, has applied to increase an existing appropriation from an annual average of 160,000 gallons per day (gpd) of ground water and 185,000 gpd during the month of maximum use to an annual average of 242,200 gpd and 261,000 gpd during the month of maximum use for the production of bottled water at the Deer Park Spring Water facility. The water is to be taken from one borehole (DP-1) in the Greenbrier Formation, located 0.5 mile southwest of the junction of Boiling Spring Road and De-Cost Road, two miles southeast of Deer Park, Garrett County, Maryland.

The production borehole, installed in a water table fractured rock aquifer, is 66 feet deep. Impacts to the resource and nearby users were evaluated using data from geological reports and investigations available to the Water Management Administration and an on-site, aquifer pumping test. A groundwater model developed from the aquifer test data indicates that pumping during periods of maximum use may lower the water table less than five feet in the nearest domestic well. In making the evaluation, the withdrawal was modeled as if the water was withdrawn continuously at the maximum monthly rate for 90 days with no recharge to the aquifer.

RIDING IN STYLE – The royal court of the 36th annual Autumn Glory Festival rode along the streets of Oakland in grand style Saturday, waving to the thousands of spectators along the way. The Grand Feature Parade was a great success, with numerous units – bands, twirlers, floats, Boy Scouts, elected officials, lots of queens, and those funny little speeding cars – keeping the crowd entertained for nearly two hours. After a cold and cloudy morning, the overcast skies cleared up and the sun shone brightly throughout the afternoon. The parade was just one of several well-attended Autumn Glory events. Sportaerobic Team Home Again, Bearing Medals Of Silver And Gold

The Garrett County Sportaerobic Team recently traveled to Buenos Aries, Argentina, to compete in the 2003 International Extreme Aerobic Competition. The local team was again successful in competition, bringing home one gold medal and three silvers.

The group learned of the international event while in attendance at the World Championships in Miami this past August, according to Coach Brenda Brosnihan. The competition was attended by athletes from six South American countries.

"For several years we have been interacting with athletes from other countries at the world championships, which is held in the United States. Our goal was to someday travel abroad to enjoy the unique life experience of competing in another country," Brosnihan said. "Our experiences in Argentina well exceeded all our expectations. We now have a better perception about what it's like to be an athlete in a foreign land, and a heightened appreciation for our culture and customs."

In the intermediate trio team division, local athletes Paige Carr, Anna Keefer, and Abby Wildesen took the top honors for the team, earning a gold medal.

"Paige, Anna, and Abby have worked hard all year and have been through many ups and downs at nationals and worlds. It was a well deserved victory," stated Brosnihan.

Parent Jane Wildesen said it was "very emotional to see our girls on stage" during the medal ceremony.

"Hearing your national anthem in another country fills you with such pride," Wildesen said.

The silver medal in the same category went to team mates Morgan Brosnihan, Jennifer Feaster, and Samantha Taylor, with the two local teams' scores separated by just three one-hundredths of a point.

The two trios put their talents together in the junior team category and earned a

Another silver medal was captured by the duo team of Kira Farley and Rachel Margroff, competing in the pairs contest. The weeklong trip was valuable in many ways to the young athletes, according to their coach, Brenda Brosnihan. See story and additional pictures in this section of today's Republican.

Garrett's President Optimistic That Effort To Save Funding Will Pay Off

Garrett College president Dr. Steve Herman is "quite optimistic" that a combined effort he and Allegany College of Maryland president Don Alexander have undertaken to educate state legislators about the looming financial crisis for Maryland's smaller community colleges will stave off a possible loss of $240,000 annually given to GC through the Mountain Maryland college funding program. The program is slated to expire on July 1, 2005.

Mountain Maryland was created by the Maryland Legislature and put into effect in Fiscal Year 2003 in order to correct an unintended consequence of the state's formula to calculate grants to community colleges under the Cade Funding Program, which based the amount of state aid on the number of students enrolled at each college rather than the institution's fixed costs

In an inherent inequity in the way calculations were made, Cade Program disbursements were heavily skewed in favor of larger community colleges downstate, while the westernmost colleges suffered by comparison.

"During the first four years of the Cade Program's existence, from Fiscal Years 1998 through 2002, the funding grants resulted in an average statewide funding increase of 61.2 percent per college," Herman explained. "However, that was an average. In reality, Garrett's funding was increased by only 16 percent, and Allegany's rose by 23 percent. No other college in the state was even close to those low rates of increase."

The state soon recognized the inequity faced by the two westernmost colleges, and addressed the situation by creating an annual grant of $600,000 known as the Mountain Maryland Program, with $360,000 of that amount earmarked for Allegany College and the remaining $240,000 given to Garrett College.

"Mountain Maryland was an appropriate response to the problems created by the Cade Program's formula," Herman commented. "However, as the legislature was considering implementing the Mountain Maryland Program, the state's budgetary fortunes had already begun their

MLP Resident Given 14 Years For Carjacking

A Mtn. Lake Park man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to carjacking and assault. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced James Michael Stanton, 22, to 14 years in the Division of Corrections for the carjacking and two years in the DOC for assault. The sentences will run concurrently. Related charges against Stanton were dismissed upon his plea.

He was arrested and charged in July by Garrett Bureau of Investigation deputies. Relatives of a former girlfriend of Stanton's contacted the Sheriff's Office after she failed to return home from work. She was later located by family members driving her car in the Oakland area, and Stanton was observed in the passenger's seat.

After deputies stopped the car, the victim reported she was accosted by Stanton as she was getting out of her car at home earlier in the evening, and Stanton had forced her to drive him to various locations in Garrett County and Preston County, W.Va. During this time, Stanton assaulted the victim, according to the state's attorney's office.

County Expected To Receive $36,638 In FEMA Funds For Isabel Cleanup

County roads supervisor Fred Polce updated the Garrett County commissioners this week on recent activities in his department. He reported that the county would probably be reimbursed for roadway cleanup and repair work following Hurricane Isabel last month.

On Sept. 19, President George W. Bush declared that a major disaster existed in Maryland and ordered federal aid to supplement state and local recovery efforts for areas struck by Isabel the day before.

The president's action made federal funding available to state and eligible local governments in all 23 Maryland counties and the city of Baltimore on a cost-sharing basis for debris removal and emergency protective measures.

Polce said he met last week with a representative from the Federal Emergency Management Agency. He has also filed the necessary disaster funding paperwork, which states that the county spent $36,637.83 in labor and materials for road repairs and cleanup work.

He said there were nine flood sites in the county, mostly in the Oakland and Grantsville areas. Work also had to be completed on North Hill Road, near Kitzmiller, where a large, four-foot culvert became clogged with debris and flooded the area.

Polce said the county should receive the funding rather quickly, within three or four weeks. The FEMA representative also indicated that the county would probably get a full reimbursement, Polce added.

He noted that the county also received disaster funding for the Presidents' Day weekend snow storm quickly, in just three weeks, after the paperwork was filed. For that disaster, however, the county only received about $74,000 out of the nearly $100,000 it spent on snow removal.

Polce also reported to the commissioners that the new temporary bridge for Savage River Road was being put together and would be installed next week. The $160,000 temporary structure was purchased last month following the state-ordered closure of the old bridge on that road. The one-way temporary structure will be installed near the closed one until a new permanent bridge is built.

The county has another temporary bridge over Bear Creek that is being used until a new bridge there is built. The county may also purchase a third temporary bridge to use over the Little Youghiogheny River on the Oakland-Rosedale Road. The state also ordered the old bridge there closed last month. Because of high traffic demand in the Rosedale area, the county will begin constructing a new bridge over the Little Yough as soon as possible, which may be as early as this fall.

Grantsville Man Killed, Charges Filed In Alcohol-Related Crash

An early morning accident Wednesday on an Interstate 68 exit ramp instantly killed Grantsville resident Jody Lee Emerick, 25, and resulted in charges against the driver, Julia Marie Jenkins, 23, Accident. Maryland State Police troopers arrested Jenkins at the scene on charges including negligent manslaughter, driving while under the influence, and driving on a suspended license.

A second passenger, Garrett Keith Barclay, 22, Grantsville, was flown to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was hospitalized in critical condition with massive brain injuries, according to state troopers who reported that neither Emerick nor Barclay were wearing their seatbelts.

In alleging that alcohol played a major factor in the 1:30 a.m. mishap, investigating trooper Tfc. Steven LeMay stated that shortly before the crash Jenkins had departed from Grantsville's Wildwater Tavern with Emerick, Barclay, and a third passenger, Jarrod Olen Wilburn, 21, Grantsville, riding with her in a 1998 Dodge Caravan.

As the minivan was exiting from the westbound Interstate to Chestnut Ridge Road, it struck the rear of a parked 1998 Freightliner tractor-trailer rig that was parked on the shoulder of the exit ramp. The trucker, Joseph C. Capps, 28, Kingsport, Tenn., who escaped injury, had pulled off to sleep but had left the rig's running lights on, according to investigating trooper Tfc. Steven LeMay.

Trooper 5, the MSP medevac helicopter, was summoned to the scene to fly Barclay to Cumberland Memorial for treatment of brain and internal injuries, and several fractured bones. Wilburn was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial, where he was treated for lacerations to the head and released.

The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded, and Tfc. LeMay

Elections Board Official Preparing For New System

The new director of the Garrett County Board of Elections introduced himself to the county commissioners this week and reviewed departmental issues. Accident resident Steve Fratz officially accepted the responsibility of director on Oct. 1, filling a position left vacant by Fred Sanders, who retired from the board this spring.

Fratz's new full-time job coincides with several other changes involving the board of elections. It recently moved its offices from the Garrett County courthouse to another county owned facility at G.W. Plaza along Rt. 135, Mountain Lake Park. The move was necessary in order for the board and county to comply with state-mandated changes in the voting system.

Fratz said some counties in Maryland, including Allegany, began using a touch-screen voting system last year. All counties, however, must now have the computerized system in place by the presidential primary in March. The director noted that the new system was well received by the public in Allegany County.

The state also requires that the new system be in a secure, climate controlled environment. The state and federal government will pay for half of the cost of new system for the first three to five years, Fratz said. The county will then be responsible for the full cost after that period. He added, however, that overall the new voting system would actually be cheaper than the old one to maintain.

After the three- or five-year period, the county will then have to pick up a maintenance agreement with Diebold Election Systems, the makers of the 60-pound touch-screen machines. According to the company, about 33,000 Diebold voting stations are now in use in the United

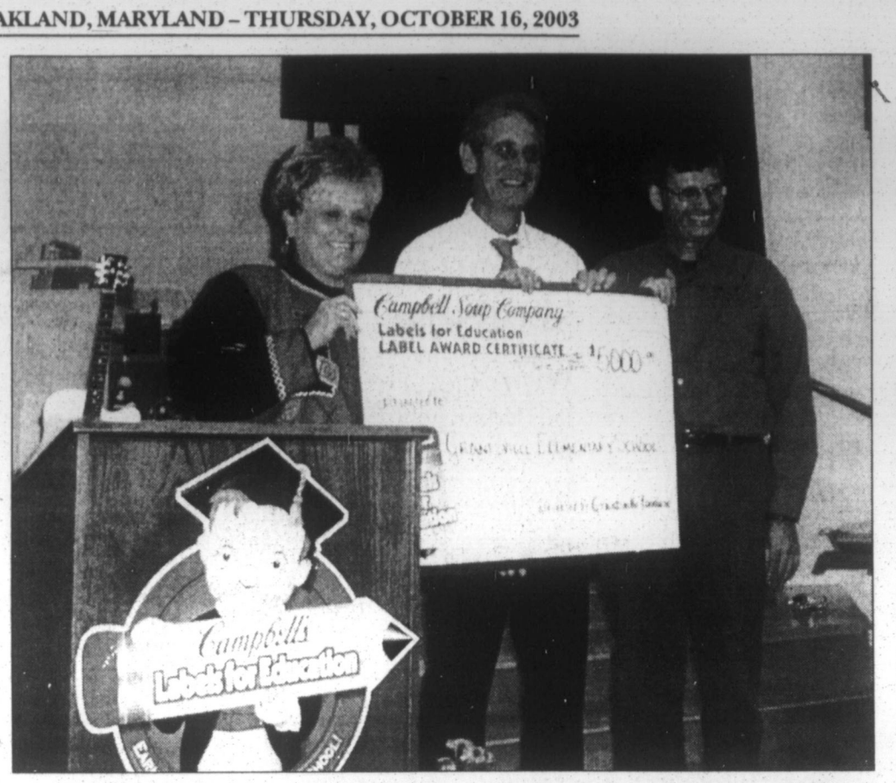
Oak St. Mishap Injures Pair Of Local Women

Two local drivers sustained minor injuries last Thursday, Oct. 9, in an accident that occurred on Oak Street, according to the Oakland Police Department.

At approximately 9:04 a.m., near the intersection with First Street, a 1995 Dodge sedan operated by Annette Lila DeWitt, 25, Mtn. Lake Park, rear-ended a 1996 Nissan sedan operated by Dorothy Ann Stull, 66, Oakland. Both women were taken by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded.

No charges were filed by Oakland police.



GRANTSVILLE ELEMENTARY RECEIVES DONATION – Grantsville Foodland donated $5,000 to Grantsville Elementary School at a recent fund-raising reception. The supermarket donated to the school the cash award it had won from the Campbell's Soup Company in a nationwide store display competition. Grantsville Foodland was one of only 20 winners in the United States. The school plans to use the funds to buy new computers and add to classroom libraries. Pictured above, from the left, are Linda Buckel, principal; Dale Umbel, partner and general manger of Grantsville Foodland; and Ken Wishnick, executive manager of Umbel Enterprises.

Salisbury Woman Faces Charges In Garrett Hwy. Crash

A Pennsylvania woman was charged after a Thursday, Oct. 9, two-car collision on Garrett Highway in front of Northern High School. A passenger in the second vehicle was taken to the hospital, according to Maryland State Police troopers.

The 4:31 p.m. crash occurred as Carolyn Tice, 50, Salisbury, pulled out from Pride Parkway in an attempt to enter the northbound lane of Garrett Highway. Although she had reportedly stopped at the stop sign, Tice is accused of pulling her 2000 Ford Focus into the path of a southbound 1988 Ford Crown Victoria operated by Charles Knill, 65, Baltimore. Injured in the crash was Knill's passenger, fellow Baltimore resident Mary Knill, age not reported. She was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Personnel from the Accident and Friendsville volunteer fire departments also responded.

State troopers charged Tice with failure to yield right of way.

Bartender Challenge for Multiple Sclerosis, and the next fundraiser for that purpose will be an "all-you-can-eat" spaghetti dinner, to be served next Monday, Oct. 20, at the Oakland fire hall. Day Of Caring, Sharing Set By GC United Way

The United Way of Garrett County will salute volunteers from throughout the community during its first Garrett County Day of Caring and Sharing celebration on Saturday, Oct. 25, at the Mary Browning Senior Center. Volunteers from around the county will meet at 8 a.m. at the senior center, which is located along Center Street in Oakland.

The local volunteer recognition event will correspond to the National Make a Difference Day, and will begin with continental breakfast served to volunteers where "work assignments" will be given out. The event will conclude at 1 p.m. with a box lunch and an opportunity for volunteers to share their experiences. Food is being provided by Perkins Family Restaurant and Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort.

The Garrett County Day of Caring and Sharing is designed to celebrate the volunteer spirit and to assist the local United Way's affiliate agencies by completing projects that require volunteer labor. This year's work sites include Mtn. Glade Adult Day Care, Salem Children's Trust, Garrett Cooperative Ministry's Christian Crossing building, Habitat for Humanity, the Area Agency on Aging, PAWS, and the Dove Center. Other United Way affiliate agencies such as Big Brothers and Big Sisters, and the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will be providing some of the volunteer labor.

"The United Way of Garrett County hopes to make the Day of Caring and Sharing an annual event to bring recognition and service to local charitable nonprofit agencies and organizations," spokesperson Marta Schroyer said.

Volunteers are asked to register for the event by calling the United Way of Garrett County or any of its affiliate agencies. The first 50 persons to register for the event will receive a United Way of Garrett County T-shirt.

For more information about the Day of Caring and Sharing, or the United Way of Garrett County, persons may call the Cumberland office of United Way at 301-359-9697, or visit the local chapter's Web site at www.garrettunitedway.org.

Chain Saw Found, Owner Sought

A chain saw, which was located at the intersection of Route 219 and Kings Run Road around 4 p.m. on Wednesday, is being held at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Persons who may have lost this item should contact the office at 301-334-1911 for identification and to arrange pick-up.

Traffic Stop Leads To Many Charges Against Operator

A Grantsville man faces numerous charges after his vehicle was stopped Saturday along Route 40 at the intersection of Route 495 because he was not wearing a seat belt, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

After William Howard Wilt, 38, couldn't provide a license to the deputy, a routine check of Wilt's driving status revealed it was currently revoked in the state of Maryland, police said.

Another routine check of the vehicle's temporary registration plate revealed that it was currently uninsured and unregistered.

Wilt was charged with driving on a revoked license, driving an uninsured vehicle, and driving an unregistered vehicle.

In other police news, Nathan Sisler, 30, Friendsville, was arrested after his vehicle was stopped along Maryland Highway near Ollie North Road for speeding, police said.

He was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), speeding, negligent driving, and violation of a license restriction.

In anther incident, Richard Louis Fox of Baltimore was charged with various drunk driving offenses after his vehicle was stopped along Garrett Highway north of Kings Run Road.

He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

Garrett College Selects Architect For New Facility

The new Learning Resource Center at Garrett College moved a step closer to reality last week with the selection of the architectural firm that will design the facility.

The Baltimore-based architectural firm of Cochran, Stephenson, and Donkervoet (CSD) will design the new LRC and develop a new site master plan complete with storm water management solutions, according to college president Dr. Steve Herman. CSD was selected after several months of evaluations and interviews with 38 respondents from throughout the eastern United States.

"One of the major factors in the selection of CSD is the firm's proven skill and experience in project management and architectural services," Herman said. CSD's proposed design team has designed new buildings and campus master plans for several Maryland community colleges and has performed services for such academic institutions as the University of Maryland system, Johns Hopkins University, Penn State University, and the Stanford University Library Program.

Scheduled for completion in 2006, the new LRC will house the new Garrett College library, developmental laboratories, tutoring and testing rooms, and a multi-media class laboratory. The project is being funded by the state of Maryland and an anonymous donation to the college.

Man Found In Corn Field, Faces Charges

A Cincinnati, Ohio, man who was found walking in circles, waving his hands, and yelling in the middle of a corn field along Blue Ribbon Road was arrested Wednesday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Benjamin Hunter Mark Gibbs, 39, was charged with disorderly conduct, trespassing, and possession of a controlled dangerous substance, police said.

A search of Gibbs's belongings revealed a small bag that contained suspected marijuana.

Co-Worker Backed Over By Garbage Truck Tuesday

A Mtn. Lake Park man was injured when he was struck and backed over by the garbage truck he was loading at the intersection of M Street and Oakland Avenue Tuesday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

The 2000 International garbage disposal truck, operated by Austin Lee Schmidt, 54, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va., was backing from Oakland Avenue onto M Street when Robert Clayton Borgman, 28, was attempting to collect garbage from the area, police said.

Borgman stated that he was attempting to avoid contact with a dog when he was stuck by the truck and knocked down. Schmidt, who apparently did not see Borgman, continued to back up and ran over Borgman's leg with the right front tire of the truck.

Borgman was treated at the scene by Southern Rescue Squad and then transported to Garrett County memorial Hospital for further treatment.

Oakland Man Charged After Graffiti Incident

An Oakland man who was arrested Friday night and charged with violating a protective order was subsequently released from jail when he posted a $10,000 bond, according to the Oakland Police Department.

Barry Eugene Sweitzer, 36, was apprehended at approximately 11 p.m. by a sheriff's deputy who had observed a suspicious subject outside 109 South Third Street. Sweitzer, who had run when he saw the deputy, was detained until Oakland police officers arrived.

An investigation of the immediate area found that a degrading message had been written on the back of the building in large letters, and a second was written on a front window of the building. The messages stemmed from a domestic situation, and referred to the family of a woman who has a court-mandated protective order on file against Sweitzer. One of the stipulations of the protective order is that Sweitzer is prohibited from harassing the victim.

Sweitzer was arrested by Oakland police officers for violating the protective order.

The family of

would like to express our heartfelt thanks to all who supported us during the sudden illness and following the death of our loved one, Thomas.

A special thank-you to our friend Burton Rexrode, Pastor Ben Boggess, Pastor Tim Shaffer, Essex, Md., and Pastor Tom Hughes of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Oakland, who were there for us at the hospital and funeral service. Their love and prayers at the hospital and service gave us strength through a very trying time.

Thanks to the doctors and staff at St. Agnes hospital, Baltimore, who worked relentlessly to save him.

Thanks to the many, many friends and family who showered us with love and support at the hospital, who traveled many miles to do so. This was without a doubt above and beyond.

Thanks to the Stewart Funeral Home staff for their very caring arrangements and service.

Thanks to everyone for the flowers, cards and food; to the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Oakland for the lovely meal and fellowship following the service; to Troy, Dick, Phil Jerry, Gary, & George, the pallbearers.

Last but not least, our hearts go out to the families who have also suffered losses that we so often take for granted.

Your thoughtfulness, prayers, and support will always be remembered.

THE MEDAL CEREMONY IN BUENOS AIRES was dominated by members of the Garrett County Sportaerobic Team last week, with two groups of the local athletes winning the gold and silver medals in the intermediate trio team division. Placing first and standing on the center block were team members (from left) Paige Carr, Abby Wildesen, and Anna Keefer. Coming in just three one-hundredths of a point behind to take the silver were the trio of Samantha Taylor, Jennifer Feaster, and Morgan Brosnihan (also pictured from left). The 37-member group of Garrett Countians who went to the event were moved to hear the "Star-Spangled Banner" played in a foreign place in honor of their children, according to Coach Brenda Brosnihan.

WOWING THEM IN ARGENTINA – The trio team of Morgan Brosnihan (on the floor), Samantha Taylor (standing), and Jennifer Feaster brought home the silver from the 2003 International Extreme Aerobic Competition last week. Their energetic performance put them just a fraction of a point behind their teammates Paige Carr, Abby Wildesen, and Anna Keefer, which resulted in a medal ceremony dominated by young Garrett Countians amid a sea of international competitors.

ranked in the top four. The fact that they competed against varsity age girls and did so well is impressive."

Farley and Margroff joined forces and entered the pairs competition, in which they ranked first after preliminaries, but were edged out for a silver medal in the final round.

World class athlete Alissa Garland was unable to compete because of a shoulder strain.

"The competition was pretty much what I anticipated," Brosnihan said. "We knew there may be some surprises because of the rule variations, communication challenges, and different judging standards. We are very pleased with the outcome of the event and were especially happy with the camaraderie we were shown by the athletes from Argentina and South America."

Parent Kerrie Margroff said the girls were young ambassadors for the sport, Garrett County, and the country.

"To see them exchanging gifts, laughing, singing, and trying to communicate through the language barrier was priceless," Margroff said.

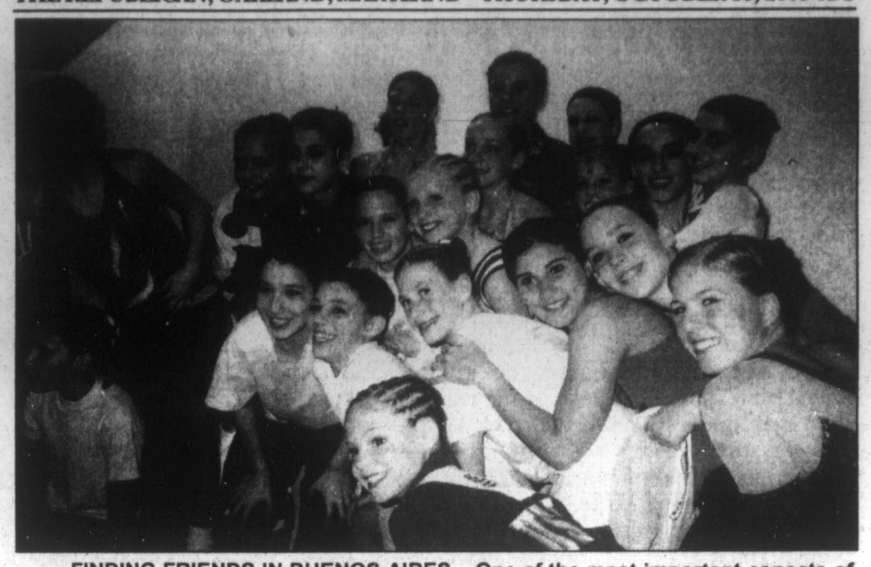
Traveling with the team were 11 athletes, 14 parents, three grandmothers, four siblings, one aunt, and two former teammates, totaling 37 in all. The group had the opportunity to take a city tour of Buenes Aires and to learn some history about Eva Perón (the legendary "Evita").

"This trip was full of some wonderful life experiences. Some members attended a Broadway show and a tango, which has been made famous by Argentina," Brosnihan said. "Many of us enjoyed souvenir shopping, with the money exchange being three pesos to one dollar. Steak dinners were quite a treat, as Argentina is well known for its beef.

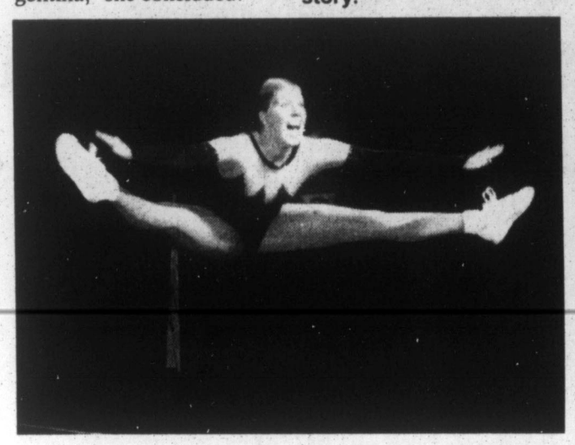
"No matter what time of day or in which restaurant or café you eat, you are treated to full linen service," she continued. "We never faced the crowds when we ate because the people there don't usually have dinner until 9 p.m. We walked many city blocks and rode the subway, a train, and even a boat on our city tour," said Brosnihan.

The trip to Argentina came just seven weeks after the World Championships in Miami. Brosnihan expressed her gratitude to all the businesses and the individuals who supported their extensive fund-raising campaign.

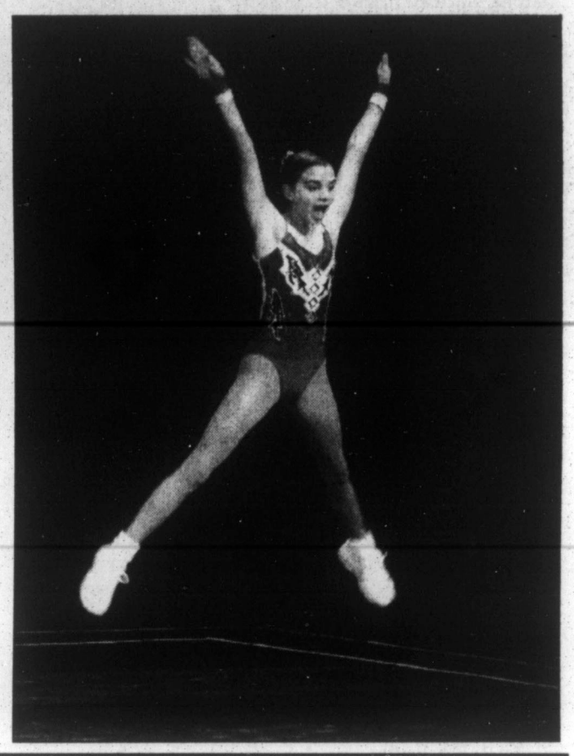
"Our group will be quite a while absorbing all the wonderful lessons and memories we shared in Argentina," she concluded.



FINDING FRIENDS IN BUENOS AIRES – One of the most important aspects of the Garrett County Sportaerobic Team's recent trip to Argentina, according to several parents and to Coach Brosnihan, was the youngsters' opportunities for mingling with their international peers. "To see them exchanging gifts, laughing, singing, and trying to communicate through the language barrier was priceless," said parent Kerrie Margroff. Brosnihan has always valued this aspect of the team's travels, but added that this time, the different rules and regulations of competition also presented new and important challenges to the young Garrett Countians. See story.



GIVING IT THEIR ALL – In the junior varsity individual competition of the 2003 International Extreme Aerobic Competition in Argentina, local athletes Kira Farley (above) and Rachel Margroff (at right) were equally competitive, said Coach Brenda Brosnihan. Farley ranked seventh after the preliminary round, and Margroff ranked eighth. In the final round, the rankings switched, with Margroff finishing in seventh and Farley in eighth. The two local girls went on to compete together in the pairs contest. After preliminaries, the duo ranked first, and then were barely edged out in the final round, earning the silver medal.



Oakland Man Sentenced For CDS Violations

An Oakland man was sentenced last week in Garrett County Circuit Court for violations relating to controlled dangerous substances. Judge Fred Thayer (retired) sentenced Jesse Franklin Allen Liller, 20, to two years in the Garrett County Jail for possession of ketamine and an additional month for driving while impaired by CDS.

Nineteen months of the sentence were suspended. After serving the remaining six months, Liller will be on supervised probation for two years.

He was arrested by Maryland State Police in March after he was stopped for seatbelt violations while driving on Rt. 219 near Deep Creek Lake. While in contact with Liller, the trooper observed him exhibiting signs of alcohol or drug usage. After failing field sobriety tests, Liller submitted to a breath test, which was negative for alcohol. A certified drug recognition expert was called to administer additional tests, and he provided the opinion that Liller was under the influence of CDS.

During the traffic stop, a drug-detection dog was called, and Liller's car was searched after the dog gave a positive alert. A baggie of ketamine as well as drug paraphernalia associated with its use were found in the car.

Liller had pleaded guilty in August, but sentencing was postponed for completion of a pre-sentence investigation ordered by Thayer.

Local Man Gets 18 Months For Abuse, Assault

Judge Fred A. Thayer (retired) recently sentenced an Oakland man to 18 months in the Garrett County Jail. Although Thomas Newton George, 51, was found guilty of child abuse, third and fourth degree sexual offenses, and second-degree assault, there was only one sentence imposed after the judge found that all of the crimes arose from the same incident.

George was charged by Maryland State Police troopers last October after a juvenile reported inappropriate contact by George at his home in 1999. Following a trial in June, Thayer found George guilty of all charges and had postponed sentencing for a pre-sentence investigation report to be completed.

"Five of our six junior team members will be advancing to the junior varsity division next year," the coach said. "Being so close to the end of our season for this competition we accepted the challenge to compete as intermediates, giving us an opportunity to try more technical skills. The competition was the perfect event to train our team at a higher level of difficulty we will face in the coming year. Under the different rules and guidelines, we are pleased to have earned a silver medal."

The junior varsity team was represented by four of the six original team members: Kira Farley, Rachel Margroff, Kellie Shotwell, and Alayna Gaither.

"The junior varsity division was the most competitive category in the event. In Argentina the age range allows older girls in this division, and this extra level of experience was just too much for our girls," Brosnihan said. "They delivered two outstanding technical performances, but the difficulty factor from the other teams pushed us to fourth place."

In the junior varsity individual competition, Rachel Margroff and Kira Farley were equally competitive, the coach explained. Farley ranked seventh after the preliminary round, and Margroff ranked eighth. In the final round the two girls switched rankings, with Margroff finishing in seventh and Farley in eighth.

"Both our girls did an outstanding job," their coach said. "I am proud of our style, as it represents polished and perfected movements. If the age factor was consist with NAC rules, our girls would have

On the Mark?...

Bilingual education in our public school systems is not a new issue, having existed as far back as the 1800s, but it is becoming a major concern, particularly since there are now 40 million Americans for whom English is not the first, or native, language. The strict, conservative attitude of "By God, if you're going to be an American, then you have to learn English" is a bit too simplistic to adequately address the problem.

We are a republic/democratic nation, where the majority generally rules. Yet we now have many schools, and a significant number of school systems, in which the native language of the majority of students is not English. While many are located in border states such as Texas and California, others are in metropolitan areas, such as New York and Miami, where immigrant populations are also large.

Teachers are in short supply in general in this country, and the aforementioned school systems that are trying to provide bilingual classes are, obviously, really having a problem finding enough teachers who are bilingual. Secondly, while Spanish is the predominant first language of many citizens, we also have substantial numbers of Asian immigrants (Chinese, Japanese, Vietnamese, and several Middle Eastern nationalities). Children who are American citizens and thus legally entitled to an education are coming into the education system knowing virtually no English, and they are "dead in the water" if their teacher knows none of their native language. They naturally fall behind from the get-go and may never get caught up. Yet we can't realistically expect our teachers to be multilingual.

Even though the United States is the world's great melting pot, a nation of immigrants, having English as a national, primary language is vitally important, and any thought that we can exist as a multi-lingual nation is ridiculous. The latter arrangement would potentially bring our nation to a halt because of the huge lapses in communication, plus there wouldn't be enough money in the world to be able to afford to provide every bit of information, written and spoken, in umpteen languages. It would be a financial, logistical impossibility.

One might suggest that these children be required to get private tutoring in English before being admitted to school so they at least have the basics, but such tutoring is an expense that many parents cannot afford.

Should we make learning at least the basics of English a requirement for immigration/citizenship? Maybe. But that doesn't help American children whose parents use only their non-English native language in the home.

So, perhaps this is where the problem can and should be solved – in the home. Our school systems (teachers) are already strapped with having to deal with a huge list of difficulties with students that should be handled in the home. Let's not add this one to the list.

Maybe the quote in the first paragraph above is right on the mark after all.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Isn't the new concession stand at the Loch Lynn fields nice? Are you, as parents and grandparents, aware that the mayor and select members of the town council took this stand from the softball and soccer associations? Now the mayor and select members of the council are planning for the town to profit from this concession stand. Their main concern is that they have to make back the money they spent on this stand. This money that they plan on making is at your expense, the parents and grandparents.

When the person was out asking for donations from local businesses and private individuals, did she clarify that the town owned the stand and that the town of Loch Lynn would receive all profits, not the children of the softball and soccer associations? This has been an issue at the several soccer games this season.

Thank you,
Robin L. Beckman

To the Editor:

Although it was a grand Autumn Glory parade and the weather was exceptional this year, for the first time in years, our return to Autumn Glory in Oakland was marred by unnecessary and inappropriate action by the Maryland State Police.

For whatever reason, Oakland chooses not to monitor and direct traffic with its own local officers, but allows the state to do so instead. We were heading into town to enjoy the ceremony and parade with our friend, who had come along with my family for the first time. As we entered town, coming down the hill by Sheetz, we were instructed by a trooper to be careful and slow down because of the pedestrian traffic. Coming down that hill can catch you by surprise when you don't live here.

Everyone was wearing their seatbelts; however, there was an open beer in the front compartment of our vehicle. I was told to "back it up and park" by the officer, which I did cooperatively. I was subjected to a breathalizer test and a coordination test. I was not overly concerned because it was the only open beer and only partially consumed. I passed both tests and explained the situation and myself to the officer. I understand they have a job to do, especially during the festival. But then the second officer approached with a citation for $520.00 for the opened beer in the front compartment of our vehicle!

Okay, I admit, I did not expect to get off "scot-free," but I certainly did not expect such an extreme fine. Something more reasonable would have been just as effective and far more appropriate for the situation.

As you can imagine, this was a bitter pill to swallow and soured the visit and any possible future return. I expected to put my money in the local economy, not the state economy. On top of that, as a visitor from out of town, I must now make the time and trip to return and fight this in court.

As to whether or not we will return for a future Autumn Glory Festival, it is now unlikely; it is becoming too expensive.

I think my biggest complaint comes along with the fact that all day, throughout the parade route, there are people (some quite prominent) openly drinking alcohol and carrying opened containers of beer. I feel all are created equally in America and should be treated as such. Either prohibit the consumption of alcoholic beverages entirely or inform the authorities to remain within the spirit of the Autumn Glory Festival; not everyone is a terrorist. The main point of the festival is to have fun.

Sincerely,
D.N. Rebele

To the Editor:

Several weeks ago Bill Thomas wrote a letter to the editor expressing his frustrations and disappointment with the current administration in Washington. To no one's surprise, a reader took exception and that was followed by a reply from Mr. Thomas, further explaining his anger with the president, particularly with regard to the actions of the administration in Iraq and his overall foreign policy. Mr. Thomas even acknowledged that he is a registered Republican, but was looking forward to the 2004 election and the opportunity to show Bush and his team "the door."

As expected, that letter sparked a response from another reader, in this case, DeCorsey Bolden. Mr. Bolden expressed his disagreement and did so by bringing out the tired old anti-Clinton attacks of the extreme right. It seems Mr. Bolden thinks that Bush & Company can do no wrong and accused Mr. Thomas of being a Republican in "name only." Mr. Bolden went on to equate Mr. Thomas with other Republicans, such as former U.S. Senator Mathias and former Congresswomen Morella, who are guilty of being moderates on social issues, apparently an unforgivable sin with the current powers-that-be in the Republican Party.

Mr. Bolden obviously is a supporter of the far right, a group that has hijacked the Republican Party and will likely prove to be even more a problem for the GOP than the far left has been for the Democrats. I'm guessing Mr. Bolden is not supportive of the "big tent" concept some Republican strategists are now trying to promote. Apparently, he feels the future success of the Republican Party is best assured by holding true to a very conservative platform, even though such an approach is clearly out of touch with the mainstream of American society. I'm also guessing he is not very happy with the recent success of Arnold Schwarzenegger, as the Republican governor-elect of California is pro-choice, pro-environment, pro-gay rights, and pro-gun control. Is Arnold a "Rhino" also, Mr. Bolden?

If I were a strategist of either major political party, I'd be looking very carefully at what just happened on the West Coast. The winning philosophy there: a mixture of conservative fiscal policies and moderate-to-liberal social views, packaged with a political outsider, really seems to be the receipt for future political success – and not just in California. I'd also be looking very carefully at the growing anger many in this nation, Democrats, Independents, and even many Republicans such as Mr. Thomas, feel toward the Bush White House.

I couldn't agree with Mr. Thomas more in his comments on the mess the present administration has created in Iraq and the severe damage Bush has done to American foreign policy and to our relations with many allies. Throw in the awful fumbling he has done with our economy and, sadly, it may take decades to fix the problems G.W. Bush has created in just a few years.

To the Editor:

The October 9 letter taking Mr. Bill Thomas to task deserves a response for a failure to cite facts.

Painting with a broad brush, our correspondent says the prior administration had "many scandals surrounding Whitewater, Vince Foster's death, cattle futures. . . ."

Our correspondent unfortunately fails to denote the results of all these supposed events. Some $67 million were spent for special prosecutors to investigate everyone of these alleged events and improprieties, but not a single indictment or criminal information came out of any of these events.

And while many people erroneously associate the McDougal conviction with Whitewater, in truth it arose from an unrelated matter and had absolutely nothing to do with Whitewater.

The other sad point to note about this letter are the aspersions cast upon former Republican Senator Charles "Mac" Mathias, Congresswoman Connie Morella, and State Senator Robert Neal of Anne Arundel County.

One need not agree with their political views to know they were all exemplary public servants in the best sense of the word, and there was never the slightest hint of skanky politics, skullduggery, cronyism, profiteering, misfeasance, or immorality associated with any of them.

With all due respect, it is an insult to even mention three people who honorably served many people for many years, and never brought any disrepute to the Republican party, in the same letter that goes on and on, ad nauseam, about the ancient history peccadilloes of the Democratic Clinton administration.

Denigrating honorable people is one certain way to discourage other honorable people from considering public service.

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey
Westover

To the Editor:

Thank you, Mr. Bolden, for your response to my letter. As is natural with this sort of thing, I will comment on your comments.

What amazes me about any criticism of the Bush administration is that the answer always involves Bill Clinton. For you to suppose that I am a Clinton fan is presumptuous on your part. I have never voted for Mr. Clinton or Mr. Gore. I would think we could talk about the current administration, not in comparison to any other, but for its own record and equally entertaining cast of characters.

Think about this. After 9/11 the whole world was behind us. Even France said, "We're all Americans, now." The gutless terrorists attack was recognized for what it was. The move into Afghanistan had multilateral support. We came together as a country and a world against terrorism. Everybody and their cousin had a flag. We pulled together. Our president said, "Go shopping." (There's leadership with vision.) "Wanted dead or alive." "Bin Laden will be dealt with."

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the economy is starting to slide. More and more jobs are lost. Companies are moving their operations overseas. More corporations are looking for a mailbox in the Cayman Islands. Our very own vice president set up off-shore accounts while with Halliburton....for a "tax advantage" and lobbied against a bill to bar companies, with off-shore accounts, from getting any government contracts. (Thank goodness for that or they'd miss out on all the work in Iraq.) The surplus slips away. Enron rips off the state of California, goes belly-up, and wipes out thousands of employees' retirement accounts, and yet the "big boys" skate. Sure, "we're looking at it" sounds good, but for me, Ken Lay (the biggest single contributor to George Bush) and his boys should be hung out to dry. Take their six homes and Lear jets to Ball Auction and the proceeds go to the Enron employees and the people of California. "Hey George, this is America. Let's go rustle up some of them polecats and hang 'em up!!"

Man, the beat goes on and on. You won't hear it in the mainstream news, but it's there. I would hope the American people would not think as Democrats or Republicans, but as Americans, and what is best for the country and not just themselves.

To the Editor:

I am writing out of gratitude to the people of Grantsville and especially the members of the Grantsville area Hot Spots Committee. During my almost two-year tenure as pastor of Maranatha Assembly of God Church, my wife Linda and I, along with associate pastor Steve Lewis, had the privilege of working along side some very fine people. I have never seen the level of good will, cooperation, and downright caring that I experienced during the many months of partnering with these folks. Mayor Beachy welcomed us into this partnership as did those on the Hot Spots Committee. We were able to work together for the benefit of the Grantsville community, helping to promote a safer environment for young and old alike.

I would like to personally thank Detective Jeff Murphy of the Sheriff's Department, Agent Kerrie Margroff from the Department of Parole and Probation, and the State Troopers who all came out to help us with the youth during the summer Safe Nights at the Courts. Their decision went beyond the call of duty. When State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch invited our church to help organize their 2002 Family Safe Night picnic in the park, we were delighted to work with Linda Green of Community Action and her daughter-in-law Dana in planning the event. We also had the pleasure of meeting many of the area business owners, who were more than willing to donate goods and services for this community event.

In 2002 our church held a community 9-11 memorial service, and some local officials attended, including police and firemen. This was a moving evening of remembrance as we shared the ceremony with our good friend, Pastor Jerry Rogers of St. John's United Church of Christ. And what a blessing it was to host the Grantsville Community Choir Christmas concert last year and see folks from all over the mountain come together to enjoy the true spirit of Christmas presented in such fine fashion under the direction of Ken Miller.

We want to thank all those who participated in our community fellowship dinners every Wednesday: all the cooks, helpers, and ministries from various churches. Our lives have been enriched by serving with you and seeing the blessing you were to others.

All these opportunities were made possible by networking our community resources. As we leave I would like to encourage the community and the area churches to continue to look for ways to partner together. It will only serve to help keep Grantsville the great community it is.

Lastly, after living in a metropolitan area most of our lives, we found it quite refreshing to actually get to know and chat with those with whom we did business – Giny, Connie, and Joy at the bank, Linda and all the post office workers, Eloise and Deanna at the corner market, Lisa and Marla at The Republican newspaper, and many others. Your kindness and friendliness touched our lives and was greatly appreciated.

Thanks, Grantsville; we will always consider your town a home away from home.

Sincerely,
Butch and Linda

To the Editor:

My family and I have been coming to Garrett County for over 25 years to watch the Fireman's Parade and to participate in the Octoberfest dinner and celebration. We particularly like the "Oom-Pah" band, along with the singing and dancing.

This year's celebration will probably be our last. Eat, drink, and celebrate the changing of the season and the brilliant color of the leaves. What does this mean? Let's see now; the state of Maryland just lowered the DWI limit to .08. Beer is sold and served all evening to benefit the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, which is for a good cause. This year, less than three miles outside the town of Oakland a sobriety checkpoint was set up.

I can only assume that once you contribute to a good cause then the county or the state wants their fair share from a possible DWI. This puts the fear of God into you and with only four beers you could be considered legally intoxicated. Although I seldom drink and drive, this is not a very good way to encourage tourism.

My family and I always participate in the walk for sight, the walk for hospice, House of Hope dinner, and other charitable events. I have personally participated in the Deep Creek Dunk since its inception, but this year I will reconsider if any of these causes are worth the possibility of having to pay $1,000 for a lawyer and another $1,000 for court costs for maybe four beers. This county has had a good thing going for it for some time, but the tourists are getting turned off and may be heading out of town permanently.

I have a few comments on the building boom at the lake, but will save them for another time as I look into someone's house from the 219 overlook while trying to see the lake.

Jack Rhode Pittsburgh

Dear Mr. Rhode:

As one of two founders of the OVFD Oktoberfest and current vice president of the OVFD, I would like to respond to your letter with a slightly different point of view.

Several other persons commented that they thought it was "unfair" for the MSP to have a sobriety checkpoint on this particular evening; that they were "taking advantage" of the situation so they could hand out a lot of DWI tickets.

As a member of the OVFD, one might assume that I would have a similar opinion. However, in our 26 years of holding the Oktoberfest, we have yet to have had a single serious automobile accident involving alcohol consumption (knock on wood). It is extremely important to us that we maintain this unblemished record, and we believe we can do so only through the use of designated drivers for persons whose alcohol consumption is over the legal limit. We strongly urge all persons who plan to consume alcohol, whether it is at our Oktoberfest or anywhere else for that matter, to always arrange to have a sober, designated driver. We, the members of the OVFD, make ourselves available every year to serve as designated drivers for anyone at Oktoberfest who may need one.

I am pretty sure that the sobriety check point last Thursday night served as a major deterrent to drunken driving, and thus quite possibly saved some lives, because it was made known that it would be there.

So, this particular OVFD member believes that the checkpoint was a good thing.

Thanks for your letter.

New Drugs Slow The Progression of Rheumatoid Arthritis

Rheumatoid arthritis is a condition in which the immune system attacks the joints. It usually starts with joints in the hands and feet. The result is pain, swelling, inflammation, and eventual destruction of the entire joint. Although it typically first occurs between 25 and 50 years of age, rheumatoid arthritis can strike at any age. Treatment usually relieves the symptoms in three out of four people.

Traditionally, pain medications have been the mainstay for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis. The problem is that relieving pain may cover up symptoms while the disease slowly progresses. Newer medicines are becoming available that actually slow the disease process, thereby helping resolve symptoms. Etanercept is a medicine that has been available for a few years. It has recently received approval for slowing the progression of structural damage in arthritic joints in people with certain types of arthritis.

"THE PERSON WHO HAS NOT TRAVELED WIDELY thinks his or her mother is the only good cook," goes an old African adage, and some visitors to Garrett County are working to put the message of that proverb into practice. Over recent weeks, several South African educators have been undertaking an intensive study program funded by the Leadership Institute for South African Secondary Education. The project is an effort to give the African teachers ideas they can take home for use in their own schools, and has been operating through the Garrett County Board of Education and Garrett College with assistance from Deep Creek Lake area residents Dr. Michael and Vianne Bell. The Bells are founders of the Coalition for Effective Local Democracy, which seeks to strengthen local democratic government through the empowerment of South Africa's citizens. The group visited the Oakland Train Station recently, where Mayor Asa McCain, right, gave them some insights into local history.

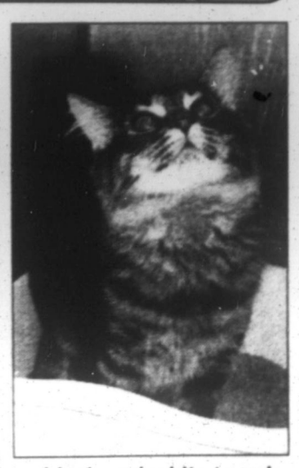
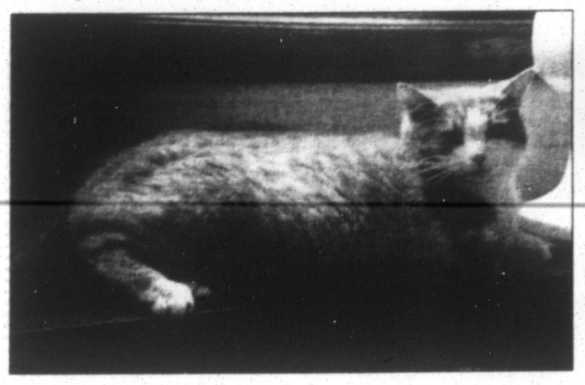
Adorable Adoptables



A HAPPY ENDING – Last week's featured adoptable, a black and white tuxedo cat, was reclaimed by her owner, who had been in the hospital for two weeks and then saw her cat featured in The Republican. Pet and owner are together again and doing well. Adoptables this week include a trio of very playful kittens, above left, a young male tabby with very soft fur, and Shuba, below right, a German shepherd/ spaniel mix who has had her first set of shots. Jade, below left, is also still available. This lovable declawed, neutered tabby thinks he's the king of the great indoors, and, therefore, this strictly indoor cat needs a home without other pets. For more information about adopting these animals, persons may call the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.



GBI Seeks Leads In Keyser's Ridge Storage Burglary

Property taken reportedly included several thousand dollars worth of ski and winter clothing, military uniforms, a B&O pocket watch, a family Bible, compact discs, and VCR and DVD movies.

Persons with any information are asked to call GBI at 301-334-1909. Callers may remain anonymous and may also be eligible for a reward.

reversal; in fact, there was some thought that Mountain Maryland would not gain approval. The state did go ahead and make the grant, but it included a three-year 'sunset provision' that will cause the program to expire at the end of Fiscal Year 2005.

"It would be devastating to lose Mountain Maryland," continued Herman. "We're asking that it be kept in place, and that the sunset clause be removed. The program is very important to us. Mountain Maryland reduced the difference between statewide funding and Garrett's funding from quadruple to triple; had there been no Mountain Maryland, we would have fallen by a factor of 4½ times below the statewide average."

Herman said presentations he and Alexander have made to the state's other community college presidents and their boards have been very well received. "We think our case is so evident that people will look at it and say, 'Yes, we need to keep Mountain Maryland in place,'" he stated.

The case Herman and Alexander are making is still in its beginning phases, and will take the form of proposed legislation that will be debated in the Maryland General Assembly this session. Del. George Edwards is expected to sponsor the bill in the Maryland House, and Sen. John Hafer is expected to sponsor in the state senate.

"These colleges have been under financial constraints since Cade came into being," Hafer said. "But with George Edwards on the House Appropriations Committee and myself working with the Senate Finance Committee, I think we can get them more funding this year, and we'll put in a bill to remove the sunset clause."

New System

States.

The entire board of elections staff will be attending a mandatory meeting in Ocean City on Oct. 18, 19, and 20. Fratz said that most of the agenda will focus on the touch-screen system. The new director also has to be in Annapolis on Nov. 4 for individual training on the county's 113 new electronic voting machines. Following training, he will then be required to inspect the machines to make sure they work correctly and sign off on them before they are shipped to Garrett County the next day.

The director indicated that he and the board would be very busy during the next six months as they educate and prepare themselves and the public for the new voting system on primary day.

Fratz thanked the commissioners for the new facility, noting that the white offices had a nice traffic flow. "We couldn't have asked for anything better," he said. The new supervisor explained, however, that more space may be needed to store and maintain the new system, along with all the other necessary voting equipment and files. He and the commissioners are currently looking at ways to expand the offices.

The new phone number for the Garrett County Board of Elections is 301-334-6985, and the fax number is 301-334-6988.

A son, Jacob Harold, was born August 13 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Ken H. and Stephanie Y. Berry Park, Hutton.

A son, Aiden Leonard, was born October 2 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Perry J. and Susanna T. Turrell Schwab, Oakland.

County's Jobless Rate For August Matches State's

Garrett County's unemployment rate fell more than a full percentage point between July and August, according to figures from the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation. The county's jobless rate was 4.1 percent in August, compared to 5.3 in July.

Additionally, the county's 4.1 percent rate matched the state's overall unemployment rate for August, perhaps for the very first time. The DLLR estimated that 13,693 county residents were employed that month, while 590 were jobless.

"It (August) was probably our best month ever," Jim Hinebaugh, director of Garrett County Economic Development, told the county commissioners recently. "If the trend continues, the county's annual percentage rate could be less than 6.5 percent for the year."

According to the DLLR, the county's unemployment rate was 5 percent in August 2002 and 6 percent in August 2001. Its annual rates for the past eight years are as follows: 2002, 7.8 percent; '01, 7.7; '00, 8.5; '99, 8.5; '98; 11.1; '97, 13.7; '96, 10.6; and '95, 10.5.

Hinebaugh said 4.1 percent is very close to what textbooks call "full employment," noting a number of "Help Wanted" signs in the county. He stressed, however, that the unemployment rate is just one indicator of the state of the county's economy. Other indicators include tax revenues and new business starts.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor, the nation's jobless rate was 6 percent during August.

IN MEMORIAM

DIALOG OF ONE

As he drove homeward from the site of his wife's death, he felt neither accomplishment nor virtuousness. Rather, a lingering melancholy suffused his being though the commemorative journey had marked the first anniversary of her demise. He had been drawn to the site much as iron filings are drawn to a magnet, walked the motel halls as though obeisant to a commanding force, recalling how nature had demanded that she step down and how it had rejected all appeals. Compliance was mandatory.

His arrival home did not diminish his dejection, and he sought surcease first through the TV and then through sleep. And in that interval between wakefulness and dormancy he felt a featherlike brush upon his cheek, a lightness he could not attribute. His arm rose to touch the affected area, then seemed arrested in space, and there she was–sitting in the room in her usual chair. He was momentarily stunned, for what he saw was his spouse not as in the resplendance of her youth, still less as in the fragility of her last years, but as in the plenitude of her middle years: serene, robust, assured. Initially he cast about for words, though sensing that even 45 years of intimacy were not license to breach intvited parameters.

A mist covered his eyes, a mist as impenetrable as a Penn Point fog.

"No, no, not at all," he began, "I'm not constructing a shrine, certainly not a mental one." And he fell to thinking that memories were perhaps a form of mental shrine. Quickly putting the thought aside, he sought words to reestablish the closeness that they once knew. Did she recall, he wondered, their picnics an the banks of the Potomac, their extended-family outings at Port Tobacco, the boating on Lake Baykal.

And then he wanted to touch her, hold her, and reiterate the millions of words of endearment of their past. Yet he could not do so, and it really did not matter, for she knew of his longing; for she now knows what lies beyond the stars, what moves the ever-expanding universe.

He thought he heard the opening of a door. But he would not ascend from his own reality, hoping to touch her, tell her how much he loved her. The maid entered, glanced at him as she moved inwardly. She saw chin resting on his chest, folds of skin and flesh prominent in their relaxation. An excerpt from a poem came to mind, mined from some long forgotten elementary class: "the pruning knife of time..." A practical woman, she did not dwell on life's vicissitudes.

The workday was beginning.

Operas she has performed with Opera Lyra Ottawa include Un Ballo in Maschera, Carmen, Il Trovatore, La Traviata, Pearl Fishers, Tosca, The Magic Flute, Aida, and La Boheme. She also appeared in the National Arts Centre/ Opera Lyra production of The Merry Widow as Grisette, which was hosted by ABC's Peter Jennings. Young Readers Club Sets Nov. Book Discussion

The Ruth Enlow Library Young Readers Club will meet at 4:15 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 6, at the Oakland library to discuss Nory Ryan's Song by Patricia Reilly Giff. The discussion is open to students age 9 through 11.

"Nory Ryan's family has lived on Maidin Bay on the west coast of Ireland for generations, raising a pig and a few chickens, planting potatoes, getting by," notes the publisher's description. "Every year Nory's father goes away on a fishing boat and returns with the rent money for the English lord who owns their cottage and fields. The English lord is bent [on] forcing the Irish from their land so he can tumble the cottages and clear the fields for grazing.

"Times are never easy on Maidin Bay, but this year, a terrible blight attacks the potatoes. No crop means starvation. Twelve-year-old Nory must summon the courage and ingenuity to find food, to find hope, to find a way to help her family survive."

The Young Readers Book Club meets on the first Thursday of the months September through May, with the exception of January. Book selections are voted upon by book club members, and theme-related snacks and activities/crafts are provided.

Upcoming book selections include The Corner of the Universe by Ann Martin (December) and Regarding the Fountain by Kate Klise (February). Persons may stop by the Oakland library or call 301-334-3996 to reserve a copy of any one of these titles, and upon request can be added to the mailing list to receive postcard reminders for upcoming book discussions.

The library also offers book clubs for teenagers and adults, and more information is available on the library's Web site at www.relib.net or by calling the library. All book clubs are funded in part by the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library.

Nothing "Grimm" About This Year's Tall Tale Festival

by Gail Herman

The day was anything but "Grimm" at the Autumn Glory Tall Tale Festival, Saturday, Oct. 11. Even Aesop would be envious of the wonderfully stretched stories told at Garrett's American Association of University Women's scholarship fund-raising event held at St. Paul's United Methodist Church fellowship hall in Oakland.

Each story was recognized for its strength. Julia Weaver from Mrs. Heilig's third grade class at Broad Ford Elementary School received the first place prize (a $50 U.S. Savings Bond) from the First United Bank and Trust for her original story about her little brother who learned "Monkey Talk" and behavior from watching Tarzan.

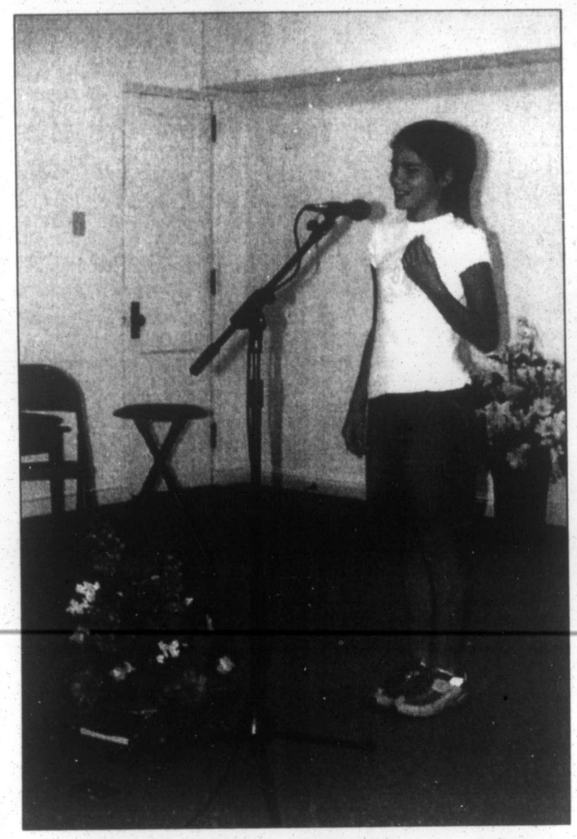
Mathew Warnick from Ms. Smith's fifth grade class at Dennett Road Elementary School won the second prize (a Halloween costume) for his original story about a captain and pirates. Several kindergarten students also won a third place prize for their rendition of "Herman the Worm," taught to them by their music teacher, Mr. Zimmerman.

Additionally, Page Fitzwater was recognized for having the most stage presence and being the most poised. Mrs. Stuck's third grade group – Hannah Newcomb, Samuel Thomas, Nicole Walch, Alexis Harvey, and Megan Fitzwater – told "That's Why We Live Here" and won for telling the most original story. Nicole Walch also won for telling the most exaggerated exponential animal math story.

Ms. Elmlinger's first grade won Best Mime for telling an original Paul Bunyan story with movements. Most Dramatic Story went to "Sparky the Cat" by Mrs. Wilburn's third grade, as told by Raeslee Weimer, Sara Jones, and Kassi Smith. Most Poetic went to Jordan Livengood for a story she and Chloe Anderson wrote together.

Most Creative went to "The Haunted House," written and told by Delanie Gilbert. Most Humorous went to Mrs. Lu Jean Bosley's class for their story, "The Yoyo Ride." And finally, Acie Friend from Mrs. Foley's third grade class at Dennett Road told an original story called the "TV Snake Star" and won for the best voice.

The Tall Tale Committee and the Scholarship Committee of AAUW wish to thank the following businesses for their prize contributions to the student part of the festival: First United Bank and Trust, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, the Book Mark'et, the Adventure Sports Department at Garrett College, CVS, Grand Central Station, Arrowhead, Mark IV Office Supplies, Images, and the AAUW. Adult winners will be announced later.



VETERAN TALL TALE TELLER Joanna Guy is pictured above spinning yet another one of her many yarns, "A Hyperbole Story," during the annual Autumn Glory Tall Tale Festival. Many other stories were told by participants of all ages at this scholarship fund-raising event sponsored by Garrett's American Association of University Women. The competition was held last Saturday at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland. See story by Gail Herman for a more information and a list of the winners in the children's competition. REL Teen Book Club To Discuss Ella Enchanted

The Ruth Enlow Library Teen Book Club will meet on Saturday, Nov. 1, at 2 p.m. in the Oakland library to discuss the fantasy work Ella Enchanted by Gail Carson Levine. All students 12 and older may attend whether or not they have completed the 1998 novel, which has garnered an average five-star review from over 800 Amazon.com readers of all ages.

"How can a fairy's blessing be such a curse?" the publisher's description asks. "At her birth, Ella of Frell was the unfortunate recipient of a foolish fairy's gift – the 'gift' of obedience. Ella must obey any order given to her, whether it's hopping on one foot for a day and a half, or chopping off her own head!

"But strong-willed Ella does not tamely accept her fate. Against a bold backdrop of princes, ogres, giants, wicked stepsisters, and fairy godmothers, Ella goes on a quest to break the curse – once and for all.

"In this incredible debut novel comes the richly entertaining story of Ella of Frell, who at birth was given the gift of obedience by a fairy. Ella soon realizes that this gift is little better than a curse, for how can she truly be herself if at anytime anyone can order her to hop on one foot, or cut off her hand, or betray her kingdom – and she'll have to obey?"

Extra copies of Ella Enchanted are available at the library and can be reserved by calling 301-334-3996.

Persons interested in the four book clubs sponsored by the Ruth Enlow Library, which serve readers from first grade through adults, can ask to be added to a mailing list to receive postcard reminders for upcoming book discussions. Further information can be obtained by calling the library or consulting its Web site at www.relib.net.

All book clubs are funded in part by the Friends of the Library.

New Novel Based Upon C&O Canal During Civil War

The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal during the Civil War is the focus of a new novel written by multi-award-winning writer James Rada Jr.

In the sequel to Rada's successful Canawlers, his new novel, Between Rail and River, picks up where the first novel ended in the lives of the Fitzgeralds, a canalling family trying to make their living on the C&O Canal during the Civil War.

"I originally hadn't intended to write a sequel to Canawlers, but readers kept asking me what happened to their favorite characters. Once I started thinking about it myself, I realized that I wanted to know, too," said Rada.

Between Rail and River begins as the Fitzgerald family struggles to make it through the winter of 1862-1863 after a poor year of boating on the C&O Canal that has broken the family apart and reshaped it in ways they hadn't imagined.

George Fitzgerald's unexpected return from the battles of the Civil War pits him against David Windover, an ex-Confederate spy who now works and lives with the Fitzgeralds, and brings the Civil War closer to being fought on board the canal boat Freeman.

Alice Fitzgerald struggles to hold her reunited family together as a vindictive sheriff and a haughty doctor's wife work to tear it apart.

Tony, the street urchin from Cumberland and a popular character from the original novel, has found a new life aboard the Freeman, but Sheriff Lee Whittaker has other ideas for the ex-thief. Elizabeth Fitzgerald is growing into womanhood and finding herself torn between the

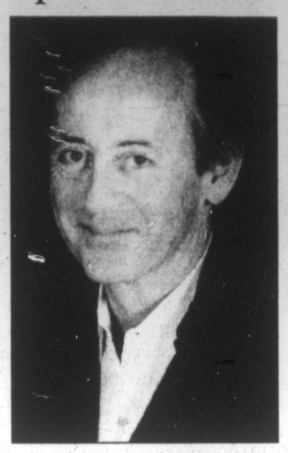
Former Poet Laureate To Speak At FSU



BILLY COLLINS

Frostburg State University's Department of English will host former U.S. poet laureate Billy Collins on Wednesday, Nov. 5. Collins will present a discussion at 4 p.m. and reading at 7:30 p.m. in the Lane University Center's Manicur Assembly Hall.

"Hailed as an American phenomenon," said an FSU spokesperson, "Collins manages to combine high critical acclaim with broad popular appeal."

With subjects ranging from shoveling snow with the Buddha to jazz and the three blind mice, his last three collections of poems have broken sales records for poetry.

"The typical Collins poem opens on a clear and hospitable note, but soon takes an unexpected turn," said the spokesperson. Collins sees his poetry as a "form of travel writing" and considers humor a "door into the serious."

He has published seven collections of poetry, including Questions About Angels; The Art of Drowning; Picnic, Lightning, Sailing Alone Around the Room: New & Selected Poems; and most recently, Nine Horses.

About his work, The New York Times writes, "Luring his readers into the poem with humor, Mr. Collins leads them unwittingly into deeper, more serious places, a kind of journey from the familiar to quirky to unexpected territory, sometimes tender, often profound."

The poet's evening reading, which is free and open to the public, will be followed by a reception and book signing. For more information about the afternoon seminar, persons are asked to call the FSU English department at 301-687-4221.

Little Yough Fest "Preview" Shows Slated At MOBI's

MOBI's (Mighty Oaks Brew Pub) at the Oakland Golf Club will be hosting "preview concerts" through the winter months for the Little Yough Summer Music Festival, according to festival organizer Ken Perrin. Each of the Saturday night performances will get under way at 7:30 p.m.

"I am getting calls or e-mails every week from artists that would like to be considered for the 2004 season" Perrin said. "In an effort to see which acts should be a part of the series, MOBI's South at the Oakland Golf Club has agreed to allow us to preview certain acts through the winter."

Marly Hornick and her band Marly's Angels will kick off the preview series this Saturday, Oct. 18. Hornick's web page describes her as a "singer/songwriter/storyteller and flirt," while critics have referred to her as a cross between Carole King and Natalie Merchant. The New York City based performer generally plays at such Big Apple landmarks as the Bitter End and the Knitting Factory, but also travels the East Coast. She was on the bill of June's Higher Ground Music Festival at the Sunshine Daydream Music Festival Campground in Preston County, W.Va.

Baltimore's Julia Rose is slated for a performance on the following Saturday, Oct. 25. Rose garnered national attention when she remarked on President Bush's "chicken legs" and was forever banned from performing at the Borders Bookstore in Fredericksburg, Va. A political satirist, her song about Bill Maher, "Maher's Planet," is often in the mp3.com top 40 of the political humor genre. She is also being considered to appear on a Warner Brothers television cable show in the near future.

Songwriter, storyteller, and poet Andrew McKnight of Loudon County, Va., will take to the stage on Saturday, Nov. 1. The former environmental engineer blends history, geography, and nature in his Appalachian style for seamless weavings of song and story. His national concert tours have included stops at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., Chattanooga's Riverbend Festival, and West Virginia Public Radio's Mountain Stage NewSong Festival. He also leads workshops for all ages on creative and musical writing, environmental education, and American culture.

"There will be more shows booked throughout the winter," Perrin said. Updates will be posted on MOBI's web site at www.pubcrawler.com, and in the Garrett County Arts Council calendar published regularly in The Republican.

canal and becoming a lady.

Once again, the Fitzgeralds are trying to deal with their life issues while the battle for a lamily goes on around them, complicating some of the already tough issues they must face.

"I purposely left some story lines open this time because once I started exploring the lives of the Fitzgeralds, I started seeing incidents that happened to them all the way through 1924 when the canal closed," said Rada.

One of those incidents became a limited-edition booklet for the 2003 Canal-Fest in Cumberland called The Race.

"While I wrote Canawlers because I wanted to write about the C&O Canal, I'm now writing because I'm interested in the characters and how the unique experience of living and working on the canal shaped their lives," said Rada.

Besides Between Rail and River, Rada is the author of five other novels: Canawlers, The Rain Man, Beast, Logan's Fire, and My Little Angel. He is also an award-winning reporter for the Cumberland Times-News, who has written many articles dealing with local history and the people of western Maryland.

Rada is working on his next book project, a historical novel dealing with the Spanish Flu epidemic of 1918. Rada's novels are available on-line at www.aim-publishing.com. or at local bookstores.

THANK YOU!
I would like to thank everyone who attended the celebration of my 45 years of pastoral service at the Oak Grove Church of the Brethren. Thanks to all who sent cards, gifts, made phone calls and gave congratulations to me personally. I extend deeply heartfelt appreciation to the deacons and their wives and all others who worked so diligently to make that day one never to be forgotten by me.
Also thanks to my family not only for their involvement on that special day, but for their loyal support through all the years of my ministry. Together we hallow the memory of my dear wife, who for 32 years gave me support and encouragement in our labor together for the Lord. But most of all I thank God for the priviledge He has given me to serve. PRAISE HIS NAME!

Southern Girls Lose Battle For WMIL Title To Beall

The top two girls' soccer teams in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League met each other last night for the first time this season, and the second-ranked Southern High Rams came up on the short end of a 2-0 score to host Beall.

The victory gave the Mountaineers the 2003 WMIL title with a 4-0-1 league mark, while the Rams dropped to 2-1 in the WMIL and 9-2 overall. Beall remained unbeaten with an 8-0-1 overall mark.

The Rams, Mountaineers, and Northern Huskies shared the WMIL title last year.

In last night's match, Beall took a 1-0 lead just over two minutes after the kickoff, as Abby Snyder put the ball past Ram keeper Alasha Rush off a crossing pass by Tasha Wilhelm. It was set up via a direct kick by Ashley Swarner.

The rest of the first half was a scoreless defensive struggle.

The Mountaineers scored their second goal, and the final one of the evening, at the 32:43 mark of the second half when Whitney Wilson received a pass from Snyder and put it into the Rams' net.

The Rams were edged in shots on goal by an 11-9 margin and in corner kicks by a 3-0 spread.

Rush was credited with nine saves, and Kacey Kahl stopped four of the Rams' shots.

A strong defensive effort by both squads was expected, as the Rams came into the contest having allowed only four goals in 10 matches, and the Mountaineers had given up just two in nine starts. It was Beall's sixth straight shutout.

The Rams will entertain Northern this Saturday in a 7 p.m. contest and wrap up their regular season next Tuesday with a 5 p.m. match at Allegany.

Naylor Named Rookie Of Week

The Commonwealth Coast Conference has announced that Roger Williams University freshman midfielder Brittany Naylor of Oakland has been named conference women's soccer "Rookie of the Week" for matches ending Sunday, Oct. 5.

Naylor, a former standout for Southern High School, was recently converted from fullback to midfielder, from which position she scored her first collegiate goal and added two assists in a 5-5 tie with Colby-Sawyer College.

Naylor is the daughter of Paul and Adelle Naylor, Oakland.

Catamount Men Extend Winning Streak To Four

The Potomac State College men's soccer team has now won four matches in a row, topping Frederick, 5-1, at Stayman Field in Keyser last Thursday, defeating visiting CCBC-Dundalk on Sunday, 6-2; and rolling over host Harford Community College, 7-2, on Tuesday.

Against Frederick, PSC dominated in shots on goal, 32-4, and corner kicks, 4-1. Kwandwo Duah led the Catamounts offensively with a hat trick, while Corey Diehl and T. J. McCullough each scored one goal.

Willis King and former Southern Ram Ben Friend each had one save in goal for the Cats. Other local players who saw action were Northern High grad Shawn Fike and Southern alum Chris Menker.

Against Dundalk, the Cats scored five goals in the first half while holding the lions scoreless. PSC goals in were scored by Chadd Wood and Joseph Beahon with two apiece, James Benton, and Scott Kallner.

PSC led in shots, 18-17, and corners, 4-2. Willis King recorded eight saves while Ben Friend stopped two. Shawn Fike and Chris Menker also saw playing time.

Even though the Catamounts led Harford in shots by only a 21-19 margin, they scored all seven of their goals unassisted. Kallner recorded two goals, while Duah, Diehl, Beahon,, Benton, and Wood each finished with one. Willis King had 7 saves for PSC.

Shawn Fike saw playing time in the match.

Potomac State will host Hagerstown Community College at 3:30 p.m. today.

Southern Boys Lose By One To Huskies, Wildcats

The boys' varsity soccer team had another losing week on the pitch, but the scores were much closer, as the Rams dropped a tough, 1-0 Western Maryland Interscholastic League match to visiting Northern last Thursday (see other story for details), and were nipped 6-5 in another WMIL match on Saturday by Westmar, also in Oakland.

The results left the Rams with an overall record of 2-9 and a WMIL mark of 0-4.

Saturday's offensive match against Westmar featured several ties and lead changes, as each team put three goals on the board in the first half. The Wildcats repeated that effort in the second half, when the Rams managed just two goals.

Statistically, the Rams dominated the visitors, getting off 29 shots on goal, compared to just 10 by Westmar, but the 'Cats made good on an amazing 60% of their shots. Southern also finished with a 4-2 lead in corner kicks.

Westmar took a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes of action, with Aaron Shockey and Brad McKenzie each recording unassisted goals at about the 38:00 and 31:00 marks.

The Rams bounced back to knot the score at 2-2 within the span of one minute, with Sean McCreery scoring off an assist by Bobby Bonser at the 13:00 mark, and Chuckie Burton putting one in the net off a feed by McCreery with about 12 minutes to play in the half.

Aaron Shockey put the Wildcats back on top, 3-2, about three minutes later with an unassisted goal, but McCreery tied it again with a goal off an assist by Michael Edwards with just 30 seconds to play before halftime.

The Rams took their first lead of the evening about eight minutes into the second half when Bonser scored on a penalty kick.

Shockey returned the favor and completed a hat trick by scoring on a penalty kick four minutes later to make it 4-4, and then gave the Wildcats the lead for good with an unassisted goal just a minute later.

Brad McKenzie made it 6-4 in favor of Westmar when he scored unassisted with about 23 minutes left in the match.

The Rams cut the 'Cats' lead back to one when Burton scored his second goal of the evening, again off an assist by McCreery. However, there were only about three minutes left in the match at the time, and the Wildcats held on for the one-goal win.

Taylor Crabtree had four saves in goal for the Rams, while Ben Preston turned away 15 of the Rams' shots.

The win evened Westmar's overall record at 6-6 and upped their WMIL mark to 1-3.

The Rams were reportedly to play Keyser last night, but no results of that match were received this morning.

The Rams are scheduled to play at Northern this evening (7 p.m. kickoff) and conclude their regular schedule at Bishop Walsh on Monday, with that match set to begin at 4:15 p.m.

Huskies Shut Out Rams, Wildcats In WMIL Clashes

Earning a pair of Western Maryland Interscholastic League victories this week, including a 1-0 win over cross-county rival Southern, was the Northern High School varsity boys' soccer team.

The Huskies nipped the Rams last Thursday in Oakland, and then recorded a 2-0 shutout over host Westmar last night.

Coach Tom Ables and his team are now sporting an overall record of 9-2-1 and a WMIL mark of 4-1.

The only goal that was needed to win last Thursday's match against Southern was scored four minutes into the second half by Derek Cutter off an assist by Zach Bruch.

The statistics were almost as close as the outcome, as the Huskies finished with a 20-14 advantage in shots, and the Rams led in corner kicks, 8-5.

Ram keeper Taylor Crabtree had 18 saves, while Preston Sisler turned away eight shots in goal for the Huskies.

The loss dropped Southern to 2-8 overall and 0-3 in WMIL action.

The Rams also lost to Westmar on Saturday (see separate story for details).

After 30 minutes of scoreless defense against Westmar last night, the Huskies broke the ice with an unassisted goal by Max Beitzel with 9:43 to play in the first half.

Derek Cutter made it 2-0 with a goal off an assist by Chris Speicher with just 1:36 left in the half, and that would conclude the scoring for the evening.

Chris Fickes earned his second shutout in a row by turning away eight of the Wildcats' 15 shots, while Ben Preston stopped 16 of 21 attempts by the Huskies.

The Huskies also led in corner kicks by a 5-2 spread.

The loss dropped Westmar to 6-7 overall.

The Huskies will play again this evening when they host Southern in a 7 p.m. match. They will conclude their regular season with a match at Beall next Tuesday.

Rams Win Game Of Stats, Lose On Points To Preston

Winning a game of statistics is not nearly as much fun as winning a game in points, but that's all the frustrated Southern High School varsity football team was able to accomplish Friday night in a game against visiting Preston County.

The Rams won the battle of total offense by a 275-220 yard margin, finished with three more first downs (12-9), had fewer yards in penalties (15-20), and had to punt the ball only one time compared to four times by Preston, but the Knights still put more points on the board, 22-16, to hand the Rams their fifth loss in six games.

Southern took the first lead, lost it, regained it, and led by two points through much of the fourth quarter, but the Knights scored the deciding touchdown with 4:36 left in the game and held on for the win.

The Rams mounted an impressive drive in the closing minutes, which included a long pass completion for a first down, but the contest was decided when the ball was fumbled and recovered by the Knights on their own 27-yard line.

The Rams coughed up the ball five times, and lost it four of those times; however, the Knights also had four turnovers, three by fumble and one by interception.

Southern scored the first points of the game when Cory Bosley ran the ball into the end zone from the one, and Andrew VanBogelen ran successfully for the conversion with 1:29 left in the first quarter.

Preston's Zach Metheny, who finished with 107 yards on 17 carries, responded with a 35-yard touchdown run with 3:02 remaining in the first half, and Chad Chambers booted the extra point to cut the Rams' lead to one, 8-7.

The Knights took their first lead of the evening when Dave Shaffer hauled in a 15-yard touchdown pass from Jon Whitehair with just one second left on the clock in the third period. Chambers conversion kick made it 14-8.

The Rams wasted no time regaining the lead, as they scored a touchdown less than a minute later when VanBogelen broke loose on a 45-yard scoring run. Bret DeWitt ran for the extra two points to put Southern back on top, 16-14, at the 11:06 mark of the fourth period.

Metheny scored the winning touchdown with a one-yard carry with 4:36 left, and Seth Wheeler crashed over the line for the two-point conversion.

VanBogelen, a sophomore, was the leading ground gainer of the game, as he recorded 174 yards on 24 carries for an average of 7.2 yards per attempt. He had to leave the game with a knee injury in the fourth quarter, however, and will definitely not play this week, according to Coach Fred Gregg.

"This loss was really frustrating," Gregg said, "because we certainly played well enough to win it. We had them on their heels, and we had some early opportunities, but we didn't cash in on them. And turnovers just killed us.

"That was one of the surprising things to us (coaches)," he said. "We hadn't turned the ball over all year.

"It seemed like, when we were making some big things happen in our favor, we lost our concentration on the little things, like hanging on to the ball."

The Rams will once again be the underdogs this Friday evening when they host Hampshire, a team that is 4-3 and, like Preston, plays a difficult schedule.

"Hampshire has really been beefing up their schedule in recent years, playing more triple-A schools," Gregg said. "From that standpoint, they are a lot like us."

Among the veteran Trojans back are senior tailback Alex Lee (5-10, 170), who is the fastest back that the Rams will see this year, according to Coach Gregg.

"We have seen some big-time, extremely fast backs this season, but Alex Lee is flat-out the fastest of the bunch," he said.

"He's also a key player on defense from his safety position because he is so quick to fill the hole, plus he is a good defender against the pass."

Other standouts in the Trojans' wing-T offensive unit are senior quarterback T.M. Frye (6-1, 175) and junior fullback Duke Charlton (5-9, 200).

"Frye runs the option very well, but he is more than a capable passer when he needs to be," Gregg said, adding that the Trojans' offense is primarily run-oriented.

"Charlton is not only a strong runner, but also a very good blocker," he said.

Gregg noted that the up-front players are not particularly big, "but all Lee and Frye usually need to be successful running the ball is just a little seam," he said.

"If we get into a foot race with them, we are most likely going to lose that race," he added.

Defensively, the Trojans run primarily from a 4-4 formation, with senior linebacker Erik Peters (6-2, 205) among the standouts.

"We've changed a few of our offensive schemes this week in an attempt to counter some of the defensive moves that we expect them to make," Gregg said. "We are working hard on those changes and feel pretty good about them, but as always, it will depend upon how well we execute them."

The loss of VanBogelen is a major blow to both sides of the ball for the Rams, but Gregg is confident that Bret DeWitt can step up and fill those shoes.

"We just don't know everything about Andrew's injury yet, and whether or not he'll be able to return next week," Gregg said. "We just know he's definitely out for this week."

This will be the Rams' homecoming game, with Friday's kickoff set for 7 p.m.

Burner Named All-America Scholar-Athlete

Frostburg State University sophomore Megan Burner, a 2002 graduate of Southern High School, has been named a National Fastpitch Coaches Association All-America Scholar-Athlete for the 2002-03 academic year.

Burner, a catcher and outfielder, earned a 3.655 grade point average last year. She is majoring in early childhood elementary education. NFCA All-America Scholar-Athletes must have achieved at least a 3.5 GPA over the course of the academic year.

In her collegiate debut season, Burner started all 16 games in which she played and hit .295 with 13 hits, including two doubles and a home run. She scored 12 runs, drove in seven, and recorded four multi-hit games. She earned FSU's Most Improved Player award.

"This is certainly a great honor for Megan and the Bobcat softball program," said second-year head coach Chris Starke. She is one of the hardest working players on the team both on the field and in the classroom. She represents what Frostburg State softball is all about."

Last season, the Bobcats finished 13-12 overall and 7-5 in the Allegheny Mountain Collegiate Conference. FSU will open the 2004 campaign in the Methodist College Tournament, to be held March 5-7 in Fayetteville, N.C.

Northern Girls Shut Out Powerful BW And Berlin

Two shutouts were recorded this past week by the Northern High School girls' varsity soccer team, including a huge 3-0 blanking of perennial power Bishop Walsh last Thursday in Accident.

The Huskies then disposed of host Berlin on Saturday, 4-0, to up their record to 7-4. They will travel to Fort Hill this evening for a Western Maryland Interscholastic League encounter.

Karie Kamp earned a hat trick against Bishop Walsh, as she scored all three goals of the match.

Her first came with just 3:54 remaining in the first half off an assist by Lyndsi Butler to give the Huskies a 1-0 edge at intermission.

It took her only a minute and 40 seconds into the second half to double the Huskies' lead, scoring off a feed by Britta Lais, and she made it 3-0 at the 18:25 mark off Butler's second assist of the evening.

The Huskies finished with a 15-8 lead in shots, and each team was awarded two corner kicks.

Northern coach Lynn Lais credited his midfielders, Brittany Milbourne and Megan Shaffer, and keeper Sarah Masters with spearheading the Huskies' defensive effort. Masters had six saves, while BW keeper Konnie Christman was also credited with six saves.

The loss was only the third of the season for the Spartans, who fell to 10-3-1.

Kamp just kept right on scoring on Saturday, as she finished with a pair of goals in the 4-0 win over Berlin.

Her first, which was unassisted, came at the 33:10 mark of the first half.

Butler made it 2-0 with another unassisted score with 5:33 left before intermission.

Kamp was assisted by Butler on her second goal of the evening, which was recorded with 27:32 remaining in the second half.

Erin Brenneman concluded the Huskies' point production with a goal off an assist by Amanda Heacock at the 20:58 mark.

The Huskies dominated in shots on goal, finishing with a 17-4 advantage, and led in corner kicks, 3-0.

Masters had four saves for the Huskies, and Terika Yoder turned away six of the Huskies' shots.

Tonight's match with Fort Hill at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland will kick off at 7 p.m.

Perfect Game Eludes Bowler By Lone Pin

Civic Bowling League member Timothy W. Upton bowled a near perfect game of 299 Wednesday. The Shirer's Tin Shop team bowler came about as close as one can to perfection when, in his final game, he tossed strikes in each of his first 11 frames before leaving one pin standing on his final attempt.

Upton bowled a 205 and 204, respectively, in his first two games. In the third game, after 11 strikes in a row, his twelfth shot entered the pocket a little high and failed to knock down the #4 pin. His total for the night was 708.

The 24-year-old is a graduate of the Par-Matt Lanes Youth League, and the Brunswick Rhino bowling ball he used in the near perfect game belonged to his late grandfather, Albert "Junior" Shaffer. Upton will receive a ring from the American Bowling Congress, along with a jacket from the Western Maryland Bowling Association in recognition of the accomplishment.

Upton finished last year's Civic Bowling League season with a 196 average, and is currently carrying a 188 average.

Husky Defense Pummels BW As Wolf Runs Up Big Yardage

The Huskies' defense played near flawless football as Northern High School walloped its Bishop Walsh host, 47-23, Saturday afternoon in Cumberland. NHS put up a stone wall along its front defensive line that held the Spartans to just four yards and no first downs throughout the first half, and an overall 19-yard ground tally for the win, which improved the Huskies' record to 2-4.

Northern halfback Michael Wolf outgained all BW runners combined by a factor of more than eight. The junior halfback zigged and zagged to 161 yards on just 14 carries, good for an eye-popping 11½ yard per-carry average on his way to three touchdowns in the first 14 minutes of the contest. Those numbers are even more impressive because Wolf only touched the ball three times in the entire second half, but he still retains his area-leading yardage tally with 854 yards on 114 carries for a 7½-yards per carry average.

"The guys did exactly what we needed to do to win," NHS coach Phil Carr observed. "Our entire line blocked well and did a good job of trapping as guards Corey Yoder and Chad Carr did an excellent job of kicking out the defensive ends.

"Our defense was especially outstanding, and shut down their running game completely. We were able to hold the Spartan offense to three-and-outs time and time again, which gave our offense the opportunity to mount some good ball-control drives."

Northern got on the board less than four minutes into their first drive. The Huskies, who started at the BW 44 thanks to a failed onside kick attempt, took only eight plays to make it into the end zone.

On the second play from scrimmage, a sweep play netted a 26-yard gain for Wolf after he was tackled at the 14-yard line. He subsequently blasted into the end zone from three yards out to give NHS a 6-0 lead.

Northern's swarming "grave digger" defense showed its stuff at the earliest opportunity, as Trevor Butler recovered a BW fumble deep in Spartan territory on the hosts' first possession.

NHS failed to capitalize on the opportunity, however, as quarterback Robert Stark, who is still settling into the starting field general position, attempted to throw a pass as he was being sacked. A Bishop Walsh defender tipped the ball into the air near the line of scrimmage, then gathered it in and took off on a 55-yard return for a touchdown that put BW up 7-6.

Northern rebounded in the second stanza as Wolf scampered 51 yards on a draw play for a touchdown to give NHS a 13-7 lead.

The Huskies used the excellent field position scoring on their second play with Wolf taking a sweep to the right for the 31-yard touchdown, his third of the game. The two-point conversion failed and the Huskies led 19-7.

After another three-and-out for the Spartans, Northern went 36 yards in six plays with Stark throwing a nine-yard touchdown pass to Rocco Andres. Wolf ran in the conversion as the Huskies held a 27-7 advantage at the half.

The third quarter started with another fine NHS defensive effort, and a Bishop Walsh three-and-out gave the Northern offense the ball at the Spartans' 42. Wolf ran twice for gains of 18 and nine yards and Stark had two gains for six and seven yards, giving the Huskies first and goal at the four.

Stark connected on his second touchdown pass to put NHS up 33-7, a 14-yarder to Eric Johnson, who had a 15-yard run on the drive.

The Huskies put together one last drive, going 59 yards on 11 plays, ending with a three-yard touchdown scamper by Corey Fike, who had 23 yards rushing on four carries on the drive. Snyder connected on the extra point as Northern held a 40-7 lead with 3:40 left to play.

Bishop Walsh then went to a no-huddle shotgun attack, going 47 yards in eight plays and scoring on Chris Hendershot's nine-yard touchdown pass to Ian Hollingsworth, cutting the lead to 40-15.

Bishop Walsh then went for the onside kick, but Danny Ellis picked it up at the Spartans' 49 and ran in for the touchdown. Snyder's kick put the score at 47-15 with two minutes to play.

The Spartans' ended the scoring on a four-yard touchdown pass, and the successful two-point conversion made the final score 47-23.

Stark was 3-for-8 for 32 yards and rushed nine times for 38 yards. Johnson added 42 yards on nine carries and led the team in receiving with 14 yards.

On defense, defensive end Dustin Wiland turned in 10 tackles and 3½ sacks. "Dustin kept the pressure on all night, along with fellow defensive ends Steve Snyder and Chad Carr," Phil Carr commented. "That was vital, as BW's Hendershot is one of the best quarterbacks in the area."

Northern will play at Beall (4-2) tomorrow night in a 7 p.m. contest. "We're looking forward to playing Beall," said Carr, "but we have to play better than we did against BW to win against the defending region champs. We overcame some mistakes Saturday, which shows we are growing up. We have a young team, with sophomores starting on the line, and we are going to make some mistakes."

Carr predicted that the game will be decided on the line, on both sides of the ball. Beall runs a wishbone option offense, just as Northern does, so blockers and pursuers will be on the move all night long.

"Their biggest threat is senior halfback Mahlon Harper (5-10, 170), who leads the area in scoring," stated Carr. "He's also a great kick and punt returner, and a superb outside linebacker. You have to go through him to beat the Mountaineers."

"It's a huge game for both teams. If we can pull off the upset we will be in the running for the playoffs and our kids are hungry for the postseason, something we haven't been to for a couple years," concluded Carr.

Steelers Sweep Rams In CAYFL Season Finales

The regular season of Cumberland Area Youth Football League play closed this week with a cross-county showdown between the Oakland Rams and Northern Steelers at Northern High School. The Steelers recorded a sweep, handily taking the Division I contest by a 42-27 score, while Northern's Division II unit romped to a 28-0 shutout win. Both teams enter the CAYFL playoffs this weekend.

In the Division I contest, the Steelers were paced to victory by three touchdown strikes from quarterback Garrett Gulledge to receiver Blair Silbaugh.

Oakland got on the board first when Tommy Reams carried the ball into the end zone from seven yards out to give the Rams a 6-0 lead that held through the first quarter.

Northern bounced back and took the lead in the second stanza as Matt Mason capped his own one-yard scoring carry with a two-point conversion kick. The Rams answered with a Corey Lipscomb three-yard score and Reams's extra-point run to take a 13-8 lead.

The final score of the first half came when Gulledge and Silbaugh connected on their first scoring strike, a 68-yard passing play that gave the Steelers a 14-13 halftime lead.

Mason opened the third quarter with a 38-yard touchdown run, but Oakland came back with a 10-yard score by Reams and a Lipscomb extra-point run to tie the game at 20-all.

Northern then took control as Gulledge and Silbaugh connected on two more scores, a three-yarder and a 46-yarder. Mason kicked the second two-point conversion to give the Rams a 34-20 lead. Ben Diehl scored Northern's last touchdown on an eight-yard run, with Mason making the kick. Reams scored the Rams' last touchdown, and his third, on a 68-yard pass from Jason Ashby. Reams also ran in the extra point.

Gulledge was 6-of-8 for 122 yards, and Northern was led by its offensive line, Kory Kamp, Justin Rosenberger, Jesse Glotfelty, Ryan Seaman, and Steven Taylor. Oakland was led on defense by Matt White, Corey Broadwater and Sam Bowman.

The Steelers drew a steel curtain down on the Rams in their 28-point Division II win, with help from strong defensive efforts on the part of Tyler Kamp, Jared Rhodeheaver, and Ryan Evans, and a strong running game paced by Randy Wiley.

Wiley scored on runs of 34 and 64 in the first quarter, with Kyle Gillum kicking both two-point conversions to give the Steelers the 16-0 lead.

Wiley scored again in the second quarter on a 21-yard scamper, and Eric Espada ended the scoring with a 22-yard touchdown reception from Nick Graham in the fourth quarter.

Wiley finished with 120 yards on just eight carries.

Northern's Division I unit (3-4) will play at Braddock, while Oakland's Division I team (2-5) will play at Washington in the first round of the playoffs this weekend.

The Division II Steelers' (6-1) and Rams' (1-6) squads will meet again in the first round of the playoffs this weekend at Northern.

Maddawgs Cage Cougars To Open Pee Wee Playoffs

The Northern Maddawg PeeWee Football League A&B team won its first playoff game Saturday at Northern High School by rallying to defeat the Frostburg Cougars 39-27.

The Maddawgs' B squad seemed a little flat at the game's outset, according to a team spokesperson, and Frostburg struck first with an impressive opening drive. The scoring march led to only the second touchdown Northern's B defense had given up all year.

The early setback seemed to light a fire under the Maddawgs, however, as the Northern unit answered with a 30-yard touchdown run by Cody Rodeheaver that knotted the score at 6-all.

Northern's A team stepped in for the second quarter and turned in a dominating performance. Patrick Beckman scored on the A team's first possession when he flew down the sideline for a 40-yard score. Beckman added a 75-yard touchdown, and Dylan Day added an extra point to end the half with the Maddawgs firmly in control, 19-6.

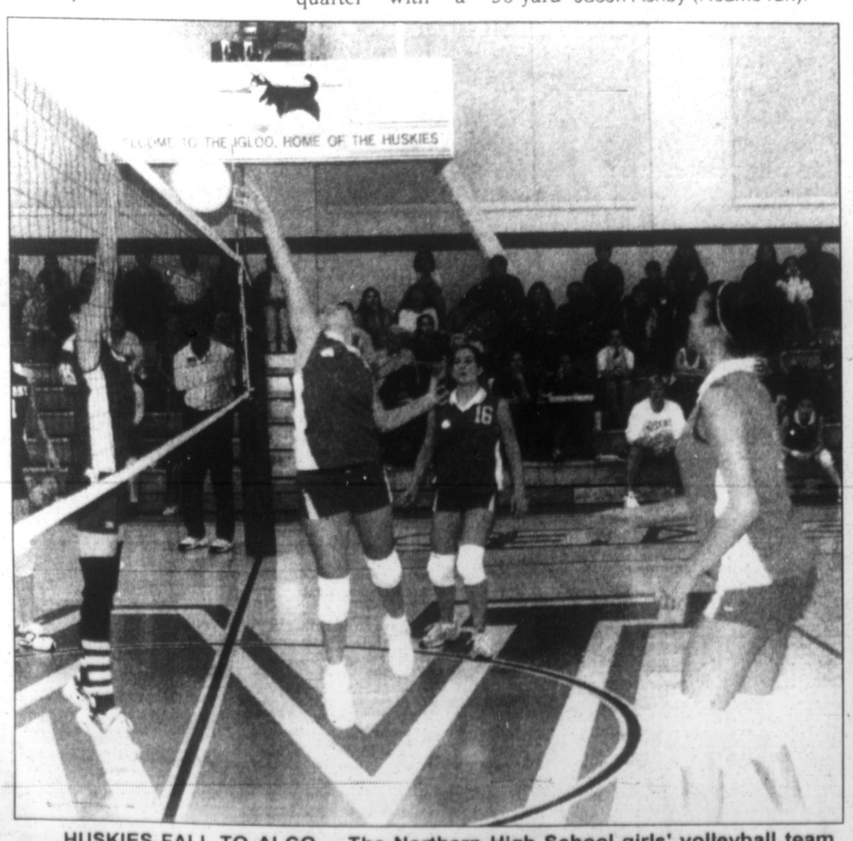
The Cougars closed the gap with a 40-yard scoring run on the Maddawg B defense in the third quarter, but Northern's A team went back to work in the fourth quarter to clinch the win. Beckman added two more touchdown runs of 23 and 75 yards, and Josh Duckworth added an extra point to make the score 32-13 late in the fourth quarter.

Frostburg got a breath of life when a Northern defender tipped a pass into the hands of a Cougar receiver who rumbled 40 yards into the end zone. The Cougars scored again when a Northern player fumbled the ball on third down and inches, and a Cougar defender scooped it up and ran it in for their final score.

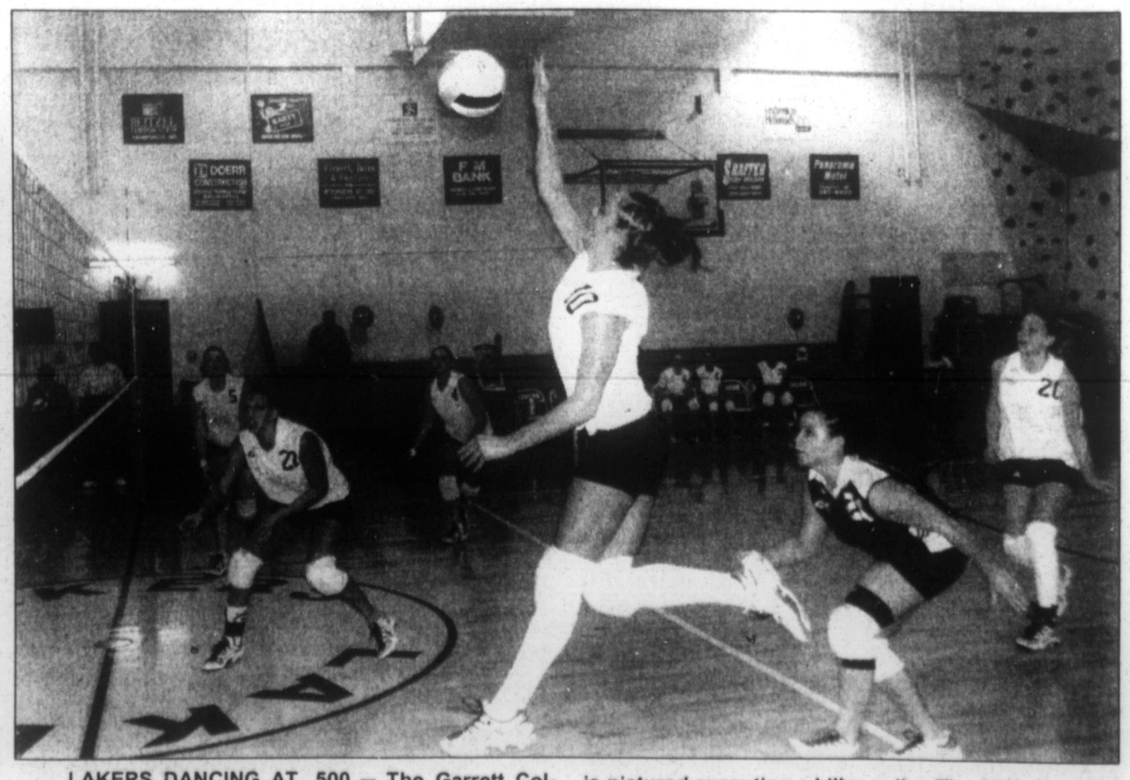
Northern's Josh Duckworth closed the scoring with a one-yard touchdown run, and Tyler Opel bulldozed in the extra point.

Northern hopes to continue its undefeated streak when it hosts the Cumberland Reds in the Pee Wee semifinals at Bishop Walsh High School this Sunday, Oct. 19, at 1:15 p.m.

Northern's C team season ended Sunday in the C team playoffs. The C Maddawgs, who had defeated the Frankfort Colts in the first round, were eliminated by a loss to the Cresaptown Eagles.



HUSKIES FALL TO ALCO – The Northern High School girls' volleyball team dropped a 3-0 match to visiting Allegany Monday by game scores of 25-8, 25-14, and 27-25. NHS junior Dani Glotfelty (#2) is shown at full extension as she hits the ball over the net, with teammates Jessica Fratz (#16) and Lakin Weimer (#1) flanking her. Fratz, a sophomore, had six points and four attacks, while Jayme Miller four points, and Angie Umbel three points and five attacks. Northern swept the jayvee match 25-6, 25-21. Esther Schmuck had nine service points, and Leah Biser and Nicole Espada each recorded six points. Northern (2-9) visits Bishop Walsh this evening before returning home to host Meyersdale Monday and Southern Wednesday in the season finale. All contests have a 6 p.m. JV start, with the varsity matches following immediately. Photo by John McEwen.



LAKERS DANCING AT .500 – The Garrett College volleyball squad split a pair of outings this week, dropping a 3-0 sweep last Thursday, Oct. 9, to visiting Rockville, but the Lakers rebounded in a big way Monday to take a 3-1 win from their Essex guests that evened their record at 10-10. (Results of last night's homecourt match with Hagerstown were not available this morning.) In early action from last night's battle with the Hawks, Garrett sophomore Erin Frantz (#10) is pictured executing a killer spike. The 2001 Southern High School graduate is surrounded by the entire remainder of the Laker floor unit at the time, as from the left are Heather Glotfelty (#27), Autumn Beavers (#5), Marlena Raines (#4), Brooke Alkire (#21), and Amanda Frantz (#20). GC is slated to take part in the two-day Hagerstown Tournament beginning tomorrow, then will pay a Tuesday visit to Catonsville. Photo by John McEwen.

SCHOOL OF ROCK

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:48 - Released 10/3/03

When I was coming of age in the '70s, it seemed to be every young man's dream to be in a rock band; I even had some friends who got together every afternoon to put on their guitars and work diligently on mastering the solos from their latest Pink Floyd or KISS or Led Zeppelin album. Alas, something has changed over the years—the combination of video games, MTV, and Napster has reduced rock 'n roll from the meaningful, conceptual poetry it was to some overcommercialized bastard child of its former self. But thank goodness there are a few people out there who understand this and try to keep the vision alive. Mike White, writer, Richard Linklater, director, and Jack Black, star of School Of Rock, combine their talents to create a hilarious, thought-provoking, and thoroughly rockin' movie about an aging hipster who introduces a group of talented prep school kids to the good old rock 'n roll dream. This movie may not appeal to everyone, but if you're a fan of Hendrix, The Beatles, The Stones, Morrison, Page & Plant, Gilmour & Waters, or any of their contemporaries, and you want your kids to understand why you occasionally have to go to the garage and get out those funny old black vinyl disks, you should take them to see this movie. School Of Rock is rated PG-13 because it uses occasional rock 'n roll language like "kick-ass" and "bitchin'," but if your skin is thick enough to withstand this, it is well worth it. With some hilarious dialogue, some kick-ass lyrics, and bitchin' guitar solos, Black, White, and Linklater show they truly understand what it was, what it is, to be a lover of '70s rock.

Black plays Dewey Finn, an overweight rock 'n roll throwback who, when he is kicked out of his own band for his enthusiastic but technically lacking guitar solos and tacky stage dives, is forced to desperation in order to raise some rent money. He learns of a well-paying substitute teaching job, pretends to be his geeky roommate Ned (writer White), and signs on as fill-in teacher for a bunch of precocious pre-teens. At first he tries to simply sit back and let the kids do what they want, but when he overhears them playing in music class, he gets an idea: he will exploit their talent and form a new rock band to compete in the upcoming talent show at a local club, the winner of which will receive a fat check and a chance for a recording contract. Disguising his intentions as a class project, he assigns instruments to the more musically-inclined students and roadie/management jobs to those better suited to behind-the-scenes work.

Upon learning of the kids' woefully underdeveloped understanding of pop music, Dewey begins teaching a hilarious crash course in the history of rock and assigns CD-listening homework like Floyd's Dark Side Of The Moon and Yes's Fragile. As the class-based rehearsals continue, always keeping an eye out for the school's prissy principal (Joan Cusack), his exploitative plans evolve into a true love for his enthusiastic students and their increasingly impressive rock style. As he clumsily puts it, "These kids have truly touched me, and I think I've touched all of them, too."

Although the story of this film is cute and the music is toe-tappingly fun, it is Jack Black's absolute devotion to the subject matter that makes it such a pleasure to watch. This should really be a fish-out-of-water role, but Black will have none of that: he's a fish in the water, and he swims around in it with abandon. Like his turn in High Fidelity, but with much more vigor, he personifies the passion with which '70s rock was delivered by the best of its purveyors. Rock, he reminds us with every look, move, and gesture, is not about being pretty or hitting every note perfectly; it's about anger, and attitude, and saying it right in their faces. It's about putting your guts out there and saying, "here it is—deal with it!" His dialogue is hilarious and often ad-libbed, his devotion to rock is clear, but his interaction with the cast of kids is also amazingly real and non-patronizing. Every word he utters is believable; every expression fresh and spontaneous.

Which brings us to the kids. It is obvious that the children in this movie are not all professional actors, but many of them are obviously talented musicians who share a love of classic rock music despite their young age. Among the pre-teen band members Dewey assembles is a guitar prodigy (Joey Gaydos), a talented bassist (Rebecca Brown), an amazing drummer (Kevin Clark), a nimble-fingered keyboardist (Robert Tsai), and a trio of singers (Maryam Hassan, Caitlin Hale, and Aleisha Allen), all of whom are clearly singing and playing their own instruments with the style and finesse of seasoned headbangers. What a curious thing it is to see a 10-year-old who can play "Smoke On The Water" to flawless perfection.

On the way home from this movie, I happened to have Who's Next playing on the car stereo. Although I didn't do as good a job as Mr. Black explaining the importance of Moon and Townshend to my 8- and 9-year old sons, I tried. For a little while, the old music-loving rock 'n roll disciple in me was reborn, turning up the stereo, pointing to the speakers, and demonstrating to my baffled children the technique of the windmill guitar solo or of smashing the Rickenbacker into tiny bits. And I guess that's the important thing that this movie does: it reminds us old 40-somethings how important it is to rock out once in a while, and to keep the spirit alive in our kids. ★★★★½

Rated R - Running time: 1:51 - Released 10/10/03

Review by Jeremy Carr

Once upon a time, a low budget, independent film came out called Reservoir Dogs. It was fresh, violent, hilarious, and put its writer/director, Quentin Tarantino, on the movie map. Two years later, in 1994, Tarantino released what is possibly the best, most original film of the 1990s. This film, Pulp Fiction, gave Tarantino a secure place among the frontrunners of American filmmakers, and unfortunately resulted in at least a dozen poor imitations, none of which came close to the brilliance of Pulp. After that, in 1997, he wrote and directed his third film, Jackie Brown. A more subdued, mature film, this picture showed a new side to Tarantino, while still providing what his admiring audience had come to expect. After just three films (he wrote three others, but that's another story, and acted in several, but it's just best to forget about them), Tarantino had become a filmmaking icon. His pop culture references, his trademark dialogue, and his overall passion for film made him the hot, new director. Out of nowhere this video-store clerk turned Hollywood darling had burst into the world of cinema. His distinct style and immediate talent drew comparisons, though they may be pushing it, to the likes of Woody Allen, Martin Scorsese, and Orson Welles. There seemed to be no stopping this maverick filmmaker, the likes of which hadn't been seen for years.

After Jackie Brown, however, he pulled a Kubrick/Malick and dropped off the face of the earth.

Now, nearly six years later, he's back—with a vengeance—and it was well worth the wait.

Tarantino's new film, Kill Bill Volume I, is the answer to the question "what do you get when someone who was raised on movies, pop culture, movies, and movies decides to make a movie?" Kill Bill Vol. I is an amazing, fun, brilliant piece of work. Tarantino is at the top of his game and delivers something unlike anything I've see in theaters before.

The plot is fairly simple. Uma Thurman plays "The Bride," a.k.a. "Black Mamba," a.k.a. "Bleeeep!"—watch the film; you'll see what that means. After years of serving on the Deadly Viper Assassination Squad, Black Mamba wants to get out. She's pregnant, she wants to get married, and she wants to settle down. Her former associates, however, including Bill, the man in charge and the father of her baby, aren't going to let her go that easy. On her wedding day they all break into the chapel and murder everyone "execution style." The only thing is, despite getting brutally beat and taking a bullet in the head, Thurman comes out of a four-year coma with a major vendetta and makes a "death list." She then proceeds to go on a killing, revenge-filled rampage. The storyline is indeed thin, but there's just enough to make the film more than just eye candy, which it is in the greatest sense of the term. In fact, the elements involving Thurman's motivation are used perfectly. This woman has truly been screwed over. She has had so much bad happen to her that the audience, or at least myself, is thrilled as she goes on to seek out her revenge.

Among the supporting characters are Daryl Hannah, Vivica A. Fox, Michael Madsen (The infamous Mr. Blonde), Lucy Liu, and David Carradine of Kung Fu fame. And in a perfect example of Tarantino nostalgia casting, Sonny Chiba has a crucial role. Not everybody is as prominent as everyone else, being that the film is divided, and some of the characters, unless they come back from the dead, won't even be featured in the second installment, except through flashbacks, which Tarantino is apt to use, and does so quite frequently and to great effect in Volume I. In fact, Carradine, who plays Bill, is barely seen, adding to the mystery of his character.

Fun would have to be the key adjective when describing this picture. You can see Tarantino's grinning face behind every frame. As a movie lover, there are so many references it's almost like a game to pick out where he got such and such a shot or technique from; there's Italian horror films like those of Argento and Fulci; Spaghetti Westerns, a la Leone; Kurosawa; the Shaw Brothers and other Hong Kong grindhouse classics; Bruce Lee; Blaxploitation, especially Coffy; De Palma...you name it. Elements from his own, previous films even pop up now and then. From the opening, retro "Shaw Vison" to the grainy freeze frames to the clichéd sound effects, you can tell that this is truly a guy in love with films, all sorts of films. And, while we're on the subject of film references, it should be noted that anyone who compares this picture's fight sequences to those of the Matrix series is sadly mistaken. Other than having the same chorographer, there is little alike. While the Wachowski brothers made the Matrix films look like video games, Tarantino is working with film. No CGI garbage here.

One exception to this is the Anime sequence that initially I had reservations about, having never really been a fan of this sort of technique. But now, after having seen how it plays into the film, it is simply a stroke of genius and could not have been done any other way.

There are many, many stand-out moments, but perhaps the one that is getting the most attention, deservedly so, is the final showdown at the Blue Leaves. Switching from color, to black and white, to silhouette against a blue backdrop, the fight scene is extraordinary. Cinematographer Robert Richardson, who has done tremendous work with directors like Oliver Stone and Martin Scorsese, is at his best as well. A master at visual combinations, he, with Tarantino's no doubt specific directions, makes the picture a tour de force of intense and captivating images.

Tarantino's staple use of music is also at a peak in this film. Few directors, other than Scorsese, use music to heighten the mood and set the tone in such an impressive manner—a good example being the opening Nancy Sinatra tune.

The movie was divided into two parts, for many speculated reasons, the most likely of which, probably has something to do with running time and the amount of violence. True, the film is violent, but if you get offended by the bloodshed in this picture, you're taking it much too seriously. Heads roll, limbs fly, and blood streams like a hose and falls like someone dumped a bucket of it. But, it's completely unrealistic, for the most part, and is clearly over the top. And, despite several laughs and scoffs in the audience, those who know Tarantino's inspirations for the film will joyfully applaud what he is going for.

Rarely have I been this excited about a film. It's not that it's exactly Oscar-type material (for whoever cares about that); it's that it's great filmmaking and fantastic entertainment. I haven't been this thrilled to be a movie lover since I was fortunately introduced to the Japanese picture Battle Royale.

It's surprising, too. The ending, which, obviously, is a bit of a cliffhanger, setting up the second, is neither annoying nor pointless. The film feels full and the last line is pitch perfect in making the audience want to wait anxiously around for the conclusion, set for release early next year.

There is so much about this film to praise that it's becoming hard to fit it all in. The best way I can think of to sum up this picture is by telling something I read on the Internet. There was a guy on there who told the story of when he met Quentin Tarantino. Tarantino autographed his Pulp Fiction poster and wrote the following, and I'm paraphrasing here: "From one film geek to another. There are two types of people in the world – us and them." Well, this movie is for us. They wouldn't get or appreciate it. So, if you're one of us, go see it, you won't be disappointed. If you're not, see it anyway, just to broaden your horizons. And, in the end, all I can say is that it's good to be one of us and it's good to see that we have a tremendous filmmaking talent on our side.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I can't believe that it is completely dark before 6 p.m. in mid-October. It seems not much worse than in December.

For once autumn color was pretty much at its peak on Autumn Glory weekend. I did the usual thing for me on Saturday during Oakland's big holiday. You would have had to drag me screaming and kicking to be in Oakland for the big parade. I think sometimes if you see it once, you see them all. Anyway, I had enough experience being in the parades during my school years. I was part of the Northern High School Marching Band and I enjoyed marching in the parade with the band. The one trip through Oakland leading a frisky pony dragging my father's Conestoga wagon attired in a pioneer woman's dress was an experience in itself. Probably the funniest appearance was on a float with the riders of our 4-H Riding for Exceptional Equestrians, or FREE, which is a riding for the handicapped program.

But these days, although I am sorry to miss my Caitlin doing the rifle routine for the color guard for the first time, I preferred to cruise the back roads around Bittinger and enjoy the best autumn display, at least in Garrett County, if not anywhere in the East Coast region. Rock Lodge along the lake is simply divine. Brenneman's Grove is almost fully colored, although still has lots of green mixed in with the gold. A little more off the beaten path is the steep downhill run on Frank Brenneman Road with the mix of oak, maple, hickory, and poplar gracing the scenery. A lot of the time you are above tree tops, but on the other hand you might prefer to stick with the main road and enjoy the scene from a pull-off on the top of Rt. 495. Plus, you also get the full panorama view of all the ridge in its fall color.

Kevin and Carolyn Dodge knew what they were doing when they chose the Big Run lookout for their wedding rite. It is my guess that is about 10 years ago, but my memory recalls that my daughter Mere was still just a little thing. Claire and Caitlin were big enough to hold her on a fence for a picture with the colorful mountains in the background.

There is no one who can claim or possess the gold outside if you pick one of those leaves and bring it inside. Without sunshine it is just a dull yellow. I am not sure I can paint it either. It is something we long to possess and hold on to, but can't. But that is what and why you need art and artists. I recently experimented to find a way to mix the color of gold. It takes some shades of greens, plus pink, and, of course, yellow.

Most people think that art is not real work. You might think you can do it when you feel like it would be a kind of leasurely activity. Now I wish I could take a nap this morning even though the day is so beautiful. It would be a crime to sleep it away. Actually, I can't even go outside to enjoy it, but the first priority is to capture the gold leaves, which means use this morning's light because it will go away by noon. It will be a far different scene of color in the afternoon, possibly a good gold in late afternoon, but I can't risk that. I have to get all my painting stuff together now and get on with it. I guess this is a case of my grasp being beyond my reach. After two hours of hard labor, I can't seem to capture truly the rivets of gold outside my window. It is changing so fast, just like quicksilver. It is a case of a human being trying to imitate God. As one poet said once, "Only God can make a tree." Only God can paint them in autumn color perfectly. I am afraid I will not get a chance tomorrow to work over my first draft because the weather is calling for rain.

I was right, as at day break on Tuesday, although not raining, the sky is a pale grey and the sun is not out, which means the gold leaves are just yellow. The little sunshine that we did have diminished in early afternoon and my little tree still is somewhat gold now.

I took a ride the old way from Grantsville to here. The old Amish Road cuts across country from Grantsville, Springs, and Salisbury to the colony of plain people near Bittinger used mainly by circuit-rider preachers, but I am sure also for agricultural business. Every time I drive over that old beautiful area I get chills to think my Miller ancestors (my maternal grandparents) heard the guns from Antietam at their homestead. My grandmother, Linnie Miller Buckle, was raised as a Brethren, and I noticed a Brethren Church along the Grantsville end of Amish Road.

I never saw a more beautiful autumn scene as I did today along Amish Road. I saw all colors of gold, not just maple leaves, but also hickory, beech, poplar, one kind of oak, ferns and a lovely vine with soft heart-shaped butter yellow leaves. It drapes (for my nature dolls) like silk satin. I put away my paints for the time being to finish a few colorful dolls to include with my paintings in my upcoming show at the Gallery on Alder Street in Oakland.

The open reception will be on Thursday evening, November 13, between the hours of 7 and 9 p.m. I will present art for most tastes and price ranges. For lower budgets, I will have a good collection of my nature dolls – blondes, brunettes, and red hair in gowns of scarlet, orange to yellow, green, purple, and even a few blues. Anyway, I need to use my beautiful colorful leaves before they dry out. I do want to paint the woods along Amish Road soon while it is still fresh in my mind. The glorious leaves are dropping fast and thick.

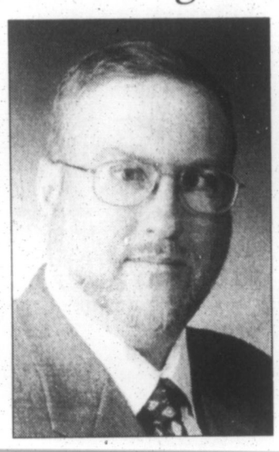
In the last week I guess at least six deer ran across the road in front of me. Recently when I was on my front porch, I heard a kind of cough. Of course, it was a doe warning her young one while pigging out in the oats field.

Speaking of wildlife, during one of our many downpours we had in the last two months while I was holding open my front door to let "Boo" inside, a very fast toad darted inside, even though they like it wet. But I guess it was a little too wet for it. I couldn't catch it and it is not a good environment inside a house, which is too dry. I found a bright side of my daughters' habit of dropping a damp towel on the bathroom floor, as about a week after the toad got inside I picked up a towel and, what was hiding in it? – the toad. That towel saved its life. It is now back outside to dig a nice deep hole to stay in during the winter.

This Monday morning I see perfect gold on Earth, in fact in my front yard. The early morning sunshine turned my young maple tree simply golden. I never saw any more spectacular autumn color before. It is not yellow or orange, it is just gold. Yes, like someone said a long time ago, "There's gold in them thar hills." Of course, he was not talking about the hills around here. That idea was a good excuse to take those hills and quite a bit of other country from Native Americans.

Of course, today is Columbus Day and we have a national holiday to celebrate the final ring of the death of the original people and culture who tried to defend their home and families. The extermination of the buffalo herds took away the one thing that sustained life of a whole tribe for the gold the hunters could get for buffalo hide, while the Sioux people used every thing for the clothes and tools. When will we have a "Crazy Horse Day?" He is much more a hero to me than Columbus. Do you know he had the same color hair as I do, which is ash brown? This is contrary to the idea that full-blooded Indians always had black hair and dark skin. In fact, although it is not common, they can have all colors of hair. Once I met a full-blooded Shawnee who had long ash-blonde hair.

Garden Club Slates Invasive Plant Program



JOHN THOMPSON

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club will conduct a business meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 21, at 10:30 a.m. at Perkins Restaurant, McHenry. Following the meeting, guest speaker John Peter Thompson will present a slide program, "The Right Plant in the Right Place: Invasive Plants and the Nursery Industry."

Thompson grew up in the nursery business. His grandparent founded the Behnke Nurseries Company, of which he is now chairman of the board. The company has three full-service garden centers in Beltsville, Largo, and Potomac.

Named by the Perennial Plant Association as Retailer of the Year, Thompson serves on the board of Maryland Nursery and Landscape Association (MNLA). He also serves as a member of the Maryland Invasive Species Council, president of the Mid-Atlantic Exotic Pest Plant Council, and the chair of the MNLA's Committee on invasive plants.

Drawing together both current trends and historical information, Thompson currently works to bridge the gap between environmental concerns about invasive plants and the concerns of gardeners and the nursery industry.

Following the program, members and guests will have lunch at Perkins. Anyone interested in attending the meeting and making a reservation for lunch may call Karen Ewing, 301-334-6180, or Norma Hesen, 301-387-4384.

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland and the National Garden Clubs Inc., all of which are involved in environmental issues on the local, state, and national level as well as hosting environmental studies schools.

Winners of the Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety (PAWS) "Pets and Their People: A Celebration of Life with Animals" Photo Contest were announced during the organization's Volkswaggle celebration on Oct. 5. The awards ceremony was held in the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion in Oakland.

Colleen Garrett's photo was chosen from among 125 entries to win the $125 Best of Show Award, sponsored by Naylor's Hardware.

The other three categories in the contest were: Quiet Moments, Pet and People, and At Work and Play. Winners received $100 for 1st, $50 for 2nd, and $25 for 3rd in each grouping. Judges for the photo contest were area photographer Guy Hinebaugh and members of the PAWS organization.

The Quiet Moments category was the largest, with 47 entries. Winners in this field were: 1st place, Jeannette Hunt, Ridgeley, W.Va.; 2nd, Michele and Matt Koch, Oakland; and 3rd, Kerri Zinn, Meyersdale, Pa.

The following were winners in the At Work and Play category: 1st place, Brenda LeMay, Grantsville; 2nd, Don and Bonetta Winters, Oakland; and 3rd, Bailey Michael, Oakland.

All winners were invited to be special guests of PAWS at the Volkswaggle, at which the placements were announced and the calendars were seen by the public for the first time.

Easels holding the top five winning photos, draped in black fabric, were lined up on the stage of the pavilion. Winners were announced one by one, beginning with the 3rd place prize recipients, by PAWS board member Tina Martin Selders.

PAWS calendars will be on sale while supplies last at the Book Mark'et and Gregg's Pharmacy in Oakland, and the Cobblestone Alley Gift Shoppe in McHenry. Also selling the calendars will be Muttworks pet grooming in Grantsville and Animal Crackers pet grooming in Accident.

The cost of the calendars is $8. All proceeds generated will benefit animal welfare in Garrett County by supporting the education and outreach programs of PAWS, a spokesperson said.

House Of Yoder Sets Meeting At Spruce Forest

The House of Yoder, a non-profit organization building a Yoder House in a colonial-era style at Spruce Forest Artisan Village in Grantsville, has slated its eighth annual meeting at the Yoder House in Grantsville from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Nov. 8.

The guest speaker will be Nathan Yoder, a church history professor at Eastern Mennonite Seminary in Harrisonburg, Va., and a native of Grantsville. His presentation, "Building to Remember," will outline elements of shaping identity drawn from historical examples of "building to remember." A catered meal will be available immediately following the meeting.

House of Yoder is currently nearing completion of the building of the Yoder House under the leadership of a 10-member executive board. The house contains Yoder-related historical documents, genealogical data, and family artifacts. Among the unique features in the construction of the house are a root cellar, a schuettstein ("pouring stone"), a holy corner, and a large stone walk-in fireplace.

All interested persons, especially those with the Yoder name and/or Yoder ancestry, are encouraged to tour the house and attend the annual meeting. For further information, persons may contact Lonnie Yoder at 540-432-6467 or via e-mail at ltbyoder@adelphia.net.

Women of the ELCA, Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, held their monthly meeting in the church on October 6.

The topic, "Nursing The Thessalonians," was led by Leota Baker. The objectives of the lesson were: to learn about the difficulties of mission in a Gentile world; experience a different method of corporate prayer; and to expand one's prayer life by giving thanks for people who have changed their faith.

Devotions closed with the hymn "Spread, O, Spread, Almighty Word."

Judy Stanton presided over the business meeting.

A thank-you card was received from the Lutheran Home at Kane, Pa., for the package of washcloths and invalid gowns sent by Zion's unit.

Announcement was made of the annual retreat the Women of the ELCA in the Ohio-Kanawha Valley and Monongahela Valley-Mountain Clusters to be held at Jackson's Mill near Weston, W.Va., November 2 and 3. The theme will be "More Bad Girls of the Bible." Registrations must be sent to Jane Hazer by October 24.

Sweaters and children's clothing are being received for the Christmas give-away to the residents on the Rocky Boy Indian Reservation in Box Elder, Mont. Articles must be left at the church by the first week in November.

The ingathering of the thank offerings will be observed at the November meeting.

Mothers' Support Group Schedules Speaker's Event

The local Mothers of Preschoolers (MOPS) chapter has slated a two-hour speaker's presentation for Tuesday, Oct. 21, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Loch Lynn Church of God. Guest speaker Patsy Shreve will present a program titled "Gardening Time." Child care will be provided at the session.

The MOPS group is part of an international support and education organization. Membership in the interdenominational, biblically rooted organization is free and open to all mothers with children up to the age of 5. The local chapter meets at the church the first and third Thursdays of every month. This year's MOPS theme is "Get growing, rooted for life," and incorporates the "nine basic needs of a mom," according to a spokesperson.

For further information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-3221.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the seventh year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items,spending up to $100 per child.

The Republican* staff is please to announce that the Civic Club of Oakland has taken Warm the Children under its wing and will be heading up volunteer/shopping coordination in the southern part of the county. Betty Ellington is serving as the chief coordinator, assisted by Bobby Anderson. For the northern part of the county, Lisa Broadwater will continue in her role as the volunteer/shopping coordinator for trips to the LaVale Wal-Mart. Many other functions of the program are being handled by Civic Club members, for which the newspaper staff is very grateful.

THE REPUBLICAN

To make a donation with the Civic Club of Oakland, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Please make your donations before December 1, 2003. Those collected after November 20 will be saved for next year's campaign.

Even with problems, Biffle wins Busch race

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Concord, N.C.

Greg Biffle baffled his competitors by winning Saturday's rain-delayed Little Trees 300 Busch Series race at Lowe's Motor Speedway despite running the final laps with an engine he felt was about to blow.

Biffle bolted into the lead for the first time on Lap 20, led a race-high 118 circuits and had stretched his lead to nearly half a lap over Michael Waltrip at the finish even though his engine had begun to vibrate in the closing laps.

"I think a valve spring or something broke," Biffle said. "That engine still had power, but I'm sure they'll find something wrong with it."

Mike Bliss finished third ahead of Brian Vickers and Jamie McMurray.

It was the 10th career win on the Busch circuit for Biffle, who is the defending series champion but is running only a partial schedule because he's also running for Rookie of the Year in Winston Cup.

BIFFLE

Waltrip, the runner-up, said he expected Biffle, known for his hard-charging driving style, to be the driver to beat.

"It wasn't surprising to me when I got up beside him one time and I saw he had the whole right side scraped off his car," Waltrip said. "That's a testament to how hard he goes at it."

And, Waltrip said, Biffle's No. 7 Chevrolet was the faster car for most of the race.

"His car was better than mine, and he drove the heck out of it," Waltrip said.

Biffle said he would have had more Busch wins this season if not for blown engines and bad luck in earlier races. But he never doubted his abilities.

"I'll whip their tails with just a good, solid race car," he said.

And he says he's not going to stop driving a Chevrolet in the Busch Series even though it aggravates the brass at Ford for whom he drives in Winston Cup.

"They are giving me a hard time, but so be it," Biffle said. "It's their fault for only having four teams in the Busch Series. They should do their jobs and get a bigger part of the market share."

He said that although no contracts have been signed, he expects to drive a Jack Roush-owned Ford in 20 Busch races next season.

Busch Series points leader David Green finished sixth but was able to extend his points lead from 21 over Scott Riggs to 36 over Vickers, the new runner-up.

While there has been criticism of NASCAR's points system because Matt Kenseth has held a big lead for most of the season in Winston Cup, the points contest in the Busch Series, which uses the same formula, is a nail-biter.

The 80-point spread between Green and fifth-place Jason Keller is the closest margin ever with five races to go in the season.

Stewart on top

Driver strikes a strange pose as Mr. Nice Guy

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Concord, N.C.

In the post-race interviews following his come-from-behind victory in Saturday's UAW-GM 500 at Lowe's Motor Speedway, Tony Stewart pretty much shot his hot-head reputation full of holes.

First, after taking a little verbal dig in Victory Lane at Ryan Newman's recent fuel mileage wins, Stewart offered conciliatory remarks about the race's runner-up.

"I'll give [Newman] credit," Stewart said. "He about won the race and we had 30 or 40-lap fresher tires."

STEWART

As the laps wound down Saturday night, Stewart found himself eight seconds behind Newman, who had once again gained the lead by pitting early, then began running fast on old tires and stretching his fuel mileage to the finish.

But this time, since the race was on a track with an abrasive surface, Stewart was able to take advantage of his fresher rubber to chase down Newman and pass him for the victory with eight laps to go.

Stewart drew an approving roar from the crowd when he got on the track's public address system and said: "It's about time the fastest car wins a Winston Cup race. Enough of that fuel mileage [stuff]."

The implication is that Newman's fuel-mileage victories are somehow less of an accomplishment than a victory like Stewart's.

But Stewart downplayed any real rivalry or hard feelings between the two, even though they're both from Indiana — Stewart from Rushville, Newman from South Bend — and both came to NASCAR from USAC's open-wheel circuit. Both also are highly competitive.

Then Stewart, the reigning Winston Cup champion, really wrecked his bad-boy reputation by admitting that he has been offering fatherly advice to current points leader Matt Kenseth, who had lost 177 points of his lead in the two weeks leading up to the race at Lowe's.

Upon hearing that Kenseth was stressed out about losing a big chunk of his lead, Stewart gave him a call.

"I just felt like I needed to pick up the phone and call him to tell him to relax," Stewart said. He also talked to Kenseth's wife Katie before Saturday's race.

"I told her she's as big a part of him winning this championship as he is right now," Stewart said. "If they go to dinner one day a week and that's what he really enjoys, they need to do it two days for the rest of the year. If they go to one movie a week now, go to two. I told them to just do something that takes his mind off driving a Winston Cup car, and don't change anything he's done up to this point.

"There's a reason he's got the points lead."

Stewart, who let his temper get the best of him at times last season, said he's trying to keep Kenseth from having to learn the hard lessons on the job that Steward had to learn last year.

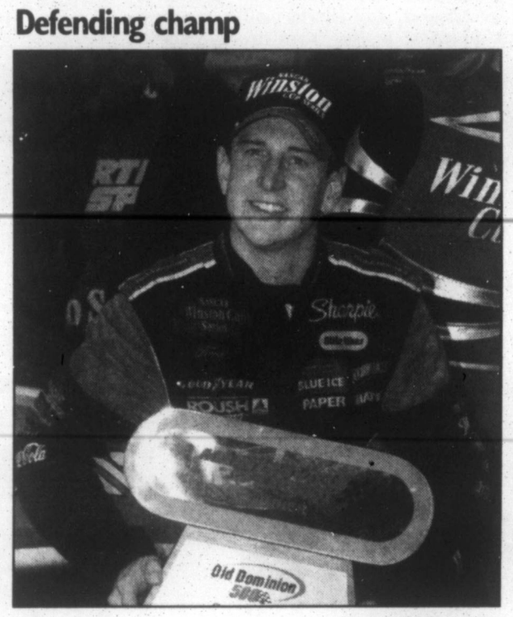
"I went through it last year, and I felt like we could give him some reassuring words and hopefully something to let him enjoy the next five weeks and not beat himself up," Stewart said.

The advice didn't hurt. In the 500, Kenseth battled back from early power steering and handling problems to finish eighth, ahead of his closest challengers, Kevin Harvick and Dale Earnhardt Jr. He leads Harvick by 267 points with five races remaining.

But Stewart wasn't pleased that his talks with Kenseth had become public knowledge.

"I was hoping this wouldn't come up, because I don't want to ruin my bad reputation," he said with a big grin on his face.

Defending champ



Martinsville Speedway

Kurt Busch heads into Sunday's race at Martinsville Speedway as the defending champion, having won last year's Old Dominion 500 (above). Busch hopes to get back on track after suffering one of his worst outings of the year Saturday at Lowe's Motor Speedway. The driver of the No. 97 Ford posted a 40th-place finish, which dropped him to 10th in the Winston Cup standings.

POST-RACE NOTES

NASCAR's top divisions race on the same day

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Concord, N.C.

For the first time, NASCAR's top three divisions all raced on the same day on Saturday.

The rain-delayed Little Trees 300 Busch Series race was run at 11 a.m. at Lowe's Motor Speedway, followed by the Craftsman Truck Series race at Texas Motor Speedway, an afternoon event won by Brendan Gaughan.

The UAW-GM 500 Winston Cup race at Lowe's served as the nightcap.

WALTRIP

Eleven drivers ran both races at Lowe's. Kevin Harvick, Brian Vickers, Greg Biffle, Joe Nemechek, Michael Waltrip, Dave Blaney, Casey Mears, Jeff Green, Jamie McMurray, Jeff Burton and Jason Leffler attempted the 800-mile grind.

Winston Cup points leader Matt Kenseth was set to run both races, but he sat out the 300 on the advice of his crew chief Robbie Reiser and car owner Jack Roush. Burton drove Kenseth's car but fell out early with engine problems. Waltrip, who finished second to Biffle in the Busch race, said he never considered sitting out the 300.

"I ran the Boston Marathon once, which was four and a half hours on my feet," he said. "I can sit all day on my tail and drive a race car."

Biffle said he wouldn't have skipped the 300 for the world.

"You don't get many opportunities to drive a car as good as I had [Saturday]," he said.

Earnhardt deal official

After driving with a handshake agreement for his entire career, Dale Earnhardt Jr. now has a formal, five-year agreement with his employer, Dale Earnhardt Inc.

EARNHARDT

Earnhardt said the terms of the contract, which has been on the table all season, were settled after a brief negotiating session last week with Teresa Earnhardt, his stepmother and car owner.

"What it really came down to was Teresa and myself being in the same place at the same time and sitting down to talk about it," Earnhardt said. "Once that happened, it was taken care of in no time at all."

The terms were not disclosed.

More seats at Richmond

For the second straight year, Richmond International Raceway is adding to its seating capacity.

More than 1,400 seats will be added for the 2004 season, bringing the three-quarter-mile track's capacity to 107,097.

Another 55 acres of parking also are being added.

Extension for Craven

PPI Motorsports announced Saturday that it has extended its contracts with driver Ricky Craven and sponsor Tide through the 2006 season.

Since joining PPI in 2001, Craven has delivered the team two wins: a career first for Craven and PPI at Martinsville in October 2001, and at Darlington in March.

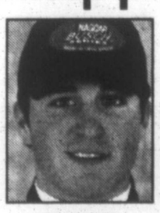
Ford intends to keep promising driver Kahne

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

After weeks of silence on the issue, Ford Motor Co. officials on Friday issued a statement spelling out the company's desire to keep their promising young driver Kasey Kahne in the fold.

There have been rumors for weeks that Kahne might bolt to a team fielding another manufacturer's car.

Kahne says he has talked to several car owners, including Ray Everham, whose drivers run Dodge - Intrepids.



KAHNE

"I've been hearing a lot of speculation around Kasey's status," said Greg Specht, manager of Ford's North American racing operations. "As far as Ford Racing is concerned, we have a multiyear contract in place with him and we intend on honoring that."

Specht said Ford plans to have Kahne, who now drives the Busch Series entry owned by businessman Brad Akins, run the full Busch schedule next year, plus seven Nextel Cup races in a Robert Yates-owned car.

Kahne then would run the Cup circuit full time in 2005.

"Kasey has told us in the past that Ford has delivered on every promise it has made to him," Specht said. "We intend on continuing with that by ensuring he remains in competitive equipment with an eye toward becoming a future champion."

VFW Auxiliary Holds Regular Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 10077, Deer Park, was recently held at the post home. President Melinda Knapp presided over the event.

The auxiliary was asked to assist with the Cub Scout Derby, which will be held at the post home on Sunday, Nov. 9, at 1 p.m. The group will serve hot dogs and coffee.

Plans are also being made for a Veterans' Day visit to local nursing homes, where the veterans will be honored. Veterans' Day will be Tuesday, Nov. 11. A program at the post will also be held that day.

Auxiliary members are asked to bring small personal items to the next meeting so that packages may be sent to women stationed in Iraq. Some of the needed items are sanitary napkins, toothpaste, combs, brushes, sports bras size 34 to 36 B, women's cotton briefs sizes 5 through 7, and shampoo. Other items asked for are ink pens, writing tablets, envelopes, highlighters, hand sanitizer, wet wipes, women's fashion magazines, women's religious books, word puzzles, cards, and travel games.

Food items that the females soldiers are asking for include Slim Jims, beef jerky, canned smoked oysters, Vienna sausages, Pringles, Doritos, cookies, dry cereals, pre-sweetened Kool-aid, pre-sweetened Gatorade, pre-sweetened tea, hard candy, and snacks such peanut butter crackers, cheese crackers, and peanuts.

The treasurer also reported that she is accepting 2004 dues from any member who has not yet paid.

A donation was recently made to the department president's special project, the Bethesda Naval Hospital. Each year the president chooses a charity that she feels is in need of the auxiliary's support. The Bethesda Hospital is in need of infusion pumps for chemotherapy, hand-held pulse monitors, and vital-sign monitors. All monies collected by the department treasurer will be used to purchase these items for the hospital.

A district meeting will be held at VFW Post 9451 in Oldtown on Sunday, Oct. 19, at 1 p.m. The department officers will make their official visit at that time. The next scheduled Ladies Auxiliary meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m.

'L&O' star once played a mom on stage

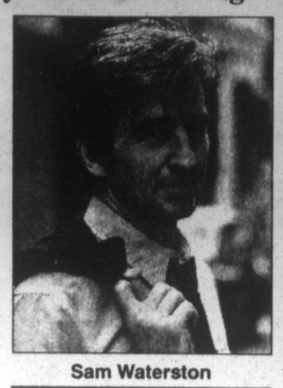
Q: Many years ago I saw a play in New York called "Spitting Image," about a gay couple who panicked when one of them became pregnant. Didn't a very young Sam Waterston ("Law & Order") play the pregnant one? –Bob Palmer, Galena, Ill.

A: Yes, Waterston was still a struggling actor in his late 20s when he played "the mother" in a 1968 off-Broadway production of British playwright Colin Spencer's work. Waterston really hit his stride in 1972, starring in a New York Shakespeare Festival staging of "Much Ado About Nothing," which subsequently aired on CBS to some 20 million viewers. That "Much Ado" has been released on VHS and DVD, by the way, as part of the stellar Broadway Theatre Archive video series I mentioned here several months ago.



Sam Waterston

Q: Will "The Restaurant" return this season, and is there such a restaurant as Rocco's in New York City? –Maurice Schwartz, New Port Richey, Fla.

A: Yes, such drama as there was in "The Restaurant" arose from the fact that this wasn't just a game, it was the launch of an actual New York restaurant with hundreds of thousands of dollars at stake. Now open, the Manhattan eatery Rocco's on 22nd is located at 12 East 22nd St.

While ratings for its summer run on NBC were lower than the network had hoped for, producers say they are negotiating for a second season of "The Restaurant," although no deal has been struck as of this writing.

Q: On a recent rerun of "The Gong Show," I caught what I could swear was Mare Winningham singing, but under a different name. Was it her? You previously reported that she is an avid musician and singer. –Mike via e-mail.

A: Yes, Mike, Winningham – who stars this season in CBS' new "The Brotherhood of Poland, New Hampshire" – made her TV debut as a teenager in the late 1970s on "The Gong Show," where she was introduced as "Sharon Shamus." She sang a Lennon-McCartney song and, for the record, didn't get gonged.

Q: To whom is Bonnie Hunt married? And was her writing partner, Don Lake, in "Watching Ellie"? –C. Van Dyke via e-mail.

A: Hunt, who recently turned 39, is married to John Murphy, an investment banker she met on a blind date. They have no children, although Hunt says she would love to start their family together when her schedule permits.

Lake, who played Dr. Zimmerman on the now-defunct "Watching Ellie," is an old pal of Hunt and has worked with her on many projects, including the Christmas 2003 movie comedy "Cheaper by the Dozen," in which Hunt stars with Steve Martin.

In Focus

Sherilyn Fenn (pictured) and Dennis Miller guest star in "Boston Public," beginning Friday, Oct. 24, on Fox.

Fenn plays Violet Montgomery, a sexy eccentric who crashes into Vice Principal Scott Guber's (Anthony Heald) car in a two-episode arc.

The first of five-time Emmy winner Miller's three episodes is the same night. He plays a smarmy investment banker who is convicted of securities fraud. He avoids time in jail by doing community service – teaching math at an inner-city school.

Trivia

Producer Robert Evans ("Kid Notorious") believes in making movies for young people and hangs around the younger set to get ideas.

Jackie Collins ("Hollywood Wives: The New Generation") plays soul music while she writes during the early-morning hours.

Activist Ron Silver ("Skin") is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and is one of the Creative Coalition founders.

Julianne Moore ("Far From Heaven") is against the use of child actors, believing acting is an adult responsibilty and children should act like kids.

Alison Lohman ("White Oleander") showed up for her audition with a shaved head, which she had from a prior role as a leukemia patient.

Lewis And Clark Expedition Subject Of GC Exploration

By Joan Crawford

For years the expedition of Lewis and Clark has been recognized as one of the great accomplishments in American history. Now it will be possible to relive parts of that journey on Monday, Nov. 3, at Garrett College from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., when Paul Shogren presents an Introduction to the Lewis and Clark Expedition.

Participants will be given maps that trace the path of the explorers starting in Harpers Ferry, W.Va., and traveling the Braddock Road toward Pittsburgh, where they proceeded by keelboat, down the Ohio River to the Mississippi and St. Louis, then up the Mississippi River. During the re-enactment that is commemorating the 200th anniversary of the historic expedition, Shogren was in the group that met Capt. Lewis at the Casselman Bridge and Youghiogheny Overlook, then at Fort Necessity and Friendship Hill.

Shogren expressed the significance of the expedition that lasted 28 months and covered over 8,000 miles from St. Louis westward and the return. "Even though the expedition fell short of its primary objective to find a water route between the Atlantic and the Pacific," he said, "it had a profound impact on western development.

"The journals, maps, plant and animal studies, and notes on the Native American societies these men produced amounted to a western encyclopedia. The Lewis and Clark expedition set a pattern for government sponsored scientific exploration in the United States."

Shogren is currently second vice president of the Garrett County Historical Society and the chairperson of the Lewis and Clark Expedition Bicentennial activities. When he first learned of the bicentennial commemoration, he began a serious study of the expedition and subsequently visited Fort Clatsop, Ore., the Missouri River, and the Columbia River in Oregon.

A graduate of Penn State University with a bachelor of science degree in forestry, Shogren also holds a master of divinity, from the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. During the Korean War, he served two years on active duty with the United States Marine Corps and continued in the reserves as a staff sergeant. His employment record includes 17 years with the U.S. Forest Service in timber management and soil conservation, and eight years with the Office of Surface Mining as a reclamation specialist.

The presentation in November is planned as an introduction to a more in-depth course on the Lewis and Clark Expedition to be scheduled in the spring. It is an offering of the Center for Lifelong Learning at Garrett College. Interested persons may register by calling 301-387-3069. The fee is $10.

LIBRARY BRANCHES TO HOST STORY HOURS – The Kids First Committee will present a 45-minute children's Story Hour at each of the Ruth Enlow Library branches this coming week. Garrett College Slates Microsoft Word Courses

Two Microsoft Word computer courses, one in Grantsville and the other in McHenry, will be offered next month by Garrett College.

Microsoft Word I is set for four Thursdays, Nov. 6 through Dec. 4, from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. at the Grantsville Outreach Center. The class will not meet on Thursday, Nov. 27, which is Thanksgiving Day. The hands-on course will introduce students to the processing of various types of documents. Participants will also learn how to edit, assemble, format, sort, and save, and create graphs and tables.

A Microsoft Word II computer course will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays, Nov. 4 - 20, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the McHenry campus. Designed to enhance the skills needed for professional word processing, this intermediate course builds on knowledge gained in Microsoft Word I and introduces the more advanced features of styles, table, mailmerge, headers, footers, and other tools.

For additional information, persons may contact the college's Continuing Education and Training Division at 301-387-3069.

Finan Center To Benefit From USDA Telemedicine Grant

Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman announced last week the recipients of 84 Distance Learning and Telemedicine (DLT) grants totaling more that $32 million, providing greater educational opportunities and medical service to rural citizens in 41 states, including Maryland.

"These grants will help expand the availability of state-of-the-art health care and educational resources to rural families," said Veneman.

In total, 57 distance learning grants for $23.5 million and 27 telemedicine grants for more than $8.9 million were selected for funding throughout the country. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Rural Development, the education projects will help 556 schools provide students with educational tools to better equip them for the global digital economy. Additionally, rural residents will have access to better, faster, and more modern health care through 190 medical service facilities.

Of the funding, Baltimore's Sheppard Pratt Health System Inc., the largest mental health treatment resource in Maryland, was awarded $239,482. The award will be used to help the system assemble an interactive video conferencing network that that will provide medical and educational services to seven other users throughout the state, including the Finan Center.

Located in Cumberland, the Finan Center serves adults in Washington, Allegany, Garrett, and Frederick counties. Additionally, because of the shortage of child and adolescent psychiatrists, the center is also designated to serve adolescents in the above counties, as well as Carroll, Howard, and Montgomery counties.

"Information technology is critical to rural Americans," said Thomas C. Dorr, agriculture undersecretary for Rural Development.

This is the first Distance Learning, Telemedicine Grant received in Maryland, noted state director Marlene Elliot, Rural Development. "The isolation of the rural areas to be served, not only by distance but also geography, makes it difficult to recruit and retain specialty type doctors or services," she said. "this technology will enable professional education and clinical services to be provided to the residents in these rural areas."

A complete list of the select grant recipients may be found at the USDA Rural Development web site: rudev.usda.gov.

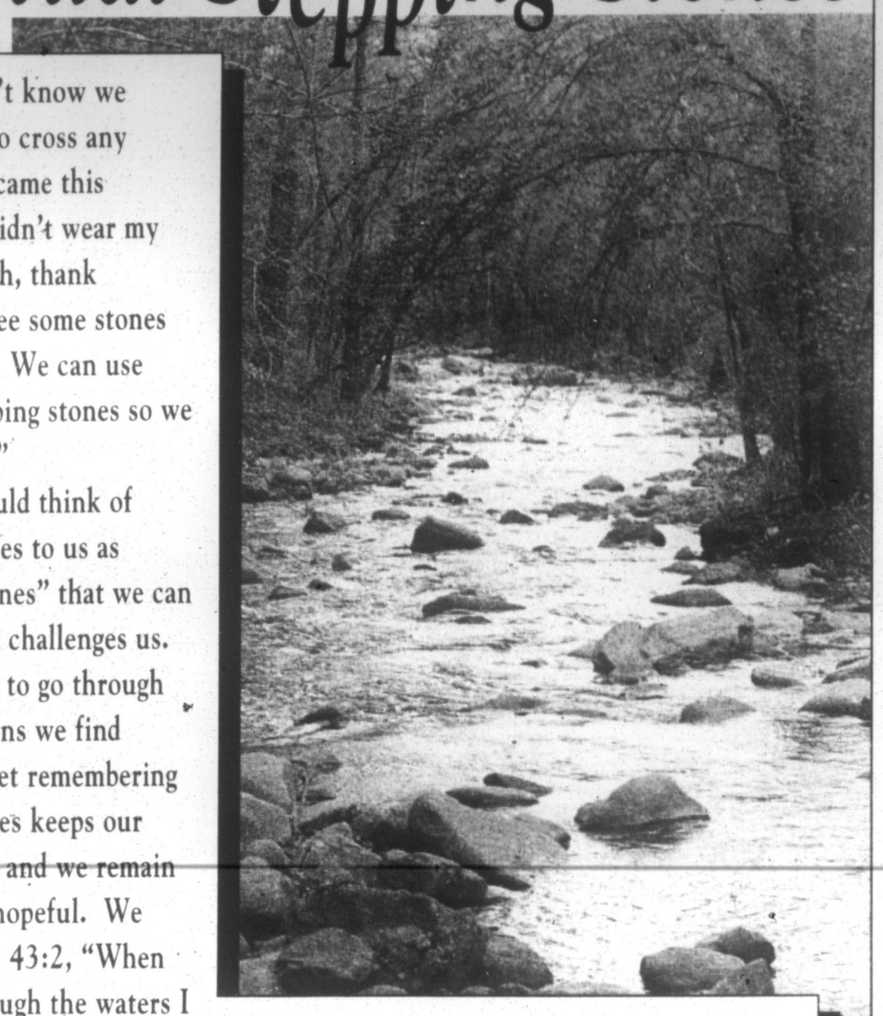
Spiritual Stepping Stones



"I didn't know we would have to cross any creeks if we came this way...and I didn't wear my old shoes. Oh, thank goodness, I see some stones in the creek. We can use them as stepping stones so we can stay dry."

You could think of God's promises to us as "stepping stones" that we can use when life challenges us. We still have to go through these situations we find troubling... yet remembering God's promises keeps our mind focused and we remain positive and hopeful. We read in Isaiah 43:2, "When you pass through the waters I will be with you; and through the rivers they shall not overwhelm you."

Your Heavenly Father understands your temptations. The Bible assures us... "Let us then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy..." (Hebrews 4:16)

Would you like to know more of God's promise? Visit your chosen House of worship this Sabbath. Your Creator waits there for you. Whatever your need, He will supply it. (Philippians 4:19) Just ask Him.

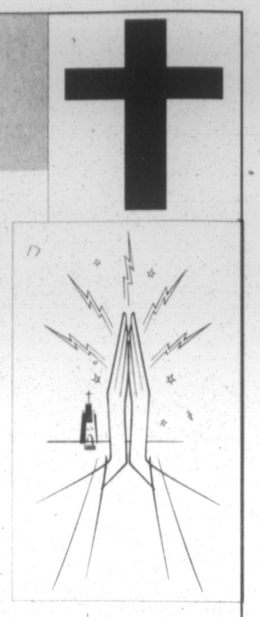
The Power of Prayer



There is widespread opinion that prayer is unnecessary because God knows perfectly well what we need, and He has foreordained the course of events from the beginning of time. From this point of view, our prayers would appear unnecessary since God already knows what is in our hearts and minds, which makes perfect sense if we consider that God is omniscient, omnipotent and all-good. This is looking at prayer from the objective side, as if the object of prayer is to inform and persuade God, which is highly dubious. But, what if we look at prayer from the subjective side, from the perspective of the praying subject? In that case, we see that prayer is an expression of one's inward disposition. Sometimes we are disposed to ask for God's help, and at other times we are moved to praise God or thank Him. In all of these cases, the real power of prayer comes from its expressive power; that is, its power to express what we are thinking and feeling. Heartfelt prayer is essential to convey our love and appreciation to God. But what is equally important is its effect on the person who prays. Genuine prayer instills in one a devout and Godly disposition, and seen in that light, perhaps the best prayer is the self-fulfilling prayer that asks simply to grow in holiness and the love of God.

Rejoice always, pray constantly, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you. R.S.V. 1 Thessalonians 5:16-17

Peppermint Oil May Improve Irritable Bowel Syndrome

Irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) is an uncomfortable and sometimes painful con-dition that can affect people of all ages. There are almost no drugs that are effective and approved for use in treatment of IBS in children.

A study of youngsters ages 8 to 17 years, showed that peppermint oil capsules safely and effectively relieved many symptoms of IBS including bloating, severe cramping, and cycles of both diarrhea and consti-pation.

The research showed that the pepper-mint oil capsules did not affect heartburn, gas, urgency of stools, belching, or stool consistency. Researchers indicate that more studies are needed before peppermint oil can be recommended to children with IBS.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Think the contact lens is a modern invention? Think again. The idea was proposed all the way back in 1827, and it was first used 60 years later, in 1887.

• With distances of 7,000 miles in one year recorded, the leatherback turtle is the widest-roaming of the marine turtles. It's also the deepest-diving, going to depths of up to 3,000 feet.

• It was once thought that flying at very high speeds in an airplane would cure deafness.

• Robert Brecheen was an inmate on death row in Oklahoma when he attempted suicide by taking an overdose of sedatives. He was rushed to the hospital, where he had his stomach pumped and recovered nicely. After he was returned to the prison, he was executed by lethal injection. The director of the State Department of Corrections acknowledged, "Certainly, there's irony." The husband of the woman Brecheen murdered said, "It wasn't his job to take his life."

• Pinball machines originally gave cash prizes.

• Damon Runyon once said, "I do not approve of guys using false pretenses on dolls, except, of course, when nothing else will do."

• The first recorded ambulance service was in Florence, Italy — in the year 1240.

• Ever wonder where we got the term "teetotaler" to describe someone who abstains from drinking alcoholic beverages? It originated in England in the early 1800s, during the temperance movement. They were considered to be "totally" dry, and were often religious in their fervor. To emphasize their passion for abstinence from alcohol, the term "T-totaller" was coined. When the term was used in publications, it was spelled out as "teetotaler."

• In ancient Greece, heroes were often crowned with parsley.

Don't be Fooled

Q. I purchased several pieces of Delft pottery at a yard sale. I was assured that they were quite old, but I'm beginning to have my doubts. — Susan, Clearwater, Fla.

A. Delft was first made in Italy during the 15th century and is a type of pottery named for the Dutch city of Delft, where most of the later production originated. Delft has traditionally been a term to describe earthenware coated with a white tin glaze and hand decorated with blue designs. Separating the old from the new is fairly simple.

According to the Guide to Fakes and Reproductions by Mark Chervenka (Krause Publications, $24.99), any mark that includes the word "Delfts" with an "s" is new, probably no more than 30 or 40 years old. All older pieces have hand-painted decoration with obvious brush strokes. Imitations or fakes generally feature transfer-decorated designs.

If you suspect that a piece of Delft is a reproduction or later copy, it probably is, since fakes have become rather commonplace, often surfacing at both antique shows and sales.

Urinary Tract Infections

Q. I read your column about the 9-year-old cat that stopped using his litter box. Given the age of the cat, my first thought would be a urinary tract infection, which males are very prone to if their diet is mostly dry food (and, like most cats, they don't take in enough fluid). Altering their bathroom habits is usually the first sign of discomfort. Please let your readers know about this possibility. — C.J.B., Kamloops, British Columbia

A. Thank you for putting the word out! Urinary tract infections are a possibility for all pets, including male cats (who also are prone to developing stones that block the urethra).

Symptoms of an infection include accidents around the house, or a bad smell to the urine. Your pet may cry or strain while urinating, indicating difficulty or discomfort with the process. Veterinary tests may reveal blood in the urine.

Vets routinely treat urinary tract infections with antibiotics, but you can work to prevent this problem, too. Always have clean water available for your pet. Try to increase his or her fluid intake by giving moist foods or adding a bit of water or chicken broth to dry food. Give pets several opportunities during the day to urinate, especially when recovering from an infection.

If you suspect a urinary tract infection in your pet, take him or her to the vet right away. Untreated, the infection could spread up through the urethra to the kidneys, causing more problems, including life-threatening illness.

HAGERSTOWN — The kindergarteners at Conococheague Elementary School gaze at their teacher during attendance, oblivious that his shirt and tie, short dark hair, and deep voice are not the normal attributes of a kindergarten instructor.

To them, Michael Pavlik, who enjoys impromptu outbursts of song during lessons, is simply the teacher who demonstrates how to make a proper letter "V" or directs them to pick up puzzle pieces scattered on a multicolored carpet. But some adults pause when they see a middle-aged man teaching 5-year-olds. "All the storybooks have cute, little, petite women that are going to be in charge. . . . Then they see me," said Pavlik, the only male kindergarten teacher in Washington County.

Teachers like Pavlik — men who teach elementary school — are still an anomaly, despite efforts to recruit more men into the classroom. Nationally, only about 22 percent of elementary school teachers are men, according to the National Education Association. In Maryland, just 10 percent of elementary school teachers were men in 2002, state officials say.

The numbers lag even though male early education teachers, especially minority men, are in greater demand than ever, as the number of children from single-mother and minority households increases. Yet, according to the Maryland State Department of Education, Maryland colleges graduated only 18 men certified in early childhood education — pre-kindergarten through third grade — in 2002.

Not much has changed since Pavlik's first days on the job 30 years ago. He began his career in 1973 in West Virginia as his school's only male kindergarten teacher, a fact that attracted the media. Some of his colleagues were "put off" by the ruckus the media created simply because he was male.

At Conococheague, the staff is not fazed that a man teaches kindergarten, but "sometimes I feel like I'm intruding on a sorority," Pavlik said. The only other male teacher at the school teaches in the gifted and talented program.

Parents and advocates are pushing for more people like Pavlik because they say it lets children develop positive relationships with men before they reach middle and high school, the typical places where male educators take jobs. Alan Simpson of the National Association for the Education of Young Children said men like Pavlik are important not because their teaching styles differ from women's, but because children, especially those without male adults in their lives, learn to unconsciously associate men with learning.

"There a lot of children today who will benefit from a male role model in their lives," Simpson said. "It can be a . . . very encouraging experience for children."

Male teachers also show children that not all men fit the negative depictions in the media, said Bryan G. Nelson, director of MenTeach, a Minnesota-based advocacy group dedicated to increasing the number of male teachers in elementary schools. He said young children need to see men "nurturing, caring, and solving problems with words," not violence and weapons.

But getting men in the classroom is tough. While the profession is working to shake its female image through recruitment and scholarships, low salaries and stereotypes about the job continue to make men shun the career.

"Men are avoiding teaching because that's seen as a woman's work," said Nelson, who, at 6-3, gets a mixed reaction when he tells people he has changed diapers and taught toddlers. "We have women creating a new dynamic about who they are. I think boys and men are trying to figure out what our role is now."

Donna Wiseman, associate dean for teacher education at the University of Maryland, College Park, said it is even harder to attract and retain minority men. Elementary schools are becoming more diverse, she said, but the teaching population is not.

At College Park, men account for just 203 of 1,100 students preparing to be teachers, about 18 percent of the class, Wiseman said. The number is smaller still for men who are pursuing early childhood education. In 2002, men of all races represented only 3.4 percent of the state's early childhood hires, according to the Maryland State Teachers Association.

"They're honestly treated like kings because everyone's so excited to see them there," Wiseman said. "If I had a group of African-American elementary men teachers, it would be amazing. I think more men would do it if there were models. It's sort of a catch-22."

Pavlik said he is uncertain if some of his students consider him a male role model. "I think of a couple instances early on, when I was young and single, that kids were looking at me that way," he said. Pavlik said he chose kindergarten because young children enjoy learning. He feels at home while reading or writing with the kids, and the kids are comfortable, too. If men want to be "where teaching happens," he said, kindergarten is the place to be.

"For some reason, creation decided we needed two parents," Pavlik said. "Whether men have abdicated their role (in education) or lost it, I'd like to see them take it back."

Long Term Care Seminar To Cover Options, Insurance

"Two Sides of Long Term Care," a free seminar, is slated for 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 23, in the Community Services Center of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The two-hour event is open to the public, and refreshments will be served. No registration is necessary.

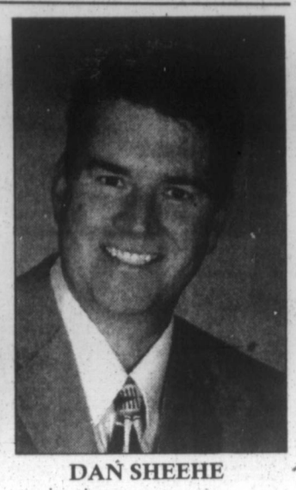
The seminar will feature a discussion of options now available through long term health care insurance as well as the services available through the Hospice organization.

The speakers' list includes Gonder Insurance consultant Mark Gage, First United Corporation executive Dan Sheehe, and Hospice of Garrett County Clinical Services director Charee Reckner.

Gage is an independent consultant who has managed a brokerage operation with over 30 insurance agencies located throughout Maryland, including Gonder Insurance. He has specialized in long term care coverage for the past 17 years.

Sheehe recently joined First United as a life and health executive for Gonder Insurance. He is licensed in Maryland, West Virginia, and Virginia.

MARK GAGE



DAN SHEEHE

CHAREE RECKNER

Reckner has over 20 years of experience, both in the clinical setting as a registered nurse and in an administrative capacity in supervisory positions with a number of healthcare organizations.

The seminar is sponsored by the GCMH Foundation's Planned Gifts Committee, and committee members who will host the event will include Cristine Kepple Sweitzer of Eiswert, Janes, and Sweitzer, P.A.; Ellen Kesselring; Carissa Rodeheaver and Eugene D. Helbig Jr. of First United Trust Department; and James M. Murray of Rodeheaver and Associates.

St. Paul's Will Serve Spaghetti

A spaghetti dinner will be served by St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident, on Saturday, Oct. 25, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Accident fire hall. The menu will include spaghetti, salad, garlic bread, dessert, and beverage. Take-out orders will be available.

The cost of the meal is $5 for adults and $3 for children under 12. All proceeds will benefit St. Paul's Old Cemetery Fund. The cemetery is the former Accident town cemetery. Thrivent Financial for Lutherans will provide matching funds.

Drunk Driver's Victim To Speak At Frostburg St.

"Ten Seconds Can Change Your Life Forever" is the message brought by Bobby Petrocelli, who will speak at Frostburg State University at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 21, in the Alice R. Manicur Assembly Hall in Lane University Center.

Petrocelli will share his personal and true story about how his life was turned upside down in one night. One night he went to bed a "happy, fulfilled man," but woke up dazed and injured sitting in his dining room window staring up at a pickup truck. The truck, driven by a man whose blood alcohol level was twice the legal limit, had crashed through the wall of his bedroom traveling over 70 miles per hour, killing Petrocelli's wife and changing his life forever.

The Brooklyn, N.Y., native is one of the most sought-after speakers in the country with his message that "10 seconds is all it takes to change a life forever." He is making his eighth trip to FSU. A former teacher and coach, he uses his high energy to empower and motivate all ages and walks of life with his humor and message.

Petrocelli's presentation is free and open to the public. It is sponsored by Western Maryland Regional Safe Communities Center and BURG Peer Education Network. For more information, persons may contact Jennifer Drees at 301-687-7962.

GC Invites Kids To Halloween Haunted House

Halloween will bring a two-day celebration to the Garrett College campus this year, according to director of student activities Tim Foster, with one of the planned events set to include area children who will have an opportunity to tour a "Haunted House" while at the same time benefiting the House of Hope.

The GC Student Center will be transformed into a haunted house, complete with witches and goblins, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 30. All children of the community are invited to attend, Foster said.

No admission will be charged, but participants are asked to bring canned goods for the House of Hope. Treats will be handed out after the children have taken a tour led by members of the Student Government Association and the Garrett Hall Residence Council, who are sponsoring the event.

A pumpkin carving contest is slated for earlier the same afternoon in the Laker's Café, where Garrett College students will try their hands at making funny and scary pumpkin faces. These jack-o-lanterns will then be displayed at that evening's Haunted House and at the Halloween dance for college students in the gymnasium, set for Friday, October 31. Sponsored by the Residence Hall Council, the dance will feature a disc jockey and refreshments. The event is open to Garrett students and their guests.

KITZMILLER'S YARD OF THE MONTH FOR SEPTEMBER – Rev. and Mrs. Sam Calhoun were last month's recipient of Kitzmiller's Yard of the Month Award. Pictured is Mayor Jim Browning, right, congratulating Rev. Calhoun. Selections for this honor are based upon nominations from town residents. Mrs. Calhoun, not pictured, was given credit for having the "green thumb" in the family. On behalf of the town, Browning presented the couple with a $25 gift certificate to Green Acres Garden Center. The October yard selection will be the last one for the 2003 season. The mayor extended his thanks to all of this year's participants.

Child Abusers Face Stiffer Penalties, But Children's Advocates Want More

by Angie Mason
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — A new Maryland law may keep convicted child abusers in jail up to 10 years longer, but child advocates insist that to better protect children, failing to report possible abuse should be a crime. "If you're going to commit the most horrific offenses to children that you can think of, then you're going to pay the price," said Sen. James Brochin, (D-Baltimore County), Senate sponsor of the new law.

Child abusers may now be convicted of the crime in the first and second degree, with a maximum 25-year penalty for the greater first-degree offense, 10 years longer than under previous statutes. Sponsors of the law, which was effective Oct. 1, say it ensures harsher punishments in severe cases. A second-degree offense still carries a maximum term of 15 years.

"It mirrors the rest of the assault charges on the books," since adult assault charges are treated in degrees, said Sue Hazlett, Baltimore County's assistant state's attorney. First-degree child abuse includes starvation, brain injury or bleeding within the skull, and injuries that cause serious disfigurement or impairment or create a risk of death. Hazlett said the law emerged because of increasing numbers of severe abuse cases.

For instance, "shaken-baby" cases, which can cause serious brain injuries to a child, have been increasing, she said. But from a criminal standpoint, the penalty for those cases would be the same as less severe cases.

"It's so on a different end of the spectrum than a child who has marks on his buttocks from a belt. We're talking about a child whose development has been arrested," Hazlett said. "It seemed time to change the law to reflect what we were seeing."

The law also raises the maximum penalty for sexual abuse of a minor from 15 years to 25 years. Still, child advocates contend Maryland also needs penalties for failure to report suspected abuse.

But penalties for failing to report child abuse are either nonexistent or so lenient that offenders might not even be punished, said Jim McComb of the Maryland Association of Resources for Family and Youth, which, along with the Coalition to Protect Maryland's Children, supported the criminal law.

"We want reasonable penalties [for failure to report]. . . We don't want anyone exempt," McComb said. "There are tens of thousands of kids victimized whose victimization is hidden . . . then the perpetrator is free to continue."

Two bills sponsored by Sen. Delores Kelley, (D-Baltimore County), aimed at cracking down on reporting abuse, failed to win approval last spring. One would have established failure to report as a misdemeanor with a possible $1,000 fine for those professionals - health practitioners, police officers, educators and human services workers - required to report suspected abuse and neglect.

"There's no sanction in the law if they don't do anything," Kelley said. Professional organizations, like licensing boards for doctors, can discipline workers who fail to report, but no one has ever been sanctioned, she said. If they don't report, "it's a big 'So what?'" Hazlett said. She'd like to see criminal and civil penalties, maybe even including 30 or 60 days of jail time.

Maryland is one of four states that does not criminalize the failure to report suspected abuse or neglect, according to the National Clearinghouse on Child Abuse and Neglect. "It sort of says we don't value children if there's no penalty," Kelley said.

Kelley's other bill would have changed the provision that exempts members of the clergy from reporting. Her bill would require clergy to report suspicions if they were acquired while they were acting in the role of a mandatory reporter, such as a counselor or teacher, or heard of suspected abuse from a third party.

A controversial part of the bill would have required clergy who learned of any suspected child abuse in the confessional to report it, unless it was an admission from a perpetrator. "I think the best interests of the child ought to come before the best interests of anybody else," Kelley said.

She plans to reintroduce both bills again in January, minus the confessional provision. Brochin plans to return in the spring with a proposal to have child abuse in the first degree considered a violent offense.

SGCRWC Hosts National Favorite Teacher Nominee

The Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club recognized local teacher Jodi Nichols, who recently finished in the top five in national competition for the My Favorite Teacher Award, during a club reception held in her honor.

A fifth grade teacher at Broad Ford Elementary School, Nichols had been nominated for the My Favorite Teacher Award by the SGCRWC. She won both the regional and state competitions, then took part in the national event recently in Salt Lake City. The My Favorite Teacher competition was sponsored by the National Federation of Republican Women.

Nichols was the featured guest speaker at local SGCRWC reception, which was attended by approximately 25 club members and guests. She shared a sampling of her teaching techniques, including methods she developed for increasing parental involvement in students' education, creating a classroom environment where students participate in decisions that guide group learning projects (such as county political elections), and volunteer activities that include a focus on children's issues.

Nichols has received recognition from Del. George Edwards and the Garrett County Board of Commissioners.

She is the daughter of Wayne and Judy Wilt of Oakland.

GOP WOMEN RECOGNIZE NICHOLS – Broad Ford Elementary School teacher Jodi Nichols was honored during a recent reception sponsored by the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club. The club had nominated Nichols for the My Favorite Teacher Award, and she recently advanced to the national competition where she was among the top five honorees. Nichols is shown being congratulated by Maryland Undersecretary for Education Dr. Eugene Hikock. See story.

Student Teaching Internships To Be Reviewed By State

The Maryland State Department of Education and the Maryland Higher Education Commission will study the effectiveness of Professional Development Schools – the student teaching component of teacher education programs.

Each of Maryland's 22 campuses that offer a major in teacher education will be studied to determine if the internships are a priority for the campus, whether they are an integral part of Maryland's teacher preparation programs, and whether the Professional Development Schools' budgets are adequate.

The new study revisits the recommendations of a teacher education task force report that called for the redesign and restructuring of teacher education programs in Maryland. The 1995 report, addressing Professional Development Schools, called for, among other things, an increase in the length of student teaching internships and stronger partnerships between colleges and K-12 schools. The assessment will determine if those goals have been met.

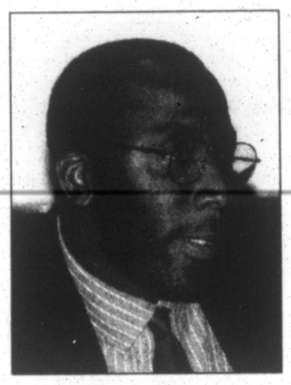
"How well a teacher is prepared for the classroom directly affects how well his or her students learn," said Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick. "We have to be confident that our colleges and universities excel in training prospective teachers, that the training relies heavily on real experiences in K-12 classrooms, and that there's a strong link between what prospective teachers are teaching students and what they, themselves, are taught."

Acting Higher Education Secretary Dr. John A. Sabatini Jr. echoed Dr. Grasmick's sentiments.

"We expect to find that our colleges and universities are doing a good job of helping students make the transition from higher education to the teaching workforce, but we need to know for certain. In the end, we want parents to know that they have placed their student in the hands of a highly qualified and capable educator. We hope the findings show us that we are on the right track."

The study is expected to be completed spring 2004.

GC Program To Focus On Value Of Fatherhood



RON CLARK

A two-part program on the value of fatherhood and how men can be better fathers will be presented by Ron Clark, director of the Virginia Fatherhood Campaign, at Garrett College on Friday, Oct. 24. The event will open at 9 a.m. with a three-hour workshop facilitated by Clark, who will also deliver a keynote address at 7 p.m. that evening in the college auditorium.

Over the past 10 years Clark has developed and implemented initiatives targeting fathers and families. The Virginia Fatherhood Campaign is designed to "help dads walk on Wall Street as well as Sesame Street, to be an emotional as well as an economic resource for their children," Clark said.

"Fathers need to understand that their roles in their families are very important. Fathers are not just nice to have around, but are very necessary in the lives of their kids. Kids really need their dads, and when a dad is not there a piece of that child is gone. Children need both their mothers and their fathers – mothers cannot be replaced by nannies , and fathers cannot be replaced by mentors or big brothers."

Clark has received numerous special awards and political appointments. Experienced as a consultant to several private and public youth and family agencies across the nation, he is regularly called upon to write and speak about the important issue of fatherhood.

The Hampton, Va., resident is married and the father of two sons.

The program is sponsored by the Garrett County Community Action Committee Head Start/Early Head Start Fatherhood Initiative. For more information, persons may call the Fatherhood Initiative at 301-334-9431, ext. 128, or toll free at 888-877-8403.

Charges Pending By GCSO In Mtn. Lake Park Fight

More charges are pending and the investigation is continuing regarding a fight at 604 K Street in Mtn. Lake Park Tuesday around 9:30 p.m., according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

William Janoske, 19, Swanton, and Adam Vance, 18, Swanton, were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. Janoske was also charged with second-degree assault when he reportedly struck another individual at the scene, police said.

CIVIC CLUB PRESENTS CHECK – The Junior Woman's Civic Club recently presented a $200 check to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation. This donation was the second payment on a $600 pledge made earlier this year by the club to the foundation's Capital Campaign. The money will be used to help fund the new construction/renovation project currently under way. A foundation spokesperson expressed his appreciation to the members of the club for their support of this project, as well as past endeavors. The club's cumulative gift total to the foundation is now $1,800. Pictured, left to right, are Sandra Zakaluzny of the Junior Woman's Civic Club presenting the check to Wayne Johnson, vice chairman of the GCMH Foundation.

Shortfalls Drive Maryland Budget Gap Into The $1 Billion Range

by Alyson Klein
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Maryland is spending about $200 million more than it anticipated at this time in a number of key areas, particularly mental hygiene and Medicaid, legislative analysts told lawmakers Tuesday. That's covered by an unexpected windfall of $330 million from the federal government and $200 million worth of cuts made by the Board of Public Works this summer, but that won't be the case when the state begins to write its new budget in January.

If spending in those programs remains the same, it could push the state's expected budget deficit to $1 billion for the next fiscal year – the previous $800 million, plus the $200 million in new expenses that will no longer be covered by the one-time fixes.

The briefing by the legislative Office of Policy Analysis was the first of two sessions designed to help lawmakers determine how much the current budget of $22.4 billion can increase during the next fiscal year.

"As we look forward, the federal money won't be there, but these deficiencies will," said Warren Deschenaux, director of the Office of Policy Analysis. "That combined with a big built-in increase for education is going to make things tougher in 2005."

Deschenaux referred to the projected $365 million needed to fund the Thornton education initiative this year, which increases spending for public schools statewide. During the next legislative session, lawmakers will have to decide how much of that amount can be realistically budgeted, given that Medicaid and the state children's health program are now $97 million more for 2003, mental health is nearly $63 million more and child care subsidies are nearly $10 million more.

"It is not unexpected; we have been looking at this for quite a while," said Delegate Anne Healey, D-Prince George's. "It is always a problem when there is a downturn in the economy. We need more unemployment benefits, health care costs increase, and people need more services."

Damage from Hurricane Isabel further complicated matters, although estimates are not in yet for Maryland's total cost.

"There were already deficiencies, and then there was the hurricane," Deschenaux said.

Despite the shortfalls, Deschenaux said it is unlikely the governor will decide to revise this year's budget. He suspects that there may even be a surplus at the end of the year because of the federal bail-out money and a lower-than-anticipated revenue shortfall.

"We shouldn't need to do anything dramatic this year," he said. Although this meeting was geared toward discussion of the status of the state's general fund, the next meeting, scheduled for Nov. 12, will examine the condition of current funding for higher education and the Transportation Trust Fund – both of which were targeted to help balance this year's budget.

"That is what we have been hearing in terms of these shortfalls," said Sen. J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset. "It is going to be a very tough couple of years until the economy bounces back."

The Office of the Garrett County Board of Elections will be closed October 20, 21, and 22 as staff will be attending a biennial conference in Ocean City, MD. The office will resume regular business hours on Thursday, October 23.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Harvest Time Is Also Show Time In Growing 'Agri-tainment' Field

by Sofia Kosmetatos
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Lynn, Guy, and Femby Moore grew up watching their father struggle financially, at the mercy of wholesale prices he had no power to change.

First, their father had a dairy operation on their farm in Howard County. Then he grew soybeans, grain, hay, and turf. Then he switched to fruit and vegetable farming. "No matter how hard he worked or what he did he had no control over income," said Lynn Moore. "He wanted more freedom with what he grew."

In 1972, the family ventured into pick-your-own with one acre of strawberries. It drew an extraordinary response. "It was like 'oh-my-goodness.' This is feasible. This will work," said Moore, who now runs the Larriland Farm with her two brothers.

The Moores' farm is one of many in the state that has added pick-your-own crops, direct-to-consumer markets and increasingly popular "agri-tainment" options such as hay rides and mazes to make ends meet while many traditional farmers struggle. "These are very astute business techniques" for farmers, who are dealing with the pressures of higher production costs, said Ginger Myers, agricultural development specialist with the Howard County Economic Development Authority.

Such farms have adapted their business to attract customers like the Whitneys of Silver Spring. The threat of rain and a biting wind did not stop the Whitney family from going apple picking at Larriland Farm on a recent Saturday. "We come here every year," said Marilyn Whitney, as she picked deep red empires with her daughter Colette, 10. "We look forward to it every fall. They love it. I love it. That's what fall is about."

The Whitneys were one of just a few families in the Larriland Farm orchard late in the day – an unusually small crowd considering that other, sunny weekends draw hundreds of visitors to the farm in the pumpkin and apple season. This is the high season for most pick-your-own farms, but opportunities spread across the year, from strawberries in May to Christmas trees in December.

In the 1970s, pick-your-own farming boomed in Maryland, according to Steve Weber, past president of the Maryland Direct Farm Market Association and owner of Weber's Cider Mill Farm in Baltimore County. Myers concurred, explaining that pick-your-own started, in part, as a less-labor-intensive way for farmers to get ripe fruits and vegetables harvested. For customers, it was an inexpensive way to get large quantities of produce and fruits and vegetables to can or freeze.

"That doesn't happen any more," said Weber. At his market, he now sees many more customers who buy much smaller quantities and snatch up prepared foods as opposed to cooking at home. The state does not gather information on this segment of the agricultural industry, although it might in the future, said state statistician Norman Bennett, who added that his personal guess is that there are more now than there used to be.

Weber believes that the number of pick-your-own farms actually fell from a high of about 120 in the 1970s to about 60 in 2003. But Myers contends that Weber's number does not include many small seasonal farms and secondary operations of larger farms, or operations like flower-cutting farms. "My contention is that there are a lot of smaller ones out there," said Myers. "There's more here (in Howard County) than there were 20 years ago."

Marilyn Whitney would agree. She said she saw four signs for pick-your-own places driving up Georgia Avenue on the way to Larriland Farm. They were not there when she was a child, she said, when "Butler's Orchard was the only place to go."

Now, there are not only more places to go but more things to do down on the farm. At Larriland Farm, the Moores offer a tour of the Boo Barn, toddler and children's mazes and hay rides – at prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.75 – in addition to retail items and, of course, pick-your-own fruits, and vegetables.

Whereas standard farming "would barely support one income," said Lynn Moore, Larriland makes three. She concedes that she and her brothers don't make much, "but we're still here and the bills are paid."

NHS FFA TEAM STATE WINNERS RECOGNIZED – The Northern High School FFA team, which won at the state level recently, was recognized by the Garrett County Board of Education at the recent monthly meeting. The Livestock Team won first place and will compete at the national level in Louisville, Ky., later this month. The members also placed in the top 10% of the state as individuals. This team had to judge swine, sheep, and beef. The Agronomy Team also won second place at the state competition. This team had to identify crops, plants, insects, seeds, and soil. Pictured above, from the left, are superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets, Livestock team members Bridgette Welch and Becky Berkebile, adviser Ann Ellis, team members Lacie Berkebile and Tracy Bowman, adviser Larry Deal, and Charlotte Sebold, school board president. In the bottom photo are the members of the Agronomy Team. Pictured are Teets, Lacie Berkebile (who also placed 3rd individually in the state), Deal, Tracy Bowman (who placed 12th individually), Randi Rodeheaver, and Sebold. Team member Kim Bowser was absent.

Dry Conditions Boost Harvest Of Corn, Hay

Weather conditions the last several days have been picture perfect for harvesting corn or making hay. There were 6.1 days suitable for field work for the week ending October 12. Air temperatures were in the 70s for highs and the 50s for lows. Bright sunny skies and no measurable precipitation have allowed for farmers to rapidly increase their harvest progress for corn, make good quality hay, plant small grains, and prepare fields or farm equipment for the upcoming winter.

Corn for grain harvest is more than 50 percent complete, and corn chopped for silage is 75 percent complete. Corn harvest should wrap up in the next two weeks. A few full-season soybean fields are being harvested. Most of the soybean crop is turning color and dropping leaves. A fourth cutting of alfalfa hay is 54 percent complete, 31 percent behind last year and 30 percent behind the five-year average. Some farmers are starting a fifth cutting of alfalfa hay. Other hay is more than 55 percent complete. Hay supplies are rated 61 percent adequate, 26 percent short, and 13 percent very short. Pasture is in fair to good condition.

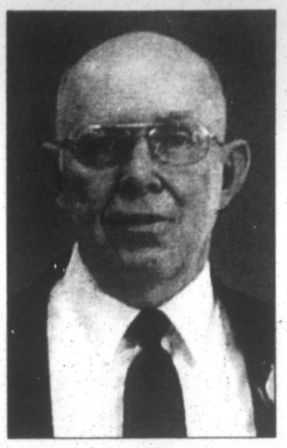
Metheny Retires After 44 Years Of Bank Service



An open house will be held on Sunday, Oct. 26, from 2 to 4 p.m. at Alpine Lake Resort for Howard Metheny, who has served The Terra Alta Bank for 44 years.

In his tenure with the bank, Metheny has gone from teller to bookkeeper to assistant cashier to executive vice president to president. He said what started out as a visit to the bank when he was 17 ended with a job.

A football injury which led to cancer and a leg amputation ended his plans of entering the army. He said he started studying aviation as a second choice and was taking a home study course when a teller from the bank, whom he had known for quite some time, asked him to stop by the bank for a talk. That "talk" led to his employment of 44 years.

"This opportunity came at the right time, and has been a good challenge and a good life for me," he said. "It has been a very enjoyable 44 years, and that is primarily because of the customers."

He added that the bank's board of directors and employees have also made it an enjoyable experience.

Metheny had moved to Terra Alta in 1956, and he and his wife Barbara raised a son and daughter there.

"I have always enjoyed my years at the bank," he said. "I especially like helping someone buy their first house or their first car."

He added that he thinks the Terra Alta Bank has a very low turnover in employees because of the opportunities the bank offers, the benefits, and the quality of good customers.

In addition to his service to the bank and the bank's board of directors, he was the mayor of Terra Alta for 12 years and has served on the Terra Alta Library board for 29 years.

Although Metheny said he has enjoyed his four plus decades at the bank, he looks forward to hunting, fishing, and spending time with his three grandchildren.

The public is invited to attend this open house.

University System Board Committee Approves Tuition Increase – Again

by Lydia X. McCoy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Tuition at Maryland's public universities may rise by an average of 10 percent next school year, after the hikes won approval last Thursday from the finance committee of University System of Maryland Board of Regents.

Regents are trying to make tuition accessible and affordable for citizens of Maryland, said David Nevins, regent finance chair.

"The goal is to figure out a way to fund our institutions at a level that provides considerable excellence and quality and still allow Maryland families to afford to send their kids to public institutions of higher education in Maryland," Nevins said later. "I hope we've moved toward achieving that today."

The tuition increase would range from 2 percent at the University of Maryland University College to 11 percent at the University of Maryland, College Park. The final vote on the recommendations will be Oct. 17.

Although the recommendation was passed, there was some opposition among the regents.

Student Regent Philip Shockley voted against the recommendation, saying it's a dangerous precedent to approve another double-digit tuition hike on top of last year's 20 percent increase. Many students are hurt by tuition increases because they are paying for college themselves, he said.

"Students are seriously concerned," said Shockley, who attends the University of Maryland, Baltimore County. "I think people still think that parents pay for tuition ... but there are a lot who don't. The middle ground's not there."

Regents raised tuition as much as 21 percent for the 2003-2004 school year over the previous fall's advertised rates, after funding cuts of $120 million, according to published reports. At the system's flagship College Park campus, that increase took in-state tuition to $6,759, up from the $5,670 quoted the previous fall.

Regent Richard Hug defended his tuition ideas at the meeting. The Washington Post reported Oct. 4 that Hug wanted to double tuition at public colleges and universities. Hug said his idea is to triple financial aid over the next six years to help out middle-income students, including teachers and firefighters who are frozen out because they make too much money.

"With the state's constrained financial resources, I think it's highly improbable that we'll get additional state support for financial aid," Hug said. "If we can, it's wonderful. But if we can't, then we have to look at other sources, and one of the sources is tuition."

Doubling tuition would accomplish his goal, Hug said, raising the average tuition $4,400 across the system to about $9,000.

"It's an idea and I want to open a debate, because it's one of the most important, challenging things facing the university, not only here in Maryland but across the nation," Hug said. "We, as regents, have a responsibility to debate it, examine it, discuss it, and come up with an action plan."

But some regents didn't support Hug's plan.

"Doubling [tuition] is the wrong way to go," Regent Jim Rosapepe said. "This will make it harder for the average student to go to school."

Rosapepe proposed that the board advise the governor and the Maryland General Assembly what to do about raising tuition in the state.

"The governor and the legislature simply have to make an investment in the future of our state, an investment in higher education," Rosapepe said in a later interview. "That's what we have to do; it's totally affordable. The idea that we can't afford it is ridiculous."

The American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, representing students and staff at the meeting, said the board has made some bad choices in responding to increases.

"There are alternatives," said Joe Lawrence, AFSCME spokesman. "We need to find money to help tuition ... and people's jobs."

The finance committee also approved setting the system budget at $3.2 billion for the 2005 fiscal year and asking for $60 million from the governor.

Real Estate Facts by...

TIME TO GET STARTED!

Today's super-low mortgage interest rates are offsetting higher home prices, making this an excellent time to buy your first home. The day you purchase a home, you begin building up valuable equity. Equity helps you establish credit and financial freedom. Of course, you can't put a price on the value of "pride of ownership," not to mention the feeling of security you get from home ownership.

Recently homeownership in this country has increased to a record 68%+! This means more people are finding the American Dream affordable. Even though mortgage rates will likely begin to slowly climb, home prices usually decline in response. Either way, you benefit when you buy now, build equity, and eventually "trade up" to a larger home.

Consider that a recent index shows that a typical first-time buyer household – aged 25 to 44, with an income of $30,078 – had over 83% of the income needed to purchase a typical starter home with a ten percent down payment! In addition to helping you find your dream home, a real estate agent can help "pre-approve" you for a loan, insuring sellers will take your offer very seriously.

The most important thing is to contact an agent now, because the sooner you trade in your rent check for a mortgage payment, the sooner you start building equity and security for the future.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

Many Projects Under Way At Public Utilities

Director Mark Tonkovich, Public Utilities, updated the Garrett County commissioners this week on the numerous capital projects that his department is overseeing. The director said all of the projects were important, and presented them in no particular order.

The department is currently developing a scope of work for the Table Rock water extension project. Tonkovich said 35 households in the Table Rock area have already signed a petition requesting water service.

His department is looking into extending the water line 1,800 more feet along Table Rock Road, past Fairview Church Road, to the intersection of Wilson-Corona Road. The director noted that there were at least nine households along the Wilson-Corona Road that were also having water problems.

A funding request for the project was submitted to the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 2002. Tonkovich said USDA officials indicated that grant funding may still be available for the project, and he will pursue the issue further.

Public Utilities also wants to expand the Keyser's Ridge water system to include Northern High School. The school has sporadic problems, with both the quantity and quality of water, during dry weather, noted the director.

The department has earmarked the remaining $300,000 left from the Keyser's Ridge water project to extend the line as far south as possible along Rt. 219. Staff members are currently working on design work for extending the line at least part way to the school. Any remaining distance to the facility would have to be considered another project, noted Tonkovich.

Additionally, core drillings for the Keyser's Ridge Sewer Project are underway, and Public Utilities is waiting for the results. Various grants and loans for that project total nearly $2 million, according to the director.

Final design and surveying work is under way for the Deep Creek wastewater treatment plant expansion, and core drillings will begin soon. Tonkovich wants to open construction bids for the project by July 2004. He noted that the plant should be operational at 2.2 million gallons a day by June 2006.

Public Utilities is also working on the McHenry

$1,000,000 LOSS — A fire that was caused by an electrical failure Wednesday morning resulted in an estimated $1 million loss for Rigidply Rafters, an Oakland area business that manufactures wood trusses and other building products. Approximately 100 volunteer firefighters from numerous area fire departments responded to the scene, where it took about two hours to bring the blaze under control. The business was leveled by fire 19 years ago and rebuilt, and company officials say they will rebuild again this time. The business employs approximately 70 people. See story for details. Photo by John McEwen.

Blaze Causes $1 Million In Damages To Rigidply Rafters

An electrical failure in the main electrical service line has been determined as the cause of a fire that caused an estimated $1 million in damages and drew approximately 100 volunteer firefighters to Rigidply Rafters near Oakland Wednesday morning.

Employees of the company arriving for the 7 a.m. shift discovered the fire in the attic of the saw room and contacted the Office of Emergency Management at 6:21 a.m. Fire equipment and personnel from eight local departments were summoned to the scene, and several others were placed on stand-by.

The 11,000-square-foot building which housed the saw room was located between two other buildings, and was engulfed in flames upon the arrival of the first units from the Oakland VFD.

This was the second major fire at the business, as a similar blaze in 1984 leveled the main building. During reconstruction following that fire, the one large building was replaced with three, and a fire wall was built to protect the separate structures.

According to company manager Bernard Orendorf, the firewall was a major factor in firefighters' ability to ultimately bring the blaze under control and keep it from spreading.

Besides the loss of the building, two forklifts and some large saws were destroyed, along with various other equipment, including one of four truss lines. The three other truss lines were damaged.

Orendorf reported that company owners intend to rebuild the plant, and are working now to get a temporary saw moved in. He said that the work schedule has been set back at least two weeks.

"This fall has been busier than usual," he said. "We still have a lot of work to do, but things usually drop off around Thanksgiving."

The company manufactures wood trusses and other products used in building construction, and employs about 70 people.

Orendorf noted his appreciation to all of the firefighters and other officials who addressed the emergency. "We really appreciate them and all of our neighbors who came and tried to help us," he said.

Besides the Oakland VFD, also called to the scene were the Deer Park, Gorman, Deep Creek, Terra Alta, Aurora, Mt. Grove, and Bittinger VFDs, with many of them sending needed water tankers. Sending personnel and units to cover various stations were the Accident VFD to the Oakland fire hall, Kitzmiller VFD to the Deer Park fire hall, and Bayard VFD to the Gorman fire hall.

Also responding to the scene were the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, personnel from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office, and Allegany Power. There were no injuries reported.

New GC Jail May Be Built In Oakland

The new Garrett County detention center may be built at the current site of the county roads garage in Oakland, after a new garage complex is built near Mountain Lake Park.

The county recently purchased property across from the Southern Garrett Business and Technology Park along Rt. 135 and construction of the new garage could begin there as early as next summer.

The Garrett County commissioners recently met with the Oakland town council and Mayor Asa McCain to see if they supported the idea of locating the new detention center at the current roads garage site. The property, located within the town limits, is owned by the county.

The mayor and council members, in general, indicated that they were not opposed to the idea, but pointed out that the final decision was up to the Zoning Appeals Board. Council members noted that the jail would probably create less noise than the roads garage. They also noted that the center could look more appealing than the garage, especially with controlled lighting and landscaping to

Montgomery Co. Man Faces MSP Drug Charges

Maryland State Police troopers filed multiple drug charges against a Montgomery County man after a late morning traffic stop yesterday on Interstate 68 near Grantsville.

Michael R. Stone, 24, Gaithersburg, was charged with possession with intent to distribute cocaine and hydrocodone, and possession of cocaine, hydrocodone, and drug paraphernalia when the suspected contraband was discovered during the 11:20 a.m. stop near the Casselman River bridge.

Stone was a passenger in the car, and the items were found in his travel bag along with a set of digital scales. He was released from the Garrett County Jail last night after he posted a $30,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

In other state police news, John P. Toti, 22, Walpole, Mass., was arrested and charged with driving while under the influence after a traffic stop on Garrett Highway at Friendsville Road early Sunday morning.

GCHD Confirms Eighth Case Of Rabies This Year

The Garrett County Health Department recently reported the eighth case of laboratory confirmed rabies for 2003. This most recent incident occurred on Oct. 16 in the Oakland area of the county, and involved three currently vaccinated dogs and a raccoon.

The property owner discovered that the dogs had killed the raccoon, and he contacted personnel from the Environmental Health Services section of the Garrett County Health Department. The raccoon was sent to the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Rabies Laboratory in Baltimore on Oct. 20, with positive rabies results being reported to GCHD personnel on Oct. 21.

The three dogs involved were currently vaccinated and were revaccinated against rabies. They will be closely observed for the next 45 days. There was no human contact in this incident.

The public is reminded of the importance of not handling their pets for at least two hours after contact with a wild animal. The rabies virus is transmitted through the saliva of the affected

Garrett Holds Tide On Tuition Hikes Flooding Across State

Although college tuition rates are being raised throughout the rest of the state, Garrett College president Dr. Steve Herman announced this week that the hikes will have no bearing on tuition rates at Garrett College. "Garrett is absolutely committed to giving students a first class education at an affordable cost," said Herman. "The college has no plans to increase tuition for the spring 2004 semester. We are committed to keeping tuition increases to an absolute minimum so that all the citizens of Garrett County can continue to access a higher education."

Recent newspaper accounts have noted that the University System of Maryland has sustained a 20 percent tuition increase this academic year. This week the Board of Regents of the University System of Maryland announced an additional 9.4 percent increase to become effective in the upcoming academic year. As a consequence of these changes and announcements, many Garrett County citizens might fear that a higher education is becoming unaffordable for them, noted GC's president.

"Like other Maryland colleges, Garrett has suffered and continues to suffer state funding cuts," Herman stated. "However, it remains dedicated to giving students a quality education at the lowest possible cost."

In-county residents can expect to attend Garrett College at a cost of $76 per credit hour, which equates to $912 for tuition for a student carrying a full load of 12 credit hours per semester. A similar student attending a nearby state university can expect to pay $150 per credit hour or $2,158 for tuition per semester.

"With the rising cost of attending four-year colleges or universities throughout the state, Garrett College is affordable," stated GC's director of financial aid Patricia Bennett. "Students can attend without accruing unnecessary student loan debt."

Statistics show that throughout Maryland many more students are choosing community colleges for their first higher education experience. Recent data indicated that 62 percent of Maryland high school graduates attending a Maryland college or university are now attending a community college.

"Students at Garrett College are fortunate to benefit from not only low tuition cost but also a quality education," Bennett said. "Garrett's students truly get to know their instructors, as the average student to teacher ratio is 12:1. In addition, all of Garrett's courses are taught by faculty members, not by graduate students.

"Garrett's faculty and staff are very proud of the fact that our students succeed whether they transfer to a four-year institution or enter the work force," added Herman. The most recent data published by the Maryland Higher Education Commission shows that Garrett College students who transferred to a four-year Maryland college

Accident, Judy Center to Receive CDBG Funding

Gov. Robert Ehrlich Jr. announced last week more than $6 million in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funding for 22 community development projects in 18 localities in Maryland, including Garrett County.

The town of Accident will receive $500,000 for sewage collection line improvements, while Garrett County Community Action will receive $174,523 for daycare center emergency funding.

Although the CDBG funding for Community Action was announced last month in The Republican, the exact dollar amount was not known at that time. The money will be used to support the childcare program at the Overlook Judy Center for another full year.

A few months ago, the Health Care Programs To Be Honored With Rural Awards

Seven rural programs and/or community leaders will be recognized for their outstanding efforts to improve the quality of life in rural Maryland during the annual Rural Awards Luncheon on Oct. 24. Two local honorees are the Garrett County Health Department's Community Health Education and Outreach Program and the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland.

The Rural Awards are presented to honor those individuals or organizations that have provided outstanding leadership or service in the pursuit of a better quality of life in rural Maryland. They were nominated to one of seven different categories, and the winners will be announced at the luncheon.

The Outstanding Rural Health Achievement Award will be presented to the Garrett County Health Department's Community Health Education and Outreach Program.

This program was created 10 years ago as a way to provide health care education and outreach activities to communities isolated by distance, geography and weather. The program uses teams of six community outreach workers who literally "live their jobs."

These workers reside in the communities they serve, know their neighbors and weave their messages throughout the community beyond the end of the normal workday. Through the work of this program, the number of fluoridated public water systems in Garrett County has increased from one to five in just the last 3 years.

The program also encouraged and supported

PREPARED TO SCARE – The Kitzmiller Empowerment group is once again sponsoring the Tour of Terror at the corner of W. Main Street and Route 38. On Friday, Oct. 31, it will be open from 7 to 11 p.m. on Halloween night so as not to interfere with trick-or-treating. The cost of admission is $5 per person. "We would like to invite all looking for a good scare to attend...if they dare," said a spokesperson.

GC Health Department Flu, Pneumonia Vaccines Available At Various Locations

The Garrett County Health Department will offer influenza and pneumococcal immunizations during October and November. These immunizations will be offered at senior center meal sites throughout the county, the Bloomington fire hall, Garrett County Health Department at 1025 Memorial Drive, Oakland, and the Grantsville Community Outreach Center located at 28 Hershberger Lane in Grantsville.

The Health Department now has an adequate supply of vaccine available to immunize all individuals, wishing protection against this virus. Rodney Glotfelty, Garrett County health officer, encourages individuals to take advantage of the flu clinics scheduled in the community and emphasizes the vaccination of all individuals, especially individuals at increased risk for complications related to the virus. This includes people older than 65, persons 6 months to 64 years of age with certain chronic medical conditions, and healthy children ages 6 to 23 months.

Vaccination of persons who have direct contact with at-risk individuals, such as health care providers, nursing home staff members, household members of those in the high-risk groups, and women in their second or third trimester of pregnancy, is also recommended. The vaccine will be available to anyone, noted a health department spokesperson.

The clinics will be held at the following locations and times:

•Garrett County Health Department, Oakland, on Thursday, Oct. 23, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Registration will be in Room 107.

•Grantsville Community Outreach Center on Wednesday, Oct. 29, from 1 to 6 p.m.

•Garrett County Health Department on Thursday, Oct. 30, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

•Swanton Senior Center on Monday, Nov. 3, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

•Bloomington fire hall on Monday, Nov. 3, from 3 to 6 p.m.

•Flowery Vale Center, Accident, on Tuesday, Nov. 4, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

•Gorman Senior Center on Tuesday, Nov. 18, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

•Kitzmiller Senior Center on Wednesday, Nov. 19, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The cost of the influenza vaccination is $16. Pneumococcal vaccination will be available at a cost of $21. If a person has Medicare Part B, the Garrett County Health Department will bill Medicare for this service, as this is the only insurance approved as a payor. The Health Department will not be responsible for billing private insurance or medical assistance, and payment will be due at the time of service, stressed the spokesperson.

Pneumoccoccal pneumonia is a serious disease that is responsible for a substantial number of illnesses and deaths in the United States. The disease is caused by a bacteria which can lead to serious infection of the lungs (pneumonia), the blood stream (bacteremia), and the covering of the brain (meningitis).

People at greater risk from the disease include those 65 and older, the very young, and individuals with other health problems such as alcoholism, heart or lung disease including asthma, kidney failure, diabetes, HIV infection, or certain types of cancer.

Influenza, or flu, is caused by a virus with such typical symptoms as an abrupt onset of fever, aching, sore throat, headache, chills, extreme malaise (tiredness), and nonproductive cough. Influenza can lead to viral pneumonia. The flu incubation period is 24 to 72 hours, with the illness lasting two to seven days. The infectious period is approximately three days after the onset of symptoms.

Yearly vaccinations are recommended for high-risk and moderate-risk individuals because the viruses that cause flu frequently change and immunity may decrease in the year after vaccination.

Persons who have questions about either vaccine may contact their physician or the local health department at 301-334-7777 or 301-895-3111.

A DAY OF CARING AND SHARING PROCLAIMED – The Garrett County commissioners recently proclaimed Saturday, Oct. 25, as the Garrett County Day of Caring and Sharing. The proclamation recognized the "positive impact the United Way of Garrett County has on the quality of life" in the county. The Day of Caring and Sharing is designed to celebrate the volunteer spirit and to assist the local United Way's affiliate agencies by completing projects that require volunteer labor. This Saturday, volunteers from throughout the county will meet at 8 a.m. at the senior center in Oakland before dispersing to numerous work sites, including those at Mtn. Glade Adult Day Care, Salem Children's Trust, and the Dove Center. The United Way hopes to make this an annual event. Commissioner Ernie Gregg, who is also a member of the organization's Executive Committee, noted that monies donated to the local United Way stay in the county, with only a small portion used for administrative fees. Persons may also designate a specific charity that they would like the donation to go toward. For more information about United Way of Garrett County, persons may call 301-359-9697 or visit online at garrettunitedway.org. Proposed Forest Heritage Area Set For Discussion

A proposal to create an Appalachian Forest Heritage Area (AFHA) spanning an 18-county region of West Virginia and Maryland, including Garrett County, will be discussed at a public meeting set for 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 30, at the Garrett County Health Department. The session will provide citizens with information on the proposed project, and the opportunity to provide input into significant forest themes already defined by involved parties, and how the project may impact community and economic development.

The AFHA is described as a regional, grassroots effort to integrate central Appalachian forest history, culture, natural history, products, and forestry management into a multi-state heritage tourism initiative to promote rural community development. Project organizers are seeking to create a sustainable Heritage Area based on the unified theme of forest heritage.

"Existing and potential forest-based historic sites, artisans, manufacturers, and working forests are being developed into a network of tourist destinations that provide high-quality products, programs, educational experiences, events, and visitor services," AFHA program coordinator Jeremy Morris explained. "Gathering community advice on how the program should proceed is critical. The heart of the program lies within the communities; it is theirs to guide and direct. Public input will be invaluable to the AFHA staff and volunteers as the program continues building the partnerships necessary to make the program a successful community and economic development initiative."

Initially supported by a four-year grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to the West Virginia University Division of Forestry and Extension Service, implementation of the AFHA is based on community partnerships, according to Morris. The Oakland meeting is one of four being held throughout the projected 18-county area. Other meetings are slated in Richwood, Elkins, and Petersburg, W.Va.

Each of the public meetings are open to all persons in the community and surrounding area and counties. For further information, or to share input without attending a meeting, persons may contact Morris at 304-293-2941, ext. 2456, or via e-mail at jeremy.morris@mail.wvu.edu.

Deputies Arrest Man En Route To MV Accident

While en route to a reported motor vehicle accident Saturday, Garrett County sheriff's deputies stopped an Oakland man for failing to drive right of center along Route 135 near Enterprise Drive and charged him with drunk driving.

James Harold Weeks, 42, was arrested for driving while impaired (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), driving on a suspended license, violation a court ordered alcohol restriction, negligent driving, and failing to obey a designated lane direction.

The driver involved in the motor vehicle accident was also charged with drunk driving.

According to police, John Allen Savage, 31, Oakland, lost control of his 1991 Ford Ranger and drove it through Stacy Martin's lawn, destroying several trees and landscaping.

Savage was charged with DWI, DUI, and failure to drive right of center.

In other police news, Jason A. Pittsley, 24, Norwich, N.Y., was stopped after deputies observed his 1991 Dodge van crossing the center line several times.

Pittsley failed field sobriety tests and was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

Rt. 40 Restaurant Burglary Being Probed By MSP

Last week's burglary of the Hen House Restaurant, located along Route 40 between Finzel and Grantsville, is being probed by Maryland State Police troopers, who are asking for the public's assistance in solving the crime.

Sometime between 10:30 p.m. the night of Wednesday, Oct. 15, and 7:30 a.m. the following morning, unknown suspects entered the Long Stretch area establishment and removed a safe containing an undisclosed amount of money. An attempt to remove an ATM machine apparently took place as well, but proved unsuccessful.

Citizens with information are urged to contact the MSP's McHenry barrack at 301-895-1101 or 301-387-1101.

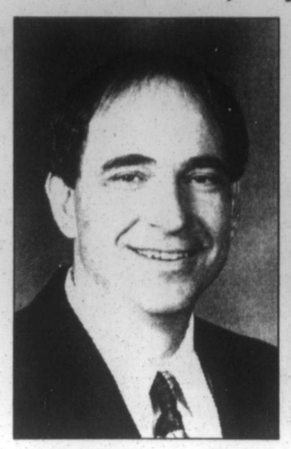
Oakland Man Sentenced For Felony Theft

An Oakland man entered a plea Monday in Garrett County Circuit Court to a charge of felony theft. A related burglary charge against Christopher Acheson Beitzel was dismissed upon his plea. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced him to eight years in the Division of Corrections.

Beitzel, 23, was indicted by the September term of the grand jury after officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation testified about his role in the July 2 burglary and theft at an apartment in Oakland. According to the Garrett County state's attorney, Beitzel and another man had entered the apartment through a rear sliding door and removed DVDs, PlayStation systems and games, and a VCR valued at $3,800.

Much of this property was recovered from the persons to whom it was later sold. Witnesses placed Beitzel in possession of the property the same day it was stolen.

Veterans Day Program To Feature Del. Edwards, Bryson Upperman



GEORGE EDWARDS

BRYSON UPPERMAN

The local chapter of the American Red Cross will hold a Veterans Day program on Sunday, Nov. 9, at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Oakland at 2 p.m.

This annual salute to veterans is a way to thank all those who have served in the military. Candles will also be lighted in memory of those who gave their lives serving their country.

Welcoming veterans to the program will be Del. George Edwards. The delegate served from 1970 to 1976 with the Maryland National Guard, Company C, 121st Engineering Battalion in Oakland.

The Veterans Day event will also include 10-year-old Bryson Upperman singing the "Star Spangled Banner." The fifth grader is the son of Eric and Maria Upperman, Oakland.

A Veterans Day parade, organized by the American Legion Post #71, will also be held in downtown Oakland at 1 p.m.

"All who have served in the Iraq war are especially asked to attend and be part of the candle-lighting ceremony," said an event spokesperson.

For more information, persons may call 301-334-4465 or 301-334-3153.

Oakland Man Sentenced For Endangerment

An Oakland man entered a plea last week in Garrett County Circuit Court to reckless endangerment. Related charges against Timothy James Storey, 42, were dismissed upon his plea.

Judge Timothy Finan sentenced Storey to 18 months in the Garrett County Jail, but suspended all of that sentence except for 40 days that he has already served in the case. Storey is subject to two year's probation.

He was arrested at his residence by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in May 2002 after the officers determined that Storey had assaulted a person who was attempting to keep him from driving while intoxicated.

In May 2003, a jury found Storey not guilty of first-degree assault, but a mistrial was declared as to the remaining charges after the jury was unable to reach a unanimous verdict. Another jury trial was scheduled to begin last week when Storey entered his plea.

Motorcyclist Injured After Striking Jeep

A motorcyclist was injured when his 2002 Suzuki motorcycle struck the side of a 2002 Jeep Thursday evening in front of Manor Builders along Maryland Highway, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

. Amy K. King, 35, Oakland, had just merged onto Maryland Highway from Paull Street and was attempting to turn into Manor Builder's when the motorcycle driven by Timothy M. Marvin, 44, Westernport, hit the side of the jeep.

Marvin, who police said appeared to have minor injuries, was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. King did not suffer any injuries.

The Oakland fire department also responded to the scene. The accident is still under investigation by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

In other police news, Samuel D. Yoho, 44, Cameron, W.Va., failed field sobriety tests early Friday morning and was arrested.

Yoho's vehicle passed the deputy's car which was sitting at the intersection of Route 219 and Rock Lodge Road and then pulled to the shoulder of the road approximately 2 yards from the deputy, police said. The deputy reported that Yoho exited his vehicle and staggered as he approached the police car.

Yoho was arrested and charged with driving under the influence (DUI), and driving while impaired (DWI).

In a separate incident, deputies stopped a vehicle on Jamison Lane driven by Chad Allen Callis, 21, Oakland, because he knew Callis was wanted on several outstanding arrest warrants.

A search of the vehicle revealed a plastic bag containing suspected marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

After seeing a District Court commissioner, a $6,000 bond was placed on him.

Callis was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia.

New Jail

screen the property. Additionally, police vehicles could be parked out of sight.

Garrett County General Services is currently working on preliminary design plans of the detention center for the Zoning Appeals Board to review, according to director Gary Mullich. If the board does not approve locating the jail in Oakland, the county may construct it near the new county roads garage.

In previous discussions about the new detention center, however, Garrett County sheriff Dick Sanders has stressed that he would like the facility to be located near the state's attorney's office and district and circuit courts in Oakland. He has noted that the farther the jail is from those facilities, the more costly it will be for his department to transport incarcerated defendants to their court hearings and trials.

Sanders has also pointed out that if the jail is located in Oakland, his department will be able to continue assisting the Oakland City Police and citizens who walk into the office seeking help.

The Value of Life...

A general theme of life – the value and sanctity of life, that is – has been the focal point of several totally unrelated news items this week, with many of the events raising more questions than providing answers to deeply controversial issues.

With yesterday's release of videos of the Columbine High School teenage murderers shown out "practicing" with their firearms, we see once again a chilling disregard for human life, the lives of others as well as of themselves. We first wonder how in the world those two young men acquired all of that deadly firepower, and why their parents or guardians apparently didn't know anything about it. But further, we wonder how it was that their minds had become so corrupt and callous. One conclusion is that all values, including why and how to value life itself, must be taught and reinforced by responsible adults.

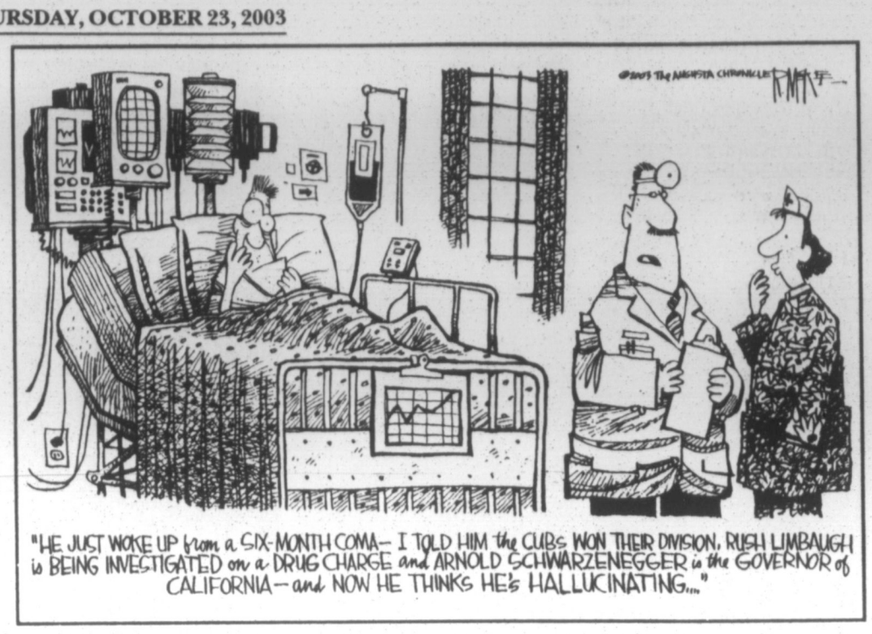
The congressional passage of a bill that bans partial birth abortion, expected to be signed by the president and subsequently challenged in the courts, smacks right at the heart of the life-value issue. To many, this enactment represents respect for life; to many others, it represents a disrespect for women and free choice. While there are formidable arguments on both sides of this issue, a notion that bothers and confuses this writer is that the killing of an essentially fully developed human being inside the womb is not considered a crime, but the killing of the same being, even within seconds of being outside the womb, is, without question in everybody's mind, first-degree murder.

Similar controversy rages in Florida right now, where the husband of a woman in an apparent vegetative state was given permission by the courts to remove the feeding tube from his wife's body to end her life, but the tube was then ordered to be reinstalled when the governor stepped into the matter on behalf of the woman's parents and siblings. The husband believes that the value of life for his wife is non-existent, and keeping her alive is a disservice to her and her desires, while her blood relatives disagree and believe that she does indeed still have quality to her life. Who's right in this case?

The late Mother Teresa was beatified by Pope John Paul this past week, an honor about which this particular Lutheran is basically ignorant. However, this woman understood far better than most the value of human life, and more importantly, spent her entire life and all of her energy demonstrating it. And Pope John Paul himself, now in such a pathetic, diseased physical state, continues to courageously lead his church, another demonstration of the value of life, no matter how frail the container of that life may be.

Finally, we have a man who decided that his life really wasn't worth living, so he did a swan dive over Niagara Falls, only to miraculously survive the fall, the rocks, and the turbulent waters, and climb out of the river with nothing but bruises. He said he had regretted his decision to jump just a split second after doing so, and now seems to believe rather strongly that this life is worth living. It seems to us religious folks that God must certainly have a plan for this man, and it will be interesting to see what he does with the rest of his days.

At least one message from all of this seems to be that life itself is, by far, our single greatest gift, and therefore should be valued more than anything else. In addition, while it is essential that we value our own time here, it is even more important to try to reach out and assist those who are having trouble realizing the value of their own lives.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I want to thank all my friends who sent me cards after my mother's death. It helps me to get along better and to know you all care for me. It was a shock at first, but my friends were there to love and comfort me. My family was also there to comfort me.

I was really glad that so many of my friends came to the service. It was beautiful.

Thanks again for your love and concern.

To the Editor:

We'd like to express our gratitude to the Garrett Community Concert Band and Garrett Lakes Arts Festival for the wonderful Capitol Sax Quartet concert last Saturday night at Garrett College. It was one of the finest musical events we've ever enjoyed. We were thrilled not only with the high quality musicianship and fun in the performance by the quartet, but also with the impressive and high quality in the Garrett Community Concert Band's performance. Many thanks to all the performers, band director Jerry McGee, and the sponsors and organizers of this truly exciting evening.

Sincerely,

Jeff and Liz Rees Gilbert

To the Editor:

In regard to the bear hunt that has been approved for next fall, first of all, we reintroduced the bears back here a number of years ago. They did not ask for us to do that and now that they are in our way, why don't we just slaughter them?

The killing of these bears is unjust. We keep building on top of their habitat. Don't you think we owe it to them to find a balance, rather than to simply slaughter them? We must learn to set aside habitat for these animals. It is inconceivable to me that the DNR, the Wildlife Heritage Service, and the legislature approved such an inhumane act.

Anna Quindlen of Newsweek says it appropriately: "No one seems to have considered the obvious alternative. Instead of issuing hunting permits, call a moratorium on building permits. Permanently!"

This lottery for hunting bear permits is a no win for all humanity.

To the Editor:

I was appalled by letters from D.N. Rebele and Jack Rhode last week. I felt that they were very selfish and obviously had never been affected by a death that has been caused by someone drinking and driving. I commend the Maryland State Police for taking the necessary measures to keep our loved ones alive.

Finally, if you do the crime you do the time, regardless of where you live, vacation, or how much money you spend or make.

Sincerely,
Jody Teets

To the Editor:

I come through two 4-way intersections going to and from work every day. There are rules that apply at a 4-way intersection that perhaps should be reviewed by everyone driving them.

The two I go through twice a day are Center and Second streets and Pennington and Second streets in Oakland. It is not about "taking turns" at a 4-way. There are specific rules about who goes first and who has the right-of-way. Some common courtesy is never remiss, but that courtesy does not negate the rules.

If you are unsure what to do, get the rulebook from the MVA or call your local policeman. Someone may be involved in a crash, and it could be you!

To the Editor:

Just caught your reply to Mr. Rhode from this past week's Letters to the Editor column. I must say that my feelings are very much in line with what Mr. Rhode had to say about the state choosing to make a statement with its use of the sobriety check point the same evening the OVFD is holding its major fund-raiser, thus putting a damper on many participants' celebrating at that charitable event.

But, I must also admit that your reply had great merit, bringing to light the importance of keeping the chance of a drunk driving incident with possible harm to life, and/or property, to a minimum. Believing that concern for the welfare of the community should be of high importance, and also believing that "turn about" is fair play, maybe we all can get together and influence the Garrett County Sheriffs Dept. to "return the favor" to the state, at one of its charitable fund-raisers, the Deep Creek Dunk, by placing sobriety checkpoints on Garrett Highway just south of Uno's on the day of that event. It would be all in the spirit of the desire to protect the community, of course!

If you wish to reply, please contact me at the Scenic Overlook on 219 in McHenry. I'll be with Mr. Rhode trying to look through the top floor of a new home being built there.

To the Editor:

This is a letter that can save numerous untold lives throughout western Maryland.

The simple yet powerful act of changing the batteries in smoke alarms when you change the clock back on October 26 can double a family's chance of getting out of a home fire alive.

As a nine-year veteran of the office of the Maryland State Fire Marshal, I have witnessed first-hand the tragedy and devastation of home fires. It's even more heartbreaking when a young life is cut short. On average, nearly three children die each day in home fires. Overall, roughly 80 percent of home fire deaths in this country occur in homes without working smoke alarms. In 2002 alone, three people lost their lives in home fires in western Maryland.

Considering that residential fire deaths peak in winter months, it makes sense to change your smoke alarm batteries each and every fall.

We hope you'll join the Office of the Maryland State Fire Marshal in sharing this lifesaving information with your readers.

Sincerely,
Bruce A. Shafer
Acting Deputy Chief
State Fire Marshal
Western Region

To the Editor:

I'd like to thank The Republican for giving the readers an opportunity to express their opinions and frustrations.

The three writers who attacked (my word, attacked) DeCorsey Bolden (10/16) were amusing and interesting, but in my opinion lacked substance.

I first joined the Young Republican Club August 1, 1940, at Oakland, prior to World War II. Then, in 1984 I found I did not know what the two main parties stood for, the Republican National Committee and the National Democratic Party. I now have that information.

Unfortunately, the political parties hesitate to make their platforms available. Thus, few know what they stand for. Sad, but true.

I find it difficult to understand how anyone can change parties while not knowing what they represent.

Perhaps the writers to The Republican the past few weeks should do some research of their platforms, the voting records of the incumbent lawmakers, and how they voted on issues critical to the family. Business and labor voting and the environment are important, but not so much as God, country, and family.

Is it now Mr. Bolden's turn to respond? If they all did some research those amusing letters could be of some real benefit to the readers. Really now, President George W. Bush, our president, is not really as bad as some say in their letters to the editor, is he?

I believe it was Abraham Lincoln who said: "He has the right to criticize, who has the heart to help."

And it was a survivor of the Jewish Holocaust who said: "Take sides. Neutrality helps the oppressor, never the victim. Silence encourages the tormentor, never the tormented." (Elie Wiesel)

Keep those letter coming to the editor. The paper needs amusement for the readers. Just check the facts more carefully. Thanks.

To the Editor:

I am a stay-at-home father. My name is not important, but I believe that what I am going to say is very important. I have a lot of friends (both fathers and mothers, but mostly fathers) who think that their other half who stays home with their children doesn't do a whole lot of work. I hear them complain that their wife or husband "didn't get something done that day," like the dishes were still dirty, or his/her favorite shirt hadn't been washed. Since I have become a stay-at-home father, though, my whole perspective has changed.

I think that the parent who stays at home with the children while the spouse is at work accomplishes a lot more than their counterpart spouses believe. I thought it would be interesting to find out exactly what I did during a week, so I wrote down everything I did during the day while my wife was working. When I had finished writing down eveything each day for a week, I was absolutely stunned. I then used averages to figure out exactly what I will have done if I had written down everything for a year, and this is what I came up with:

1. I will have changed over 2,000 (yes, that's two thousand) diapers.

2. I will have fed both of my children over 1,000 times (and that doesn't count dinner, nor the bottles that my smallest baby drinks).

3. I will have washed and dried over 500 loads of laundry.

4. I will have done over 250 loads of dishes.

5. I will have put my infant children down for their naps over 1,000 times (assuming a morning and afternoon nap, which doesn't always happen).

6. I will have vacuumed the house over 100 times (at two times a week).

7. I will have cleaned the high chair(s) over 1,000 times (remember, each time a child eats, you have to clean up the high chair).

8. I will have.....

9. I will have.....

I hope you get the idea of what I am talking about here. You see, I had the impression myself that mothers who stayed at home basically didn't do much but watch soap operas and maybe feed their kids. I was so wrong. The list I have just provided does not even include the other things that need done around the house like feeding the dogs, making beds, changing a baby's clothes when he/she spits up, scrubbing floors, and all the other chores and tasks that make a person's day so difficult and time consuming. But I also have to say that, even though there are times when I feel like this is by far the most difficult task and responsibility I have ever faced, it is also the most rewarding.

Oh, and one more thing...and this is the most important job I have as a stay-at-home father: I will have spent over 1,300 hours just while my wife is at work doing what babies love the most – giving them unconditional love and just playing with them and helping them learn about their world.

So, the next time that your stay-at-home spouse (and I know these are still mostly mothers) tells you that he/she is tired and had a long day – trust me – believe and appreciate them for what they do and who they are. I know that in the end, it is my children, and your children, who will benefit the most.

Most importantly, I would like to thank my own mother for whom I only now am gaining a much greater understanding, respect, and love. I would like to thank her for what she did with me and for me. I will never forget it.

D. Helms
Oakland

To the Editor:

Mr. Henson Moore wrote a letter recently that appeared in your newspaper stating, "Forests are vital to our way of life." I certainly agreed with him on this point, but I could agree with little else that he wrote in the remainder of his article.

His concept that we should manage all forests for wood products is extremely shortsighted. The forests of the U.S. are home to more than 3,000 species of fish and wildlife and many thousands of insects. It's estimated that 75% of the mammals and 45% of the birds around the world endangered by industrial civilization are threatened because of the loss of forest habitat. For amphibians and reptiles, the percentages are even higher. Why then shouldn't we be more concerned about loss of biodiversity than loss of forest products that can often be replaced with non-wood products?

Some folks might think that loss of biodiversity is unimportant to them, but if they feel that way, they should examine carefully the food they eat, the air they breath, and the water they drink. Food, air, and clean water are available only because the biodiversity of the earth supports us.

Most of the foods we grow and animals we raise have been domesticated from a variety of wild species. Many of the grains and fruits we eat each day depend upon wild insects to pollinate them. The loss of even a few of these pollinators will raise havoc with our food supplies. In spite of what the forest industry says, heavily managed forests do not provide the diversity of life that is normal in unlogged forests.

Clean water is something we all recognize as necessary to our way of life, but without biodiversity the water on the earth would soon be polluted with the waste products humans excrete. Pollutants expelled from humans are a food source for other species. Trees and plants absorb many chemicals we pour into the environment, using them as their food source. Bacteria break down wastes in sewage disposal plants, and return pure water to our streams.

We should be equally thankful for the plants and trees that absorb the carbon dioxide we breathe out, and convert it into oxygen necessary for human life. Forests are an important part of this life cycle, but heavily managed forests are not a particular benefit. When trees are logged, they no longer serve to cleanse our air or provide the benefits of a forest.

The forest industry tells people that logging is necessary for healthy forests, but anyone even faintly familiar with an unlogged forest should immediately know this is false. The original unlogged forests that remain in the U.S. are hotspots of biodiversity.

The forest industry is now using forest fires in the West as a reason to log Eastern forests. Dr. Edward O. Wilson, a university research professor emeritus at Harvard, wrote recently, "The best way to avoid catastrophic fires is by trimming undergrowth and clearing debris, combined with natural burns of the kind that have sustained healthy forests in past millennia. Those procedures, guided by science and surgically precise forestry, can return forests to near their equilibrium condition, in which only minimal further intervention would be needed. The worst way to create healthy forests, on the other hand, is to thin trees via increased logging, as proposed by the Bush administration."

The forest industry often overlooks the negative aspects of logging. These include roads cut into forests to remove logs that provide pathways for exotic invasive species which are overrunning many forests and crowding out native biodiversity. Logging roads further fragment wildlife habitat to the detriment of many species, and often cause sedimentation in streams that suffocate gilled fish and animals.

While logged forests do provide habitat for many species, the dominant species in a logged forest are usually those already in abundance in Maryland like the whitetail deer that prefer edge forests and sunlight. The less common or rare and endangered species are often lost when logging opens the forest canopy to sunlight and drying conditions.

To the Editor:

It is a sad day in Maryland upon news of a 2004 bear hunt.

First of all, we all ready have an open season; bears, who fit into the "any animal that comes on someone's property they don't like or want" category, can and will be most likely killed.

Anyone can fool with the numbers, especially those down state. No secret that bears get the bum rap for crop damage. I don't think they contribute as much to the amount of crop damage during an entire year as total damage by other animals, such as deer.

I thought the bear hunt would start in a few years based on a permit type of hunting.

I worry about the mother bear, her triplets, and another male bear that inhabit the forest by my home. They give us no problems. They are only a problem if you feed them, leave things out that attract them, or walk up on a bear and do nothing. Yell at it and back up – it works.

Deer hunters hate bears since no bait pile is safe from them. It's not real deer hunting, using unnatural bait piles, anyway. Too bad the people at Deep Creek Lake have tried to make

Craig House To Be Among Those On '03 ARC Tour

The 12th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours, sponsored by the local chapter of the American Red Cross, will feature the home of Mark and Randee Craig, located along Pergin Farm Road.

The tours will take place on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5 and 6, and will include three other homes in addition to the Craigs', as well as a riding stable and a bed and breakfast.

The Craig home was designed by Jim Davison of Alpha & Associates of Morgantown, W.Va., as well as the Craigs. It was built in 1996 by Don Nemith Builders.

Built on the site of the Pergin Farm barn, the 17-room house is of traditional style with a contemporary flair, the Craigs said.

A 24-foot stacked stone fireplace featuring a local "waffle" rock is located in the family room. It was designed by G&H Masonry. A bay window accents the library, which is decorated with paintings of the Pergin Farm barn by Rebecca McClive and other paintings. (The barn was disassembled in 1994 piece by piece, to be rebuilt at another location.) The library features an oak hardwood floor, as does the dining room, where an antique walnut dining room set will be displayed.

HOME OF MARK AND RANDEE CRAIG TO BE ON 2003 ARC TOUR

The recreation room and bar area have oak wainscoting and a heated ceramic tile floor. The wainscoting is also located in the billiard room, where a 9-foot pool table is located on a cherry floor.

Guests will enter the entryway with a 24-foot ceiling and a chandelier. Also in the entrance hall is an antique Tiffany grandfather clock, a card table that once belonged to Governor Johnson (the first governor of Maryland), and a stained glass window of a Pergin Farm scene.

The home has five bedrooms and four baths. The master suite consists of the bedroom, a sitting area, a walk-in clothing closet, a linen closet, and a bathroom.

The house offers expansive views of Deep Creek Lake and the surrounding countryside.

Advance tickets for the tours are $8 per person and may be purchased at Proudfoot's or Gregg's pharmacies, Flowers by Webers in Oakland, Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake, or Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. On the days of the tours, the ticket price will be $10. Tickets are required of all persons going on the tours, including children.

Ticket-holders may visit the tour stops any time between the hours of 4 and 9 p.m. on Dec. 5, or between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Dec. 6.

Raffles of items donated by local businesses will be held at each tour stop.

pets out of bears.

Again, it really is a shame. I applied for my nuisance wildlife permit to see if I could be of some help to anyone with certain animal problems, including bears. I guess it's too late. I guess I would have been the DNR's first office secretary with a nuisance wildlife permit in Garrett County. I get paid much less, no benefits, and would help people free of charge without griping and complaining about my job.

I guess let them kill them all and then they will have to be reintroduced. We'll wait another 50 years or so. The bear task force is hand picked, so it's easy to know what their decision will be.

I guess if you can't stand to live in the country, then move to the city with fewer animals. I don't think some people know what thriving is. I want to have bears around the house, condition them to protect myself, my family, and my property, and hope to God that if something happens that I, my family, our animals, and my property will survive without being harmed. It's called living with black bears – mountain living.

I only want bear hunting when there are lots of bears. This fall I saw the first sow with triplets, and walked up on a bear in high grass. I hope people realize we have much more deer. I worry more about rabies, snakes, and a limb falling on someone rather than black bear problems. Got a bear around? Maybe it will deter robbers and any other unwanted activity.

I am also teaching my nephews to hunt, respect wildlife management, hunter safety, and so forth. They take after their father, and say they would shoot a bear if allowed to. I want them to grow up with lots of wildlife around, and that includes bears, bobcats, mountain lions, deer, and other species of Maryland.

Sincerely,
Rebecca A. DeWitt

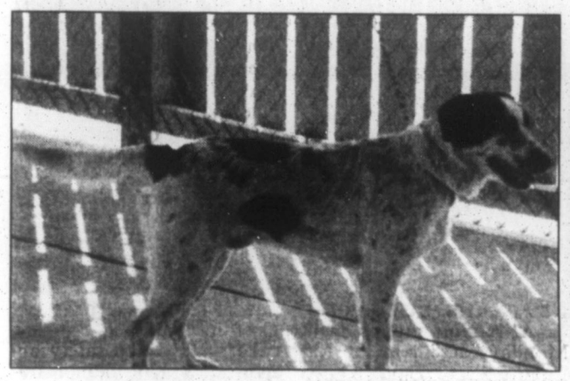
Adorable Adoptables



CAN SOMEONE GIVE A BUDDY A HOME? Available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter this week is Buddy, a black and white 2-year-old Lab mix, pictured. He and two other black Labs were given up by their owner. "They're all nice dogs," said a Humane Society spokesperson. Also looking for a new home is a furry, black kitten with big green eyes, pictured, who is just one of several kittens who have been brought into the shelter recently. Other pets available for adoption include an older longhaired, spayed female cat, who is said to be good with kids, and a 4-year-old neutered golden retriever. "Please remember to put a collar and identification on both your cats and your dogs," said the spokesperson. Many animals come into the shelter without identification and, therefore, are never returned to their owners.

5-A-DAY WINNERS NOTED – To help promote this healthy daily habit, the Garrett County Health Department sponsored a 5-A-Day contest between third graders at both Accident Elementary and Yough Glades Elementary. Students at both schools were asked to record the fruits and vegetables they eat for one week. Yough Glades students won the competition and were presented with books with nutrition/health related messages for the school library. Pictured above is Stevee Royce, the 5-A-Day winner from Yough Glades. She is pictured with her prize and representatives from the health department Amy Ritchie and Sadie Liller. Shannon Stanton, the winner from Accident Elementary, is pictured below with Ritchie.

Garrett County Bands Do Well In State Event

The Northern and Southern Garrett high school marching bands were among 11 Group I bands from throughout the state of Maryland that competed in the Maryland State Tournament of Bands Championships, hosted Saturday by Towson University at Johnny Unitas Stadium, and both fared well in the competition.

The Northern band, under the direction of Bill Robinson, placed second in the division with a season-high score of 83.95, while the Southern band, under the direction of Rick Clever, finished third with a season-high score of 82.60. Northern also received the Best Drum Major and Best Music specialty awards.

The Chesapeake High School Band was the only one with a better score, taking the state Group I title with a score of 84.25.

"We got to see the best competition in the state of Maryland, and we held our own," stated Clever. "It is a great commentary on the abilities our Garrett County students possess, with both Northern and Southern placing among the top three bands in Group I in the state. It was a great night for Garrett County."

The Southern band will compete again this Saturday in the Big Apple Tournament of Bands, hosted by Musselman High School in Inwood, W.Va.

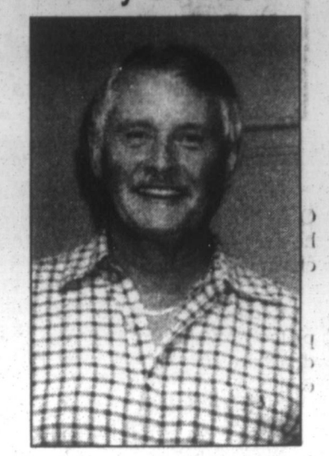
DAR Guest Gives Insight Into U.S. Military Service



Retired military veteran Tom Bittinger presented a program on national defense at a recent meeting of the Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. "Bittinger's long military career and defense of our country took many different roads," a DAR spokesperson said.

Bittinger joined the National Guard while a teenager in high school, and he continued his service throughout his college years. He then joined the regular army and served a four-year enlistment in Germany. Upon his return to the states he resumed his stint with the National Guard, serving several state calls for emergencies and as a state recruiter for the National Guard.

Although now retired, Bittinger maintains his connection to the military through service as finance office for the Proctor Kildow Post of the American Legion.

INTOLERABLE CRUELTY

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:40 - Released 10/10/03

If Joel and Ethan Coen's Intolerable Cruelty had been produced by some unknown creative team, or one that had had only minor success in the past, it would probably be receiving much better praise. The mediocre reception with which this film is being met is not, I daresay, so much a result of its inferiority as that of the reputation the Coen brothers have built with such films as Fargo, O Brother, Where Art Thou, and The Man Who Wasn't There. This is an unfortunate corollary of being successful—consistent excellence is repaid with ever higher expectations. So, in light of this, we must accept that Intolerable Cruelty, written by Robert Ramsey, Matthew Stone, and John Romano, and directed by Joel and Ethan (who also helped with the screenplay), a marriage-and-divorce-scam comedy starring George Clooney and Catherine Zeta-Jones, may not be up to the standards we have come to expect from the illustrious Coens, but it is certainly no failure. I thought the film was cleverly written and well-performed, and, if not a towering success like those listed, at least an enjoyable evening's entertainment.

George Clooney plays Miles Massey, an L.A. divorce attorney who is so successful at his field, his self-named prenuptial agreement ("the Massey Prenup") is famous for its iron-clad security. We learn of his technique in the courtroom when a beautiful and extremely shrewd woman named Marylin Rexroth (Zeta-Jones) attempts to sue her wealthy, eccentric, philandering husband Rex (Edward Herrman) for everything he's worth. Thanks to Miles, she gets nothing, but in the process he becomes intrigued with her. "You fascinate me," he admits when she appears some time later with her newest wealthy fiancé, oil tycoon Howard D. Doyle (Billy Bob Thornton). Seemingly undermining her own obvious intentions, Marylin asks Miles to draw up a copy of the Massey Prenup to protect Howard. Knowing her gold-digging ways, Miles is confused as to why she would do such a thing, effectively preventing the possibility of her ever profiting from her marriage to this buffoon. But he soon understands, and his fascination with her grows to financially unhealthy proportions.

Whatever complaints one may have about this movie, the casting should definitely not be one of them. George Clooney and Catherine Zeta-Jones are certainly not going to pull any muscles stretching in these roles, as he has no lack of experience playing suave scoundrels (Out Of Sight, Ocean's Eleven) and she just won an Oscar last year for playing a conniving, husband-killing sexpot in Chicago. So their work here is nothing new for them, and they perform well together. The chemistry is not spectacular, but it's sufficient to make us care how things come out. Notable supporting performances include those of Thornton and Herrman, but also Paul Adelstein as Miles's overemotional assistant, Richard Jenkins as his oft-beaten legal opponent, Geoffrey Rush as a cuckolded husband, Cedric The Entertainer as a private detective who gets great enjoyment out of his work, and Jonathan Hadary as a hilarious divorce court witness.

Although I am often the first guy to berate directors for not living up to their previously established potential (check my review of any George Lucas movie), I can also understand that artists, like everybody else, have highs and lows in their professional output. I can't say I loved this movie like I loved O Brother, but watching Clooney and Zeta-Jones interact is suitably fun, and neither of them is exactly hard on the eyes. The supporting characters are funny in the way Coen bros. characters traditionally are, and the story is engaging enough to be considered tolerable. ★★★★

As rabies has been identified throughout Garrett County, dog and cat owners should check their pet's vaccination records to make sure that they are up to date, according to a spokesperson.

Low cost rabies clinics have been concluded for the year and will not be held again until May 2004. Therefore, pet owners are urged to contact a local veterinarian to obtain a current rabies vaccination for their pet.

"For these and other reasons more students are making Garrett College their first choice institution. The college believes that the escalating costs of higher education at other colleges will motivate even more students to start their educational careers at Garrett," Herman concluded.

efforts to adopt smoke-free facilities throughout the county. The Health Education and Outreach Program assists with all health education activities in Garrett County.

Through extensive use of volunteers, the program staffs and oversees a number of community coalitions. Its success can be measured by an increase in healthy practices within the community and by the new initiatives started by groups initially formed by the outreach teams.

During the last year, 81 partnerships formed; 382 people were reached with bike safety education messages; and 13,000 people were reached by a public health media campaign.

The Outstanding Rural Economic Development Award will be presented to the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland (TCCWM).

TCCWM is the regional planning and development agency serving Allegany, Garrett, and Washington counties. The Tri-County Council has been extremely effective in recent years at marshaling various federal and state resources that are used to create jobs and help businesses achieve and sustain economic growth.

In partnership with the Maryland Technology Development Corporation, the council is currently managing a project aimed at expanding broadband communications infrastructure capacity and competitiveness in western Maryland.

The council also administers a revolving loan fund, a source for gap financing for small businesses seeking to locate or expand in western Maryland.

The council was recognized for its outstanding success in forging partnerships and effectively leveraging and utilizing a myriad of state and federal developmental resources for the benefit of the people in western Maryland.

The Rural Awards Luncheon will be held during the 6th annual 2003 Maryland Rural Summit at the Ocean City Convention Center on Oct. 23-24. This event is sponsored by the Rural Maryland Council, the Maryland Rural Health Association, and the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene – Office of Primary Care and Rural Health.

SHS Rams Unable To Stop Charging Trojans, Fall 34-6

An inability to slow down the Hampshire High Trojans' powerful running attack last Friday night resulted in a 34-6 defeat by the home-standing Southern High Rams. It was the sixth loss in seven starts for the Rams this season.

Led by senior tailback speedster Alex Lee and fullback Duke Charlton, the Trojans amassed 317 yards of rushing, with Lee gaining 120 yards on just seven carries and Charlton picking up 114 on 17 carries.

Lee scored a pair of touchdowns, while quarterback T.M. Frye rushed for one and passed for another, even though he put the ball into the air only three times the entire evening.

Lee opened the scoring with a 61-yard touchdown run in the first quarter, scoring with 4:21 left on the clock. Brian Beverage booted the extra point to give the Trojans a 7-0 lead.

The score was unchanged until the 4:25 mark of the second period when Hampshire's Matt Canan scored a touchdown on a four-yard carry. Beverage's conversion kick made it 14-0.

A Ram turnover via a fumble set up another six-pointer for the Trojans, with Frye rolling into the end zone from five yards out with 1:34 left before halftime. Beverage again kicked the extra point to give the visitors a comfortable 21-0 halftime lead.

Lee recorded his second touchdown of the evening via a 23-yard carry with 4:45 remaining in the third quarter. Beverage's fourth extra-point kick made it 28-0.

The final Trojan touchdown of the evening came on a 50-yard pass play from Frye to Tony Lewis. Beverage's kick failed, and the Rams trailed 34-0 with 11:49 to play.

A shutout was averted when Karl Hillen pulled down a 38-yard touchdown pass from Cory Bosley with 2:35 left. The run for the two-point conversion was stopped short.

Bret DeWitt gained 100 yards on 29 carries to lead the Rams' 147-yard rushing effort, while Brad Reese recorded three pass receptions from Bosley for a total of 56 yards.

Wet conditions led to a total of nine fumbles between the two teams, with each giving up possession twice. Each defensive unit also had one interception.

Playing an outstanding defensive game for the Rams was linebacker/captain Chris Bennett, who had over 20 tackles, solo and assisted. Hillen finished with nine tackles from his secondary position.

The win was the fourth in seven starts for the Trojans.

"We knew going in that if we were going to have a chance to win the game, we were going to have to overachieve," said Southern coach Fred Gregg. "We did that for a while early in the game, but we couldn't sustain it. We were simply outmatched."

Things only get more difficult this week for the Rams, who must host a 7-1 Frankfort team this Friday night, a team that is all but destined to go far in the West Virginia state championships.

The Falcons shared the top spot in area standings with Fort Hill until they were defeated by Beall in a mild upset.

"Frankfort is a very senior-dominated team that has an excellent chance at a state title," Gregg said.

The Falcons are led on both sides of the ball by fullback/linebacker Sam Castillo, a 6-0, 200-pound senior.

"He is a gifted athlete who plays the game of football the way it's supposed to be played," Gregg said. "It's really fun to watch him."

The Falcons generally operate from the wing-T on offense, setting up their passing game with an effective running effort.

"They run from a very basic wing-T, similar to Allegany's, but they divert from the wing-T when they want to put the ball into the air," Gregg said.

Defensively, they utilize primarily a 5-3, but will use some 6-2 formations.

"They are just a very sound football team," Gregg said. "But what stands out about them is how hard they play. They play every down with a sense of urgency. They don't want to give up one yard, not one down, not one second."

Gregg said that the Falcons' team speed is "a little faster" than the Rams', but size-wise the two teams are comparable.

The Rams' leading rusher, sophomore Andrew VanBogelen, who is nursing a knee injury, will be out of the line-up again this week; however, tailback/defensive back Chad Everd is healthy once again. He is expected to see considerable action on defense, and limited action in the offensive backfield.

Friday's kickoff at the Southern athletic field is set for 7 p.m.

In the photo at right, junior split end Brad Reese goes up for the ball thrown by Bosley, comes down with it, and lands in the arms of a Hampshire defender. Reese had three catches for the evening. The struggling Rams were handed a 34-6 defeat by the visitors, and will face an even tougher challenge this week when they host Frankfort.

Huskies Hammered By Beall's Big Plays, Drop 42-14 Contest

The Northern High School varsity football squad took it on the chin from the Beall Mountaineers Friday during a 42-14 defeat in Frostburg. Down by only four points late in the second quarter, the Huskies' fortunes took a quick turn for the worse as Beall uncorked a pair of big plays that resulted in two touchdowns in less than a five minute span that put NHS on the short end of a 20-6 deficit heading into the halftime locker room.

"Those big plays really hurt us," Northern skipper Phil Carr commented. "We had a little wind knocked out of our sails very early on when a fumble turned into a Beall touchdown, and then when they hit us with those two big plays in the second quarter we kind of deflated." The Mountaineers have shown a knack for getting off big plays all year, and a third coup early in the third quarter left the Huskies in a hole they just couldn't dig themselves out of.

"We lacked intensity, which was disappointing because we knew it was a big game and we had a good Thursday night practice," observed Carr. "Beall saw mistakes and capitalized on them quickly, which all but killed us." Carr's assessment is borne out by simply subtracting the Mounties' three big scoring runs of 62, 76, and 44 yards, which almost halves their 392-yard rushing tally, and minus three touchdowns.

Northern's first play from scrimmage started the Huskies off on the right foot, as running back Eric Johnson broke through a hole in the line for a seven-yard gain. However, NHS fumbled the ball away on the very next play, and Beall went on a five-play drive that culminated when David Winner found the end zone from six yards out with less than three minutes having elapsed from the opening kickoff.

The two squads settled into a scoreless battle from that point, a struggle that lasted until almost midway through the second quarter. Beall doubled its advantage to 12-0 as Eric Parker capped a 72-yard, 13-play drive with a two-yard keeper with 7:36 left in the stanza.

Northern broke into the scoring column two minutes later when halfback Michael Wolf exploded for a 40-yard touchdown run. Wolf capped the scoring carry by running the ball into the end zone on the conversion play. With 5:13 showing on the clock, NHS was down by a slim 12-8 margin and had its dogs back in the hunt.

That's when things began falling apart for Northern, as the Mountie hosts went on a rampage that ended with four unanswered touchdowns over the next 12 minutes of play.

Just two plays after Wolf's scoring carry, Beall's Winner reeled off a 62-yard touchdown run that put his team up 18-6 with 4:19 remaining in the half. After the Mountaineer defenders held the Huskies' offense to a three-and-out on NHS's ensuing possession, Beall runner Mahlon Harper took a first-down handoff and scampered 76 yards for his first touchdown, which he followed with a conversion run. The big play gave Beall a 26-8 lead with 1:15 left in the half.

The storm resumed after the intermission, as on the second play of the third quarter Mahlon blew by the Northern line for a 44-yard scoring run. With 3:21 remaining in the stanza, Parker found Zach Leasure with a seven-yard scoring pass that put the hosts up 42-8.

NHS got in one last gasp on the game's final play when quarterback Robert Stark tossed a 12-yard touchdown pass to Johnson.

Wolf had a good day carrying the ball, as the junior accumulated 98 yards on 24 carries. The battle of the line of scrimmage was won by Beall, however, as the Mounties freed up Harper for 165 yards on just 13 carries while Winner tallied 111 yards on 11 carries. "They have the best backfield in the area," Carr said. "Their runners and quarterback can break big runs any time you make a mistake.

"They also handled us on both lines of scrimmage, where games are won or lost."

The Huskies will try to redeem themselves tomorrow against Petersburg in a 7 p.m. match-up in the Cove. The Vikings (2-5) started out slow by losing their first five, but may be turning the corner after crushing Westmar two weeks ago and a big win over a heavily favored Tucker County squad last week.

"We need to control the line against Petersburg, and we can do it if we put forth the effort," the Northern coach remarked. "We match up fairly well size-wise, and although they may be a little bigger we know we can be faster. They like to do a lot of different things on offense, but are mostly prone to go to the shotgun formation."

The hammer in that shotgun will be senior quarterback Paul Iman (5-9, 160), who has good arm range to all points of the field. Joining him in the backfield are senior fullback Chris Alt (5-11, 185) and freshman halfback Derrick Vance (5-10, 170), younger brother to two former star runners for the Viking program.

On defense, Petersburg is known for its aggressive 6-2 scheme that features "lots of blitzes," Carr stated. "Our fullback Tyler Warn is going to have his hands full picking up their blitzing linebackers, especially Alt. They also play a good 'gap defense,' where they try to fill every gap and then see how you react. Vance is an excellent defensive end for a young kid."

The halftime festivities of tomorrow night's contest will feature a recognition program for the Northern Maddawgs and Northern Steelers youth football teams of the northern end of the county. The undefeated Maddawgs will go after the Pee Wee League Superbowl title this Sunday (see separate story).

Ram Jayvees Down Alco, Meyersdale

The Southern High School junior varsity football team upped its record to 7-1 this week with a pair of wins, one over Allegany and the other over a powerhouse Meyersdale squad. SHS was paced in both victories by 100-plus yard rushing performances from workhorse runner David Reams.

The Rams took a 20-16 win over host Allegany last Thursday night, Oct. 16. After a scoreless first quarter, Southern put its first points on the board when Reams carried the ball into the end zone from two yards out. Allegany rebounded to take the lead when Donovan Vincent scampered 56 yards for a touchdown, and a successful point-after pass play from Jacob Lewis to Shawn Ware gave the hosts an 8-6 advantage.

The Campers struck again in the third stanza on a one-yard touchdown run by Billy Plummer, and another point-after pass from Lewis to Ware put Alco up 16-6.

The tide turned in the final quarter, however, as Southern surged back with three unanswered touchdowns. The first came with 8:11 showing on the clock when Ram quarterback Jason Wakefield hit Ryan DeWitt with an eight-yard scoring toss. The pair followed with a successful conversion pass to make the score 16-14.

On the second play from scrimmage after the ensuing kickoff, SHS defensive tackle Justin Fitzwater pounced on a Camper fumble to recover the ball on the Alco 21-yard line. Less than two minutes elapsed before the Rams laid claim to the game when Reams rumbled across the goal line from six yards out for his second rushing touchdown of the day, giving Southern the four-point win.

Reams tallied 113 yards for the contest on 21 carries, and defensive tackles Ricky Wotring and Fitzwater stood out on defense, according to the Rams' coaching staff.

Monday night's battle pitted Southern against visiting Meyersdale, which brought an undefeated 6-0 record to Oakland for the showdown.

It was a defensive struggle from the outset, and both teams remained deadlocked in a scoreless tie after the conclusion of the first half.

The Red Raiders broke the ice late in the third quarter when T. Smith broke free on a 22-yard scoring run, and a successful point-after kick gave the guests a 7-0 advantage.

Southern responded when Reams capped a long drive by bulldozing his way into the end zone from two yards out. He added a conversion run to give SHS a one-point lead.

With just two minutes remaining in the final stanza, Southern padded its lead on a one-yard touchdown keeper by Wakefield, who then tossed a point-after pass to Anthony Schrock, which made for the final 16-7 differential.

Reams helped the Rams roll to the win by accumulating 116 yards on 25 carries, one good for a touchdown run.

"That was one of the best jayvee games I've ever seen," SHS coach Jim Bosley commented afterward. "We had a big, loud crowd that helped inspire both teams to play good, hard-hitting football. It had a great atmosphere, and the kids responded. Our guys should be really proud of knocking off an excellent Meyersdale team."

Steeler Squads Split In Post-Season Debuts

The Northern Steeler Division I and II teams recorded a split over the weekend as the Cumberland Area Youth Football League playoffs got under way. Northern's Division I squad saw its season come to a close as it was shut out in a 34-0 loss to Braddock, but the Division II unit redeemed the Steelers' program with a 41-0 throttling of the Oakland Rams behind a four-touchdown performance by running back Randy Wiley.

Sunday's Division I loss took place at Allegany High School, where Braddock's Corey Taylor turned two touchdowns, one on a 15-yard run and the other on a 55-yard interception return. Taylor also recorded a second interception, seven tackles, a forced fumble, and a fumble recovery. Teammate Brian Mathews ran 10 times for 135 yards and a touchdown, and also forced a fumble. The win advances Braddock to a second round playoff game this Saturday at Keyser.

The Division II triumph was all Northern's game from start to finish, as the Steelers scored in each of the four stanzas. Wiley got the ball rolling in the first quarter with a three-yard touchdown carry, which was followed by a Zach Fratz conversion run.

Ryan Evans reeled off a 17 yard scoring run in the second quarter. Wiley carried the ball 13 yards for his second touchdown before the half, and Kyle Gillum's point-after kick put the Steelers up 21-0 at the intermission.

The second half was a near carbon copy of the first, as Northern again scored three times. Wiley popped into the end zone at the end of a 10-yard run, then followed up with a 39-yard scoring reception off a Nick Graham toss for his fourth touchdown of the day. Graham scored in the fourth quarter on a 16-yard keeper, and Gillum's conversion kick put the 41st and final Steeler points on the board.

For the day, Wiley tallied 95 yards on just 10 carries as he followed some fine blocking from Northern offensive linemen Eddie Lytle, J.P. Law, Mike Rugola, Tyler Kamp, and Nathan Dawson.

Oakland's coaching staff noted the defensive efforts of Rams Cameron Cummings and Seth Hinebaugh.

The Steelers are slated to host the Ridgeley Rams on Saturday at Northern High as their title hunt continues.

Both Northern CAYFL squads, along with the unbeaten Pee Wee League Maddawgs, will be recognized during a special halftime ceremony tomorrow evening during the NHS varsity home game against Petersburg.

Maddawgs Erase Reds To Garner Superbowl Berth

Although the combatants may be small in stature, it shapes up to be a clash of titans this weekend in Cumberland as the undefeated Northern Maddawgs take on the unbeaten Keyser Mini-Tornadoes in the Pee Wee Football League's "Superbowl." The Maddawgs staked their claim to a berth in the championship contest by downing the South Cumberland Reds by a two-touchdown margin, 27-13, in Sunday's divisional championship.

Northern's B team took the field for the first quarter, and hit paydirt after a long drive when Cameron Kamp bounced to the outside for a one-yard scoring carry. Matt Thomas followed with the point-after run to give the Maddawgs a 7-0 lead.

The Reds countered with a touchdown run of their own, then shortly before the first stanza clock expired, they struck again to take a 13-7 advantage.

The Maddawgs A squad came out strong in the second quarter to put two touchdowns on the board. The first came when Northern's Patrick Beckman rolled out and rumbled 22 yards on a keeper to tie the score at 13-13. Josh Duckworth put Northern ahead for good when he scampered 44 yards up the middle to give the 'Dawgs a 19-13 halftime lead.

The second half was all Northern's, as the B team defenders clogged the line of scrimmage and held Cumberland to just one first down throughout the third quarter. Not to be outdone, the offense got into the act again when Kamp sprinted 13 yards into the end zone for his second touchdown of the day.

The Northern A unit defense showed its stuff in the final stanza, as Maddawg defender Trevor Tombley corralled the Reds' quarterback in the Cumberland end zone for a safety that brought the score to its final 27-13 margin.

The Northern-Keyser Superbowl match-up will get under way at 2 p.m. Sunday at Greenway Avenue Stadium.

The Maddawgs will be honored for their fine season during a special halftime ceremony that will take place at tomorrow night's homefield NHS varsity game with Petersburg. Both Northern Steeler squads of the Cumberland Area Youth Football League will also be recognized during those festivities.

Husky, Wildcat Jayvees Battle To 22-22 Tie

The Northern High School junior varsity football squad deadlocked with host Westmar Monday in a fierce contest that ended with the score knotted at 22-all.

The opponents were evenly matched throughout the contest, as evidenced by a first quarter that ended in a 14-14 tie. The tally remained deadlocked until the third stanza when the hosts put a touchdown and a two-point conversion on the board to go up by eight. The Huskies responded with a touchdown and two-point conversion of their own to knot the score again before the quarter ended. The defensive struggle resumed in the final stanza as neither offense was able to find the end zone for the remainder of the contest.

NHS's Cory Carr rolled up 150 rushing yards on his way to one touchdown, while teammate Casey Kamp scored the other two Husky touchdowns. Kamp tallied 96 yards on the ground. Westmar's Justin Keller scored all three of his team's touchdowns and rushed for 191 yards.

Northern is slated to visit Petersburg for a Monday evening JV outing.

Southern Girls Whip Huskies, Campers, Wildcats; Record 12-2

The varsity girls' soccer team of Southern High School, led by senior forward Sabrina Scheffel, concluded the regular season this past week by recording a 3-1 victory over county rival Northern on Saturday in Oakland, a 3-0 win over host Allegany on Tuesday, and a 6-0 thrashing of Westmar last night in Lonaconing.

Scheffel scored a total of eight goals in the two-match effort, including two against the Huskies and hat tricks versus both the Campers and the Wildcats, as the Rams concluded with an overall record of 12-2.

Casey Taylor started the scoring against the Huskies on Saturday with an unassisted goal at the 12:08 mark of the first half.

Scheffel followed with her own unassisted goal with 4:43 to play before intermission to give the Rams a 2-0 advantage.

Scheffel made it 3-0 just 45 seconds into the second half of action with a goal off an assist by Taylor.

The Huskies averted a shutout when Lyndsi Butler took a feed from Tiffany Yoder and scored at the 28:55 mark.

Southern finished with a 16-13 edge in shots and a 5-0 lead in corner kicks.

Senior Keeper Alasha Rush turned away all 13 of the Huskies' attempts, and Sarah Masters was credited with seven saves.

The loss dropped the Huskies to 8-5. Northern recorded a 3-1 win over host Fort Hill last Thursday, and dropped a tough, 2-1 contest to top-ranked Beall on Tuesday (see other story for details).

Scheffel scored two goals within a two-minute span late in the first half and one in the second Tuesday night in the Rams' blanking of Allegany.

Her first came with about eight minutes left in the half off a feed by Taylor, and her second was recorded just two minutes later, this time off an assist by Robbin Gregg.

She completed her hat trick about 10 minutes into the second half with an unassisted goal.

The Rams controlled the match offensively, finishing with a 13-3 lead in shots. The Campers led in corner kicks, 2-1.

Rush stopped all three of Alco's shots, while Lyndsay Twigg had seven saves for the Campers.

The loss evened Allegany's record at 6-6-2.

Scheffel scored the first three goals against Westmar last night in a match that was somewhat closer than the score indicated.

The Rams finished with a 16-7 lead in shots on goal, and neither team had a corner kick.

Scheffel scored her first goal off an assist by Casey Taylor at about the 26-minute mark, and her second came with about nine minutes remaining in the first half off a feed by Robbin Gregg to give the Rams a 2-0 advantage at intermission.

She completed her second hat trick in three matches with a goal about four minutes into the second half, again off an assist by Taylor.

Alasha Rush, who has numerous shutouts to her credit this season, had seven stops in goal for the Rams, while Rae Fazenbaker recorded 10 for the Wildcats, who dropped to 2-10-1.

The Rams drew a bye in the first round of the 1A West Region playoffs and will host Boonsboro in a second-round match next Tuesday, with the kickoff set for 6 p.m.

The win upped Beall's season mark to 10-0-1 and secured a top seeding in the regional playoffs.

Northern Girls Top Sentinels, Fall To Rams, Mountaineers

It was a one-win, two-loss week for the Northern High School girls' varsity soccer team, which concluded its regular season with an 8-6 record and will host Clear Spring in a Class 1A West Region playoff match next Thursday.

The Huskies defeated host Fort Hill last Thursday, 3-1, dropped a 3-1 match to host Southern on Saturday (see other story for details), and lost a 2-1 overtime heartbreaker to top-ranked Beall Tuesday evening at the Cove.

Senior striker Lyndsi Butler earned a hat trick in the win over Fort Hill, with her first goal coming midway through the first half off an assists by Megan Shaffer.

The score was tied at 1-1 when Fort Hill's Lauren Ronan scored on a penalty kick at the 13:14 mark of the first half.

The score remained knotted until about midway through the second half when Butler put the Huskies on top for good with an unassisted goal.

She added an insurance goal and gained the hat trick with a goal off an assist by Karie Kamp with 10:06 remaining in the match.

Northern finished with a 15-7 advantage in shots and a 3-2 edge in corner kicks.

Sarah Masters had four saves in goal for the Huskies, while Whitney Marker was credited with five for the Sentinels, who dropped to 6-5-2.

Butler scored the Huskies' only goal in the loss to Southern, and her scoring efforts continued right into Tuesday's big match with Beall, as she put the Huskies up 1-0 with a goal at the 23:01 mark of the first half. Getting an assist on the play was Laura Costa.

The undefeated Mountaineers knotted the score at 1-1 with 3:33 left in the half when Abby Snyder recorded a goal off a feed by Ashley Swarner.

The score remained 1-1 through the entire second half, forcing the overtime period. Tasha Wilhelm preserved the Mountaineers' unbeaten streak by scoring a sudden-death goal with 5:30 left in the extra 10-minute period.

Beall held a 14-9 edge in shots on goal and a 2-1 lead in corner kicks.

Masters recorded nine saves in the net for the Huskies, and Kacey Kahl earned three for Beall.

The end result was identical to that of the first encounter between the Huskies and the Mountaineers, with Beall needing a second overtime period to win the match, 2-1, in Frostburg on Sept. 16.

PSC Ties PG After Loss To Hagerstown CC

In a hard-fought contest that ended tied at 1-1 after two overtime sessions, the Potomac State College Catamounts came away from the match satisfied with the results against Prince George's CC, which was ranked 15th nationally.

Prince George's led in shots on goal, 14-6, but PSC led in corners, 5-3. Scott Kallner scored the lone goal for the Cats on an assist by Kwandwo Duah. Willis King made 12 saves in the net. Outstanding play was recorded by Kallner, Johnathan Buxton, Bradley Anderson, and Corey Diehl.

Former Northern standout Shawn Fike participated in this match. Potomac State's record now stands at 6-5-1.

In action last Thursday, PSC fell to Hagerstown CC by a score of 4-1, even though PSC led in shots, 17-12, and in corners, 5-4. PSC's goal was scored by Chadd Wood on an assist by James Benton. Fike also played in this match.

PSC's closing match of the season will be this Friday, Oct. 24, at 6 p.m. at CCBC-Catonsville.

Husky Booters Mash Rams, Lose Heartbreaker To Beall

A big 5-1 victory over county rival Southern High School last Thursday in Accident and a tough, 1-0 loss to top-ranked Beall Tuesday evening in Frostburg rounded out the 2003 regular soccer season for the Northern High School boys' varsity.

The split left the Huskies with its best record ever at 10-3-1 and a bye in the first round of the 1A West Region playoffs. Northern will host Southern in the playoffs next Tuesday.

The win over the Rams last Thursday gave the Huskies and Coach Tom Ables their first-ever 10-win season.

Derek Cutter finished the match with a hat trick and an assist for Northern, while Scott Pusateri and Max Beitzel accounted for the other two goals.

Cutter opened the scoring with a goal at the 35:00 mark of the first half off an assist by Preston Sisler.

Cutter made it 2-0 about seven minutes later, this time scoring off a feed by Chris Speicher.

Pusateri put the Huskies up 3-0 when he scored off an assist by Torrey Poholsky with 24 minutes left in the first half.

The Rams finally got on the board when Bobby Bonser was fouled in the penalty area and connected on the ensuing PK with 16:48 remaining before intermission.

But that would be the only Southern goal for the evening. Cutter completed his hat trick just three minutes into the second half with a goal off another feed by Speicher.

Beitzel concluded the Huskies' point production with a goal off an assist by Cutter with 8:04 to play.

The Huskies dominated in shots on goal by a 30-5 margin, and also in corner kicks, 6-0.

Chris Fickes was credited with three saves for Northern, while Ram keeper Taylor Crabtree had 18.

The Rams (2-11) also fell to Bishop Walsh on Monday (see other story).

The Huskies were outgunned by top-ranked Beall Tuesday evening, 25-7, but Fickes had an outstanding night in the net for the Huskies as he stopped 13 of the Mountaineers' shots.

The final score was also a significant improvement over the outcome of the first meeting between the two teams, as Beall dominated, 7-1.

The only ball that got past Fickes for the entire match was one booted by Jared Bridges, who scored unassisted, with 23:46 remaining in the match.

The Mounties also led in corner kicks, 9-2.

The win gave the Mountaineers a perfect, 14-0, regular season. They also were awarded a bye in the playoffs and will meet the winner of the Clear Spring/Westmar match.

The Beall junior varsity also concluded its campaign undefeated (12-0), topping the Husky jayvees in the preliminary contest, 5-1. Scoring the lone goal for the Huskies was Zack Beitzel. Eric Wood had eight saves in goal for Northern.

The Huskies' match against Southern next Tuesday will kick off at 7:30 p.m.

Rams Rolled By Frankfort, Rebound To Sweep Huskies

The Southern High School varsity volleyball team suffered its second defeat of the year Monday in a 3-0 sweep at the hands of the unbeaten Frankfort Falcons, but the Rams bounced back into the winning column with a sweep of the host Northern High Huskies last night in the Cove. SHS's varsity has an 11-2 record, good for second in the area behind Frankfort's mark.

Monday night's showdown at Southern turned out to be a Falcon runaway, with the visitors taking game victories of 25-9, 25-17, and 25-14.

SHS junior Bethany Steyer recorded nine assists and classmates Kayla Nazelrod, Julia Bosley, and Sarah Bittinger each contributed three kills to the Rams' effort. Frankfort was paced by Angie Jenkins's 20 points, 17 digs, seven kills, and five aces.

The junior varsity matchup pitted two unbeaten squads. Southern fell by a narrow 25-22 margin in the first battle, then the Falcons roared out to a 25-14 nightcap win. Sarah Stephens and Natalie Rohrbaugh had six points apiece for the Rams.

Last night's cross-county showdown ended with host Southern taking three straight, 25-15, 25-13, and 25-21. Nazelrod netted 13 kills, Steyer stroked 12 service points while dishing out 10 assists, and senior Megan Pike contributed 10 assists as well. Bosley recorded eight kills, and junior Erica Pratt had six kills. Randi Bennett tallied 10 points.

Northern was paced by junior Jayme Miller's eight attacks and six points, while classmate Lakin Weimer added seven attacks and four points. Senior Erin Festerman had eight attacks, and junior Dani Glotfelty contributed five points.

Southern won the jayvee match 25-16, 25-21. Stephens led the Rams with six points, three kills, and one ace, and Sarah Rexrode tallied three kills and three assists. Junior Lakin Weimer paced the NHS effort with seven attacks, one kill, and four service points, while sophomore Angie Umbel recorded seven attacks, two kills, and three service points. Jayme Miller, a junior, tallied seven attacks and one kill.

Struggling Garrett Netters Swept Five Times In A Row

The Garrett College volleyball squad hit a slump this week that saw its fortunes plummet with five consecutive losses, all by sweeps, over a seven-day period. The Lakers fell to visiting Hagerstown last Wednesday, Oct. 15, by a 3-0 margin, then dropped all three of their matches Friday during the opening round of the Hagerstown Tournament to the host Hawks, Delaware Tech, and Catonsville. In a Tuesday rematch with Catonsville, GC was swept yet again as its season record fell to 10-16.

Hagerstown recorded 30-11, 30-21, and 30-15 game wins last Wednesday. Laker sophomores Jolene Brenneman and Marlena Raines each recorded 11-for-13 tallies from the service line for eight points apiece, and Raines added four digs and nine assists. Freshman Tiffany McFarland had two aces and was 6-for-8 on serves, while classmate Amanda Frantz, like Brenneman a Northern High graduate, had 12 digs, four kills, and was 9-for-12 on attacks. Freshman Autumn Beavers had eight kills and was 20-for-23 on attacks, and sophomore and Southern High alumna Erin Frantz had four kills and was 9-for-10 on attacks.

During Friday's pool play that opened the Hagerstown tournament, Garrett lost all three of its outings by 2-0 tallies.

The Hawks took 30-15 and 30-24 wins from Garrett to start the day's slide. Raines, Erin Frantz, and McFarland netted one ace apiece, and Amanda Frantz recorded four digs. Beavers had three digs, six kills, and a block, and freshman Heather Glotfelty had two kills. Erin Frantz had six points, Raines had five, and McFarland contributed two solo blocks and one assist.

Delaware Tech bested the Lakers 30-28 and 30-19 The win was the 16th in 19 matches for the Spartans.

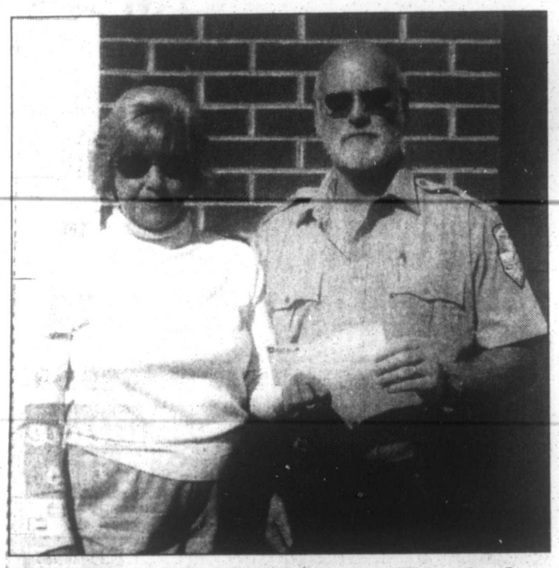
Lemley presented each of the volunteer fire/EMS organizations with a $2,200 check, and a $4,400 check was donated to the GCMH Foundation. The event also featured a 50/50 drawing, with the $879.50 winner's pot divided between Oakland residents Mike Phillippi and Marc Knotts. Over the six years since its inception, the Al Lemley Memorial Golf Tournament has raised $59,200 for organizations that serve the local community.



Southern Golfers Finish Fourth In State Tourney

The Southern High School boys' golf team capped a superb campaign by turning in a fourth-place finish against a field of much larger schools in the Maryland State 1A/2A Championship Tournament over the weekend. The match was played on the University of Maryland College Park Golf Course.

Southern's 335 team score, recorded by the Ram quartet of Matt Skidmore, Josh Lear, Travis Friend, and Joe Albert, was good for a fourth-place tie with North Harford. J.M. Bennett repeated as the state champ with a 318, four shots ahead of runnerup Pikesville's 322. Walkersville took third by carding a 332.

The Rams were paced by Skidmore's 80, which tied him for 17th place overall. Lear turned in an 81 to tie for 18th place, Friend carded an 86, and Albert shot an 88. Low-medalist honors went to Pikesville's Michelle Grilli and Aberdeen's Patrick Hinch after each shot a 75.

The top female finisher from western Maryland was Jessica Jewell of Allegany, who tied for seventh in the girls' individual standings with a 94.

This was the first year for the tournament's new split-class format, whereas all four classes competed together in years past. The 4A-3A golfers played their own one-day tournament earlier this week.

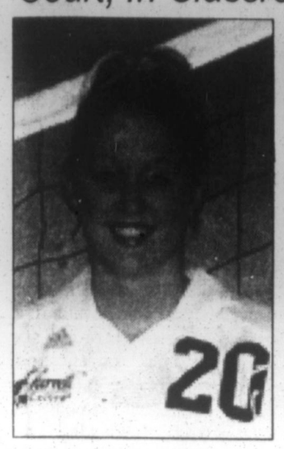
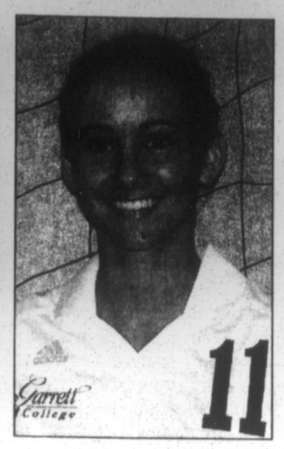
NHS Grads Use Smarts On GC Court, In Classroom To Succeed



AMANDA FRANTZ



MOLLY WOLF

Two recent graduates of Northern High School who were recognized for their athletic and academic accomplishments in high school are now playing volleyball for the Garrett College Lady Lakers. Both women are continuing to excel in the classroom and on the volleyball court, according to Ann Wellham, volleyball coach and professor of health and physical education.

Amanda Frantz of Friendsville is a hitter for the Lakers. At Northern she was president of the Garrett County Student Council Association, vice president of the girls' varsity club, class president, a member of the honor roll all four years, and a member of the National Honor Society. Her recognitions include Student of the Month and Student Athlete of the Month. She lettered in volleyball, basketball, and softball and was named Most Valuable Player in the Turkeyfoot Christmas Basketball Tournament two different years.

In her senior year Frantz earned the basketball accolades of All-WMIL First Team, All-Area Second Team, and NHS Most Valuable Player. She was also selected to the All-WMIL First Team and named Best Offensive Player in softball.

Frantz was also a member of 4-H, the School Improvement Team, and the Principal's Advisory Committee. She is the daughter of Mark and Cindy Frantz.

Molly Wolf, daughter of Mike and Linda Wolf of Friendsville, is a Garrett setter. Her NHS career included honors as Student of the Month and Student Athlete of the Month, Outstanding Female Student of the Year, and Outstanding Female Athlete of the Year.

She was a member of the National Honor Society, was a senior class officer and a student council representative, and was a member of the Best Buddies and the Snowy Creek 4-H Club. She is also a member of the Asher Glade Church of the Brethren youth group. Her future goal is to become a nurse.

"Both of these women chose Garrett College because it is close to their homes and they wanted a small college environment," said Wellham. "They've had a positive impact on our team.

"It is very important for us to draw talent from local high schools. We depend on them to maintain the high quality of our program."

DNR Reports On Trout Stockings

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Fisheries Service expects to complete its popular fall trout-stocking program this week. DNR crews have begun placing 33,000 "exceptionally nice" rainbow trout in streams, lakes, and ponds in 10 counties, including Garrett, and Baltimore City.

The wet summer produced excellent conditions for this year's fall stocking, according to the DNR. The rainbows average more than 15 inches and nearly a pound, and some fish weigh more than 5 pounds. Most of the stocked waters are put-and-take fishing areas, which allow anglers to keep up to five trout per day. Several other waters are being stocked as well, including delayed-harvest waters and some areas governed by statewide trout regulations. Anglers should check the Maryland Sportfishing Guide for the regulations that apply.

The stocking for Garrett County was done the week of October 10 and included the following totals: 625 in Bear Creek, 1,000 in the Youghiogheny River near Friendsville, 625 in the North Branch of the Potomac at Kitzmilier, 700 in the Casselman River, and 800 in the Upper North Branch of the Potomac.

For a full report of the waters to be stocked and the number of rainbow trout to be released at each location, persons may visit DNR's web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/fisheries. A final report will be issued once the fall stocking has been completed.

Fall Turkey Season To Open This Saturday

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) director Paul A. Peditto reminds hunters that Maryland's fall turkey season will open Saturday, Oct. 25, and close Saturday, Nov. 1. As in the past, the season will be open only in Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties, and the bag limit is one turkey.

"Fall turkey hunting has a rich tradition in western Maryland," Peditto said. "Whether hunters are hoping to take home a Thanksgiving bird or simply want to spend time with friends and family in the western mountains, the fall turkey season is a great opportunity for Maryland's sportsmen and women."

Although wild turkeys are abundant in the fall-hunted counties, bagging a turkey may be a challenge for hunters this year. Field surveys conducted by DNR staff suggest that wild turkey reproduction was severely hampered this spring and summer. "Cold and rainy weather prevailed throughout much of the nesting season, and that resulted in poor nesting conditions and low poult survival," Peditto said.

Typically, the fall harvest varies greatly from year to year, depending on poult production, weather during the nesting season, mast crops, and hunter participation. Reproductive success is probably the most important; it affects the number of turkeys in the field, which in turn affects hunter success and total fall harvests. If past years with similar reproduction are any indication, the fall harvest may drop again this year. Last fall, following a below-average reproductive season, 235 turkeys were harvested in the one-week season.

One source of optimism, at least for hunters, may be the poor mast crop in the western counties. When mast, such as acorns and beechnuts, is scarce, turkeys will often congregate near any available food source or venture into fields looking for food. Hunters who know where to look are usually more successful. Mast surveys conducted in August and September by DNR staff show that acorns in the western counties are in short supply this year. So although there may be fewer birds out there, hunters may be able to locate them readily and have a better chance for success.

Hunters should note that western Maryland provides excellent opportunities for fall turkey hunters on public lands. The region hosts more than 150,000 acres of state forests and wildlife management areas, giving public-land hunters plenty of habitat to explore while pursuing this magnificent game bird.

Interested hunters should consult DNR's web site at www.dnr.state.md.us or the guide Hunting and Trapping in Maryland 2003-2004 for more information on public lands and fall turkey regulations.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE SUN – In November, the duration of sunlight shrinks by a little less than two minutes each day. November 1 has 10 hours and 30 minutes of sunlight: November 30 has 9 hours and 36 minutes of sunlight. November opens with 6:46 a.m. sunrises; the last day of November will have a 7:19 a.m. sunrise. Early November sunsets are about 5:17 p.m. which fall back to 4:55 p.m. as the month ends. In mid November, one can view the fainter stars as late as 6 a.m. and as early as 6 p.m.

THE MOON – November opens with the moon about half full in the evening sky. Up through November 4 the moon will be at its best for crater spotting through binoculars and telescopes. The moon will appear close to the brilliant planet Mars on November 3. The full moon on November 8 will feature an early evening lunar eclipse. Around 6:30 p.m. that evening, the moon will enter the Earth's shadow. Between 8:06 and 8:32 p.m. the moon will be darkest, likely appearing deep orange in color. By 10 p.m. the moon will be free of the Earth's shadow and be as bright as any full moon. On November 13 the nearly full moon will appear near the bright planet Saturn in the late evening sky. On November 18 the crescent moon will appear near the bright planet Jupiter in the southeastern dawn. On November 25 the crescent moon will reappear in the western dusk, then near the brilliant planet Venus. November ends with the moon half full in the evening sky.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS – Our nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steady, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. The planet Mars dominates the southern evening sky with its yellowish tint. The planet Saturn moves into the mid evening sky in November, lying to the left of the star group Orion in the East. The brilliant planet Venus gradually creeps into the western dusk during November. The bright morning planet is Jupiter, shining high in the Southeast at dawn. The planet Mercury can be seen briefly low in the western dusk as November ends.

NOVEMBER'S BEST SIGHTS – Mars is still striking in the southern evening sky, still outshining all evening stars. The two brightest evening stars are on opposite sides of the North Star. Low in the Northwest is the white-blue star Vega. High in the Northeast is the bright golden star Capella. As Capella climbs, Vega sinks toward the horizon. In the eastern sky is the Pleiades or Seven Sisters star cluster, resembling a tiny dipper.

NOVEMBER ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES – The Frostburg State Planetarium offers free public programs on the first four Sundays in November with show times at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Our November feature is "China Skies, Our Sun and Its View." The planetarium is in the front lobby of Tawes Hall near the middle of the FSU campus. Call 301-687-4270 for directions and more information.

The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet November 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the LaVale Public Library. All sky gazers are welcome.

Doyle writes this column for those who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure or sky charts, call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts "SkyWatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM on 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

Celestial Mgmt. Slates Teenage Band Contest

Celestial Management, Cumberland, recently announced that it will conduct a teenage band competition from May through August 2004.

Five bands will be chosen to perform for monthly competitions in May, June, and July. Industry professionals will serve as judges, with one portion of the judging coming from audience applause.

The winning band from each month will then return in August for the final competition. The grand-prize winner will receive $5,000, studio recording time, and an artist management contract with Celestial Management.

Band members must be between the ages of 13 and 18 and not signed to a professional recording contract. Bands selected to compete will receive a full listing of contest rules and regulations.

To be considered, the company requests that each band mail a video or CD of a performance, a photograph, and a biography listing the names of the members and their ages to Celestial Management, 61 Baltimore Street, Cumberland, MD 21502. All entries must be received by Nov. 30.

Participants are also asked to list the names of the songs performed and the composers' names. Bands must send at least two songs, but no more than five.

"This competition welcomes every style of music," said a company spokesperson. "However, songs with vulgar lyrics will disqualify your band."

All material received becomes property of Celestial Management and will not be returned. For more information, persons may call the company at 301-722-1085.

Adult Winners Of Storytelling Festival Named

The adult winners of this year's Autumn Glory Tall Tale Storytelling Festival have been announced. Sponsored by Garrett's American Association of University Women, this scholarship fund-raising event was held in the fellowship hall of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland. The winners of the children's competition were announced last week.

First place in the adult division went to Bill Watkins, Pikesville, for his "true" story about growing up in the South. Second place went to Jack Slocomb for his original Paul Bunyan story. Slocomb has written an entire book of Bunyan stories, noted Dr. Gail Herman, festival organizer.

Third place went to Southern Middle School student Joanna Guy for her creative story about looking for hyperbole in her life. She was last year's first place winner in the student storytelling festival and was eligible this year to compete in the adult competition.

Dr. William "Doc" Savage, Swanton, won Most Humorous. "Doc was one of the earliest first-prize winners years ago when the festival first began," said Herman.

Paul Shogren, Oakland, won Best Dramatic Effect for audience involvement in his story about the adventures of the Lewis & Clark expedition. He told the tale in the "down-east" tradition of something good, something bad.

Additionally, Gordon Williams, Swanton, won Best Characters. Joan Whetsell, Addison, Pa., won Most Entertaining for her "Mule Eggs" tall tale. Bob O'Brien was also recognized for being the most patient, poised, and committed storyteller.

"O'Brien told a true story on stage while holding his young son and being adored by his daughters who sat at his feet," said Herman.

This year's adult portion of the storytelling festival also featured three "special treats," according to Herman. The first was the storytelling debut of "Mountain Grandma," Jeannie Whitehair of Terra Alta, W.Va. During intermission between the children and adult competitions, Whitehair told a story about her grandchildren and Brown Bear, a "very special" animal who called upon his inner strength to save himself.

"All the children were asked to sit on the stage while Mountain Grandma told the original story," said Herman. "The audience was captivated!"

The second treat was 88-year-old Mary Thornburg, Friendsville, who told her grandfather's story about the "Magic Wishing Ball" that was really a hornet's nest. She received the prize for the most creative telling.

The third special event at the festival featured Dr. Sally Stephenson, Frostburg, who sang ballads and other songs to her original guitar accompaniment. She performs regionally and will present a workshop, along with Herman, for teachers on music and stories in the classroom at the National Association for Gifted Children Conference in Indianapolis in November.

"MOUNTAIN GRANDMA" TELLS A TALE – Jeannie Whitehair, also know as Mountain Grandma, is shown above telling the story of Brown Bear during the recent Autumn Glory Tall Tale Festival at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland. Yarn spinners of all ages participated in this annual scholarship fund-raising event, sponsored by Garrett's American Association of University Women. See story for adult competition winners. Winners of the children's division were named last week. Photo by John McEwen.

Sylvia To Be Presented At Frostburg State

Frostburg State University Theatre's Season Too! series will present A.R. Gurney's contemporary comedy Sylvia on Friday, Oct. 31, and Saturday, Nov. 1, at 8 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre.

Directed by FSU student and Southern High School graduate Gina Powell, Sylvia humorously tells the story of Greg (Jeff Robbins) and Kate (Katie Norris), who move to Manhattan after 22 years of raising children in the suburbs. While Greg's career as a financial trader winds down, Kate's career as a public school English teacher begins to offer more opportunities.

Greg brings home a dog that he found (or who found him) in the park bearing only the name "Sylvia" on her nametag. A street-smart mixture of lab and poodle, Sylvia (Coty Warn) becomes a major bone of contention between husband and wife. Sylvia offers Greg an escape from the frustrations of this job and the unknown complexities of middle age, whereas to Kate, Sylvia becomes a rival for affection. Sylvia thinks Kate just doesn't understand the relationship between man and dog. The couple's marriage is put in serious jeopardy until, after a series of hilarious and touching complications, Greg and Kate learn to compromise, and Sylvia becomes a valued part of their lives.

All tickets are $3. For reservations and further information, persons may call the theatre box office at 301-687-7462.

Oakland Girl's Art Will Help Fight Cancer

Drawing is one of Becky Diller's favorite pastimes, and drawing cats is her favorite thing to sketch. This Oakland youngster is among the holiday greeting card design winners selected at this year's U.S. Cellular Card of Hope summer party, a joint project of the Mary Babb Randolph Cancer Center and West Virginia University Children's Hospital.

During the event, current and former WVUCH cancer patients and their families designed numerous, inspirational holiday greeting cards. Twelve of them, including Becky's, were selected to be part of the 2003 Cards of Hope collection. In fact, her designs were chosen at least five times in previous years.

The cards are marketed throughout the tri-state area by volunteers and by U.S. Cellular stores. Proceeds benefit the Pediatric Cancer Care and Research Fund at WVU Children's Hospital.

Becky's card is titled "Kitty Christmas," and is sponsored by BB and T.

In 1997, Becky, the daughter of Marilyn and John Diller, was diagnosed with leukemia at WVU Children's Hospital. She received a bone marrow transplant from her donor and brother, Stephen Diller.

"She's doing really good," said Marilyn. "You wouldn't know she was ever sick."

Becky, who will turn 10 this month, has always enjoyed drawing. "When she was younger, she was fascinated with how a pen or pencil would look on different textures, including my walls," Marilyn said. "She even colored herself."

According to her mother, Becky enjoys visiting leukemia patients at WVU's Children's Hospital. "Dealing with cancer puts a lot more pressure on families," Marilyn said. "I'm glad it made our family stronger."

The Cancer Center has started taking orders for the holiday greeting cards. Persons may also order them online at www.cardsofhope.com. For more information, persons may also call 304-293-3711.

Arts Council Honors Beth Johnson With "Friend of the Arts" Award

The Garrett County Arts Council presented its ninth annual "Friend of the Arts" award to Beth Johnson, former executive director of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, during last week's performance of the Capitol Quartet and the Garrett Community Concert Band at Garrett College. The award recognizes "exemplary support of Garrett County arts."

Carole Perez, president of the Garrett County Arts Council, announced the award during a break in the concert. Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the council, presented Johnson with a spray of roses, a plaque, and a gift certificate to the Gallery in Oakland.

In making the announcement, Perez commented on Johnson's "tireless energy, dedication, and commitment" to the local arts community, and "unforgettable smile."

A GLAF spokesperson noted that Johnson has "an uncanny ability to meet people where they are and bring them along. She's known for her attention to detail as well as her grasp of the 'big picture.' Her energy is contagious. She's passionate about the performing arts in Garrett County."

Johnson served the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival as executive director from 1998 to 2003 following two years with the organization's board of directors.

Prior to moving to Garrett County as a full-time resident in 1996, she worked as planning director, grants chairman, and president of a large arts organization in the South Hills area of Pittsburgh. As supervisor of recreation in Peters Township, she was responsible for the presentation of outdoor concerts and the direction of programs for youth, senior citizens, and the disabled.

Johnson received her bachelor of arts degree in secondary education from St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., and taught in Illinois, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania. She is an active member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland and a volunteer at the Christian Crossing Thrift Shop in Loch Lynn. She plans to return to the board of directors of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival this month.

She is married to Scott Johnson. They have one son, two daughters, and one grandchild.

Prior recipients of the "Friend of the Arts" award are/were: Esther Yoder (1995), Dorothy Leighton (1996), Ron Skidmore and Martin Heise (1997), Nancy Learey (1998), Jane Avery (1999), Kathryn Sincell-Corwell (2000), Ben Sincell (2001), and Marcette Danner (2002).

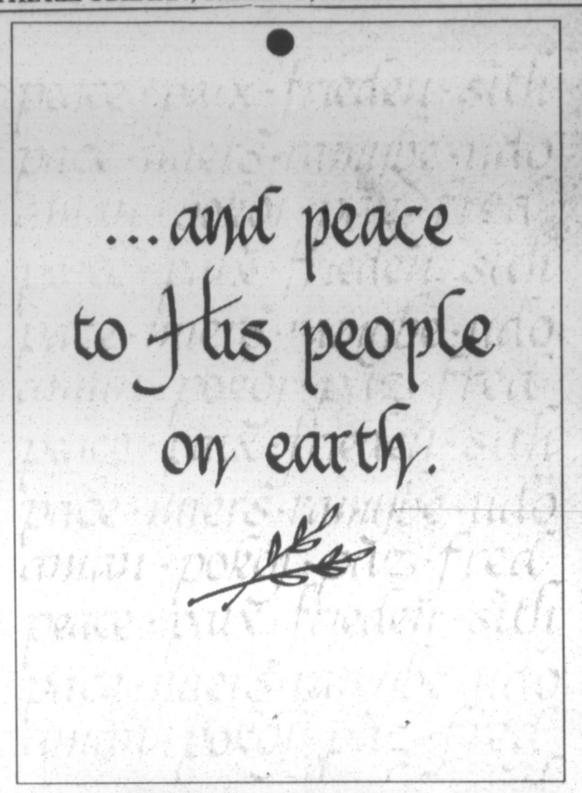
GC HAUNTED HOUSE "INVITATION" — A House of Hope benefit at Garrett College will take a decidedly ghoulish turn when the Halloween Haunted House opens for tours from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 30. The Haunted House, which is open to the public, has no admission charge, but "guests" are asked to bring canned goods for the House of Hope. Treats will be given to children after a guided tour led by members of the Student Government Association and the Garrett Hall Residence Council, co-sponsors of the event. Pictured from the left in the front row are Karen Gallagher, Stacy Sparks, and Garrett Foster, and "hanging out" in the back row are Brian Anderson and Tim Foster.



NOTHING SAYS CHRISTMAS like calligraphy, and this sample shares the peace of Christmas in 12 different languages. A November Garrett County Arts Council workshop will provide participants with all the tools they need to take up the "art of beautiful lettering." Registration is being accepted through the end of this month for the four-session workshop. See story.

Calligraphy Class Scheduled At Arts Council Gallery

The Garrett County Arts Council will present a four-session Calligraphy for the Holidays workshop at the Gallery in Oakland on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m., beginning Nov. 11 and concluding Nov. 20. Ornaments and calligraphy starter kits will be provided, and the registration deadline is Nov. 1.

Participants will learn to use calligraphy — "the art of beautiful lettering," according to course instructor Judy Hudson — to create personalized Christmas ornaments and to address holiday greeting cards. The workshop will include a brief history of calligraphy as an art form; design considerations; proper positioning of pens, paper, and hands; and practice time. All participants will take home a finished holiday ornament.

"Calligraphy talks to the person looking at it," said Hudson, who attended the Maryland Institute College of Art, and who has 30 years of experience with the art form. Calligraphy artists work with invitations, personalizations on cards and notes, announcements, customized envelopes, calligrams (pictures made with calligraphy), and other decorative and practical applications.

Additional information and enrollment forms can be obtained at the Gallery, located along Alder Street in Oakland, or by calling the Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

"THE BROKEN CHAIN"
We little knew that night that God was going to call your name.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
You did not go alone.
For part of us went with you
The day God called you home.
You left us happy memories,
Your love is still our guide.
And though we cannot see you
You are always at our side.
Our family chain is broken
And nothing seems the same.
But as God calls us one by one,
The chain will link again.

Love and miss you very much.
Love children, grandchildren, nieces & nephews

It seems like only yesterday
That we talked on the phone
If I knew it would Have been the last time we talked
I wish we had talked longer.

The day you brought over
My Birthday presents
I wish I would have hugged you longer.

When I came down to Do the dishes
I wish i would have Stayed longer.

When I look out
Into the field
I wish I could
See you riding the four-wheeler.

But wishes don't come true
I know as I wipe away a tear.
'Cause if they did Dad
You would still be here!

I miss you Dad

Miss Heidrich Weds Mr. Jones In August Event In Pittsburgh

Mindee Shalee Heidrich and Andrew Michael Jones were united in marriage during a candlelight ceremony on Saturday, August 30, 2003, in Christ United Methodist Church, Pittsburgh. The bride is the daughter of Robert and Merilee Heidrich of Accident, and the bridegroom is the son of Mike and Linda Jones and the grandson of Evelyn Fisher and Kenneth Jones, all of Coshocton, Ohio.

Reverend Chris Whitehead officiated. The musicians were pianist and vocalist Brandi Lavrich, classical guitarist Jeff Miller, violinist Amanda Kane, and the bride and her father as vocalists. The bride sang "Only God Could Love You More" to the groom.

The bride chose an antique cream strapless gown designed by Maggie Sottero with a corset back trimmed with Fiorenza lace. The bodice was embellished with Swarovski crystals and glass beads. The split A-line skirt revealed an inset panel of matching lace and crystals. A rhinestone head piece secured a fingertip veil of bridal illusion. The bride carried a nosegay of Leonidas and champagne roses, calla lilies, hypericum berries, and wheat.

Attending the bride were matrons of honor Merisue Monson, sister of the bride, and Jen Towsen, friend of the bride. Kim Klein, Susan Staub, Erica Meck, and Heather Dempsey, all friends of the bride, and Mandy Bolin, niece of the bride, served as bridesmaids. Bridal attendants wore cinnamon satin floor length dresses with matching stoles and carried a nosegay of roses, lilies, hypericum berries, and wheat. Wheat used throughout the floral arrangements was gathered by the bride and groom from the family farm in Kansas.

Serving as best man was Ryan Keenan, friend of the groom. The groomsmen were friends Shane Athey, Tony Fix, Mike Anderson, Fred Wilson, Jon Kurtz, and brother of the bride Dustin Heidrich.

Josh Lynch, nephew of the bride was an usher. Flower girl was Becca Boisvert, friend of the bride. Beau Monson and Blake Monson, nephews of the bride, served as ring bearer and Bible bearer, respectfully. Jessica Heidrich, cousin of the bride, was the guestbook attendant.

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom released large monarch butterflies in the garden of the church. A reception and dance were held at the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Pittsburgh. After a honeymoon stay on the island of St. Lucia, the couple took up residence in Pittsburgh, where Mindee is an occupational therapist for HCR Manor Care and Andrew is an accountant for Highmark Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

Grantsville Man Sentenced For Theft Scheme

A Grantsville man was handed a nine-month jail term after he pleaded guilty to a felony theft scheme charge during a recent Garrett County District Court proceeding.

Paul Douglas Knox, 50, Grantsville, received a two-year sentence, all but nine months of which was suspended, and was placed on two years' supervised probation by Judge Ralph M. Burnett. Knox's August arrest by Maryland State Police troopers stemmed from allegations that he repeatedly wrote bad checks on a family member's bank account without her permission. Several additional charges related to bad checks and forgeries were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In other District Court news, Mark Edward East, 24, Arlington, Va., pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a six-month sentence, half of which was suspended, a $500 fine, and two years of supervised probation. State troopers jailed East following an August traffic stop on Interstate 68, when a search uncovered multiple bags of marijuana, rolling papers, and weight scales concealed in his car. Additional charges of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted.

Kristin Lee Cusati, 22, Herndon, Va., was handed a one-year sentence with all but one month suspended after she entered a guilty plea to a marijuana possession charge filed by the state police. She also faces a $355 fine, two years' supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. Cusati's arrest followed an April traffic stop on Wes White Road, when a search uncovered quantities of marijuana and other items suspected to be drugs, and a smoking bong. Charges of possession of psilocybin, cocaine, LSD, and drug paraphernalia went unprosecuted.

Charlene Renee Brun, 34, Swanton, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but 14 days of which was suspended, and was placed on one year of supervised probation. Garrett County sheriff's deputies had jailed Brun in June for cursing and refusing to comply with their investigation into reports of her repeatedly trespassing onto a neighbor's property.

Jon Matthew Howell, 18, Swanton, was handed a 60-day sentence, all but five days of which was suspended, after he pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct charge. He was also

Deep Creek Lake Listings: 1-800-544-2425 · Oakland & Garrett County: 301-334-1500

Most people don't realize that there are 15 lakes in Garrett County. For the next several months, The Republican will provide information about each of those lakes in this column.

The author of the articles is Jack Slocomb, a retired industrial forester who resides in the Goodwill Village in Grantsville with his wife Evelyn. Originally from Cape Cod, Slocomb holds a master's degree in forestry from Yale University.

CUNNINGHAM LAKE

Location: Ten miles south of Grantsville and 22 miles northeast of Oakland on the west side of Rt. 495.

How to get there: From Grantsville follow Rt. 495 south 10 miles; lake is on the right. From Oakland, follow Rt. 219 north, turn onto Glendale Road, turn left onto Rt. 495, travel three miles and turn into 4-H park entrance on left.

Ownership: University of Maryland.

Management: Garrett County Cooperative Extension, Mtn. Lake Park; telephone 301-334-6960; Phil Buckel is supervisor of maintenance.

Purpose: Public recreation, 4-H educational center.

Description: A 25-acre elbow-shaped lake, approximately ½ mile long and ¼ mile wide, located in the center of an 1,100-acre track of land, mostly wooded. An extensive area of about 70 acrews of grassland on either side of the well-maintained, gravel approach road is kept as trim as a golf course. Planted stands of spruce and pine, 30' to 60' high, border the grasslands.

At the northern end of the lake there is a rock-faced, grass-covered, 500-foot-long dam with a spillway waterfall. The lake is fed by Pleasant Valley Run. The water is nearly clear, about 73 degrees in the summer. The bottom is sandy. The depth runs to 26' near the dam.

Facilities: Swimming beach, rustic bathhouse and toilets, shaded picnic area with tables, pavilion for 80 people.

Recreation: Swimming, relaxing under large shade trees bordering the beach, picnicking under the trees. Fishing from the shore, except in the swimming area (bass, blue gill, tiger muskee, sunfish, catfish).

Fees: Free!

General: No boating. Park is open 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. in summer (May 1 to mid-October).

4-H Educational Center: The Extension Service maintains and operates a 4-H camp on the northwest side of the lake. There are 12 camper cabins (each sleeps 12), three staff cabins (each sleeps 3-4), infirmary, shower house and bathrooms, lodge hall, two open-space pavilions, dining hall, new nature center, canoes, rowboats, volleyball and basketball courts, rifle range, archery facilities, baseball field, two campfire circles, low-rope challenge, nature trail, and an extensive bog and marsh for birding.

The camp is used by 4-H clubs from several Maryland counties for a week at a time, late June through July. These excellent facilities are available, however, to other groups. For rates and dates, call 1-301-334-6960.

RYAN'S GLADE
by Tara Marple
reporter

The regular monthly meeting was held October 21. Members of our club, Wes Steyer, Michael Steyer, and Josh Custer (who is not a member of our club), gave a demonstration on fire safety as part of their fire training to become firefighters. Another guest speaker, Bob Yeager, gave a program on farm safety.

There was also a reminder to any adults or members wanting to join the Livestock Association that they needed to pay their dues. Any members who sold animals at the fair are already members, as dues were taken out of their check.

It had been decided that a gift exchange will take place at our Christmas party in December. Record books need to be turned in during this time. Our next meeting will be held November 18 at the Community Building. New enrollment, Christmas craft, and election of new officers will be held during this meeting.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Q. What makes a "curve ball" curve ?

A. This is one of the truly enduring topics of discussion among scientists! It's not widely known, but physicists also like to sit around watching the world series and sharing a six-pack, and during the commercial breaks the subject of curve balls often comes up. A lot of people think that science is a sedate, arcane way of thinking; but for real fun, watch a group of physicists arguing about what makes a curve ball change directions.

It goes something like this:

Profound Theoretical Physicist #1 (Huey Bernouilli): "Look, I told you guys a dozen times, the ball is spinning and it drags along the air molecules right alongside in a boundary layer. On one side, the boundary layer is moving in the same direction as the ball, toward home plate, and on the other side the boundary layer is moving in the opposite direction. Alright? Right! So, what happens when the velocity is higher? The pressure goes down. On the other side, where the velocity is lower, whaddaya got? A higher pressure! Still with me? The ball has some area, right? So: {pressure} times {area} equals {force}. With the pressure high on one side and low on the other, there is a net force in one direction on the ball, which means, by Newton's Second Law .... Hey, pass the pretzels this way .... that the ball is going to move in the direction the force is pushing it – off to the side. That's a curve ball!"

Profound Theoretical Physicist #2 (Dewey Magnus): "Yeah, but you forgot all about turbulence! What you're talking about only applies in Little League, where the ball's going slow. In the Major leagues, ya gotta remember turbulence! That boundary layer you're spoutin' about doesn't stay in contact with the ball perfectly – it separates and the air behind the ball forms a wake, sorta like a boat. The air inside the wake gets turbulent. The point on the ball where the boundary layer separates is different on the fast side of the ball compared to the slow side of the ball, and so the wake bends off to one side. Now it's time for Newton's Third Law: bend the wake one way and the equal and opposite reaction requires that the ball bends the other way. Hey, Edith! Get me a beer!"

Profound Theoretical Physicist #3 (Louie Maxwell): "How can you guys forget about torque? You've seen a gyroscope or a spinning top, don't you remember? The ball is spinning, right? So it's got angular momentum, right? Exert a force F from some direction R on something with angular momentum and you have a torque T, which gives the ball a twist and sends it toward a different direction! .... look, I gotta drive a long way tonight – better just gimme a Pepsi ... You don't see a spinning top fall over, do you? No, it precesses around in a circle! Didn't your grandfather give you a dreidel when you were a kid?"

Wife (popping head in the door): "Boys, have they come to the two-minute warning yet? Should I put the roast in the oven for dinner?"

Huey: "You're tryin' to tell me the ball precesses like a top? You don't know anything!"

Dewey: "Look, one thing we can all agree on: gravity is going to pull the ball down toward the earth ... "

Louie: "Yeah, well, what about the effect of the stitching? That's sure gonna mess up that pretty little boundary layer!"

Dewey: "... so a curve ball can either make it sink faster or stay up higher and not fall as fast."

Huey: "How many beers have you had? We're not talking sinkers here, this is about a curve ball."

Louie: "No, Dewey's right – if the spin-axis of the ball is horizontal to begin with, the motion of the ball will be along the plus or minus Z axis, either up or down."

Huey: "So how do you make it curve sideways?"

Louie: "We got any more potato chips? ... The curving motion is going to go in whatever direction the front side of the ball is rotating toward. If you want it to curve sideways, flick your wrist and twist the axis of rotation just as you release the ball."

Huey: "You do that and it won't be moving as fast when you let go of it."

Dewey: "So what? The whole idea of a curve ball is to have the ball go one place while the bum swings somewhere else! If you're just trying to fan him, throw a fast ball down the middle at 100 miles an hour."

Louie: "Where you gonna find somebody who can throw that fast? Trade one of our Nobel Prize winners to Japan for a left-handed closer?"

Dewey: "What if the ball isn't spinning at all?"

Louie: "I never did understand knuckle-balls ... gee, these cheese doodles must be six months old."

Dewey: "Why do curve balls only move suddenly when they get near the plate?"

Huey: "Actually, the force of the differential air pressure is there all along, from the mound to the plate. But although the force causes an acceleration sideways, the sideways motion is very tiny for the first 75 feet, and only really gets to be noticeable in the final 15 feet. We say the curve ball 'breaks.' The batter hasn't got enough time to react."

Dewey: "I'm gonna get me another beer. Anybody else want one?"

Louie: "Hey, how'd they get three runs that inning?"

Huey: "While you were busy yakking, they were hitting curve balls, I guess."

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

To quote Lesa Whittemore, "the wind, oh, the wind." That was after the long, cold, windy weather last winter. This morning it blew open my front door, even though the storm/screen door was closed. I can't think many more dried leaves can stay on the trees. The few of my golden leaves just are shaking and shivering.

We still have farm machine traffic on the fields, including tractors, manure spreaders, harvesters, hay making machines, all involved in a frenzy of last-minute jobs. But anyway, we are still way better off than last year. I don't remember the date of last October's ice storm, but I am sure it was when the trees had most of their leaves still hanging on their branches, which was why the storm caused so much damage. If we still have our leaves above on the trees and not underfoot, in the case of an ice storm they are coated with an increased amount of ice. With the wind, we would be lucky to have any branches left on our trees. But it is way too warm for an ice storm right now, thank God.

I have not heard of any serious illness in Bittinger, but 2003 has already claimed its full quota of Bittinger residents. I do hear tales of lots of aches and pain. Since my terrible pun, Margie Brenneman probably broke her tail bone in a fall on the church stairs. My mother complains about her shoulders and hips, which she blames on the weather. My right shoulder is also in a terrible state. No wonder, since I dislocated it in a skiing accident years ago and several times re-injured it with the horses. It is just strained, but anything heavier than a large coffee travel mug is too heavy.

I hate to be plagued by aches and pains as I am facing the BIG 50. I know I am getting old since this morning I was highly offended by a story on "Good Morning, America" about the making of a music video starring Brittany Spears and Madonna. I just say "No" to any MTV watching because it sure offended me. But I sure enjoy watching the early morning shows without criticizing.

Well, Chris and Sherri Weaver are beginning to have the idea of the less pleasant aspects of this "neck of the woods." Today the wind was so hard, they had several flickers of their power. In fact, the power was off at my mother's and Carol's. Kevin had to start up his and mother's generators the other night when the electric was off for hours. He thought it was a little early to be having this problem. Thank goodness for those generators.

I know there was a wedding at Glade Mennonite Church on Saturday. When I was in Accident I saw a sign at Accident-Bittinger Road with purple and white balloons which said, "Jonathan and Miranda." Sure enough as I passed the church the parking lot was full. The lucky couple was Johnny Martin and his bride, Miranda Rounds.

Now for some local news from the community: Bee Buckel from Adelphi was an overnight guest of Bill and Sheila Southerly and visited other relatives in LaVale and the area over the weekend.

Landon Southerly, student at St. Mary's College in St. Marys City, was a visitor of his family, Bill, Sheila and Tyler, over the Autumn Glory weekend.

Carol and Kevin Bass and family visited with Laurie and Tom Bulka and family at Columbia over the weekend. They also attended the Maryland Band Tournament at Towson University on Saturday night where Scott performed with the Northern High School Band. Also performing were all the Glotfelty children and also attending was their father Rodney. Claire and Caitlin Sussman also performed with the band and, along with their sister Meredith, visited their grandparents, Al and Ruthie Sussman, in Silver Spring.

In the Cumberland paper today in the sports insert, Torrey Poholsky was one of the outstanding high school athletes of the month for his key role on the Northern High School boys' soccer team. Torrey also plays baseball and is an outstanding academic student.

Recently, Cindy Stanton, Sally Poholsky, and Ruby Orendorf attended a 9th birthday party for Matthew Stemper at the home of his parents, Doug and June Stemper, in Hagerstown.

Ferne Beachy was a Saturday evening dinner guest at Penn Alps of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harvey, State College, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lannom, Tennessee, who are relatives that she seldom sees.

Jim Buckel, North Carolina, recently visited his mother, Ethel Buckel.

Simulated Water Rescue Performed On Yough River

Members of the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad Station 3 of Friendsville and the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department recently participated in a simulated swift-water rescue exercise on the Yough River. The rescue exercise was filmed as part of a documentary showing various forms of rescues by EMS teams throughout the state of Maryland.

"This type of rescue requires the teamwork of emergency workers from different fields of expertise," said Dave Ramsey, Region I EMS administrator for the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems (MIEMSS). "With the cooperation of the DNR, Maryland State Police, Northern Garrett Rescue Squad, FVFD, and Roger Zbel of Precision Rafting, this part of the training video was able to be filmed and will be very beneficial to trainees in the state of Maryland."

Brian Friend, member of Company 8 Search Team of the State Forest and Park Service, also participated in the rescue filming.

"Our 20-member team provides service to all of western Maryland in the way of tracking and searching for lost or injured people," Friend said. "We are equipped with the necessary tools needed for a successful search and rescue whether it is on land or in water."

Trooper 5 was scheduled to perform a basket-rescue exercise, but received an emergency call to Barton just prior to filming. This part of the filming will be rescheduled.

For more information on Company 8, interested persons may contact Chief John Frank at 301-746-8359, and for more information on the NGRS persons may contact Mary Friend at 301-746-5504.

Gov. Ehrlich Proclaims Oct. 19-26 National Forest Products Week

Demonstrating his commitment to sustainable forestry, Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. has proclaimed October 19-26 National Forest Products Week.

In addition to providing employment and income for many Maryland residents, the forestry and wood products industry generates income for business owners, property income, and indirect business taxes – all benefits to a vibrant state economy, the governor said.

"The forest and its products have affected both lives and livelihoods through its beauty and practical use," Ehrlich said. "My administration commends Maryland's forestry and wood-products industry and hopes it may continue to thrive with hope and abundance."

Maryland's $1.9 billion forestry and wood-products industry employs 14,000 people and is the fifth largest industry in the state, even larger than seafood. The impact of this industry is also being felt internationally, as several Eastern Shore mills have recently supplied lumber for the rebuilding efforts in Iraq.

"Forestry is rural Maryland's premier resource-based industry," said Gary G. Allen, chairman of the Partnership for Sustainable Forestry. "We are very pleased by the governor's recognition of the products and employees of this renewable resource."

Analyses suggest that a 10 percent reduction or increase in the value of primary wood-manufacturing industry output would have a profound impact on the state's economy.

All regions in Maryland support some level of forestry and wood manufacturing. However, sectors tend to be regionally concentrated: timber management and harvesting in the eastern region; primary wood manufacturing in the western region; and secondary wood manufacturing in the central region.

Maryland's central and western regions account for over two-thirds of the state's forestry and wood products annual output value. Southern and eastern Maryland's forestry and wood-products industry is especially significant to the rural economy, the governor's office noted.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the seventh year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

THE REPUBLICAN With the GWFC Civic Club of Oakland

The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items,spending up to $100 per child.

The Republican* staff is please to announce that the Civic Club of Oakland has taken Warm the Children under its wing and will be heading up volunteer/shopping coordination in the southern part of the county. Betty Ellington is serving as the chief coordinator, assisted by Bobby Anderson. For the northern part of the county, Lisa Broadwater will continue in her role as the volunteer/shopping coordinator for trips to the LaVale Wal-Mart. Many other functions of the program are being handled by Civic Club members, for which the newspaper staff is very grateful.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Please make your donations before December 1, 2003. Those collected after December 1 will be saved for next year's campaign.

Former Resident Needs Help

Melvin Fike, pastor of the Polo, Ill. Church of the Brethren, is seeking help from former friends in the Union District area. A 1975 graduate of Aurora High School and son of Lorraine Fike of Bridgewater, Va., and the late Galen Fike, Fike is seriously ill with carcinoid syndrome. While this is not cancer, it is a disabling condition which interferes with digestion, produces weight loss, tumor growth, weakness, and severe exhaustion, according to Fike. He has been under treatment for several years and has reached a point of needing treatment which is not available anywhere in the United States.

Fike's Iowa City physician is referring him to Basel, Switzerland, for treatment which is needed as soon as possible. It is doubtful that his medical insurance will cover treatment outside the USA, according to Fike.

The Polo Church of the Brethren has begun efforts to raise $12,000 for this medical treatment.

In addition to serving as pastor, Rev. Fike also drives a school bus and is involved in the Polo High School and Centennial School, where his daughters, Carol and Bethany, are students. His wife Lisa, is also employed.

Anyone wishing to make a donation for this needed treatment may do so by sending a check to the Polo Church of the Brethren, 410 S. Congress Ave., Polo, Ill. 61604 and marked "Mel Fike Fund." Donations are tax deductible.

Union Seniors

On Oct. 7 about 30 Union District Senior Citizens met at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building for a noon covered dish luncheon. Devotions were provided by Doris Arnold.

Kathy Hayes, R.N., Preston senior nurse, spoke about communicating with Alzheimer patients. The seven "Ws" of challenging behavior were discussed.

A representative from West Virginia University spoke about the Dean Ornish diet. This encompasses a combination of diet, exercise, and meditation and can reportedly reverse heart disease. Medicare will pay 1,800 eligible West Virginia heart patients if they agree to take the course.

Twenty-two members planned to attend the county picnic held at Big Bear Lake and the group planned for a flea market table at the event.

A food handlers' class will be an event of 2004. This will serve for all volunteers wishing to renew their cards and they will be notified of the date when it is determined.

The Preston County senior Halloween party is scheduled for Oct. 29 at Bruceton. A Christmas party will be Dec. 3 at Newburg, and on Feb. 4, a Valentine party is planned at Terra Alta. No date has been set for the spring Easter Party to come to Union District.

A Christmas shopping tour has been planned for Nov. 17, but the destination is not yet determined. Any senior member is welcome to join, others if they are interested, may also go along. Each second Thursday at noon at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building is the date and place for the senior meetings and covered dish lunch.

Mountaineer 4-H

New officers were elected at the Oct. 13 meeting of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club. Sara Lewis will serve as president, Caitlin Roth is vice president, Nicole Britner is the secretary, and Kaitlyn Schalker is treasurer. Debbie Mullenax assumes the post of reporter. A committee to plan for the Cortland Acres birthday party is under Sue Corbin's direction, with Nicole Britner and Sara Lewis assisting. Planning the dinner for the Mtn. Lions Club are Caitlin Harsh, Jennifer Anderson, and Debbie Collins.

The club noted a recent Coca-Cola fund-raiser was a success. They are also participating in the Preston County "Livestock for Freezer" fund-raiser and the tickets and money for this drawing need to be in to Linda Lewis by Oct. 24. On Nov. 2, a Preston County officers' training and achievement day will be held at Preston High. The club is also planning to assist the Mtn. Lions Club with roadside trash cleanup.

The next meeting on Nov. 10 will be a local club achievement and will be held at Maple Spring Church. Parents are invited and are asked to bring finger food refreshments. The meeting will be at 7 p.m.

New members welcomed to the club were Jesse Schalker, Nathan Lawler, Jennifer Anderson, Jonathan Blamble, and Cody Hardesty. Thirteen others were present. Families brought with them items of non-perishable food to be donated to one of Preston County food pantries.

TERRA ALTA

The Corinth United Methodist Church has donated two books to the Terra Alta Library: Kovel's Antiques & Collectibles, 35th edition, and Civil War Collectibles by John F. Graf. The donation was made in memory of Benton Ruppenthal.

New books from the Libri Grant Foundation have been ordered and should arrive in December. These books will be in the juvenile and young adult section. This purchase was made possible through a grant obtained by the library.

Some favorite authors are David Adler, Patricia MacLachlan, Don Freeman, Zilpha Keatley Snyder, Cynthia Rylant, and others. There will be a special announcement at the time of the books' arrival, and children will be invited to come in.

The annual book sale will be held at the library Nov. 3-14.

Volunteers at the library recently have been Brian Schoolcraft and Sara Nuzum.

West Virginia Archives is working closely with the library in an attempt to get several microfilms ordered. The first order will consist of copies of the Preston County News/Journal. The library is also interested in Argus films of 1887-1910. These microfilms can be read and printed at the library. Several rolls of film are available now and are being used in genealogy searches.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Navy Seaman Apprentice Alison M. Rupp, daughter of Aurea D. and Allen L. Rupp of Aurora, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Rupp completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations." This exercise gives recruits the key skills and confidence they need to graduate and take to the fleet. "Battle Stations" has been designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork, and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills.

Rupp is a 2003 graduate of Preston High School of Kingwood.

Weather Allows Continuation Of Grain Harvest

Although rain fell on Tuesday last week, conditions dried enough to have an average of 5.7 days suitable for field work for the week ending October 20. Many Maryland farmers took advantage of the dry weather to harvest soybeans.

Currently, soybeans are 14 percent harvested, 10 percent behind last year and 15 percent behind the five-year average. Soybean condition is rated 16 percent excellent, 36 percent good, 23 percent fair, 18 percent poor, and 7 percent very poor.

Corn harvested for grain progressed 18 percent from the previous week. Corn harvest continues to be behind schedule, running 13 percent behind last year and 5 percent behind the average.

Despite suitable weather, small grain planting remains behind schedule. Farmers were able to complete planting half of the barley crop by last week, 34 percent behind last year and 24 percent behind the five-year average. Wheat is now 32 percent planted, 8 percent last year and 3 percent behind the average. Small grains are in mostly fair to good condition.

Farming On The Mountaintop

State Receives Funds For Crop Insurance Education, Promo Project

A total of $440,975 in new partnership agreements with the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Risk Management Agency will allow the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) to build on its success in helping farmers manage their business risks with crop insurance.

Maryland is among 15 states nationwide targeted by the USDA to boost participation rates in crop insurance. Recent efforts by MDA and the University of Maryland to educate farmers on the value of crop insurance have been effective. Crop insurance participation increased by 15.8 percent over the last two years, with more than $162.4 million of protection on 715,484 acres covered in 2003. After the devastating drought of 2002, Maryland farmers received $23.4 million from crop insurance, which is almost equal to the amount farmers had received over the previous five years combined.

"Crop insurance payments helped support our farmers during an incredibly tough year," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. "Risk management is among the tools that will help keep Maryland farmers in the business of farming. Like diversification of farm enterprises, sound business management and good stewardship, it will help preserve agriculture and farmland for the next generation."

The crop insurance education and promotion project will combine the work of MDA staff and University of Maryland Cooperative Extension faculty. Among the project's goals is the development of a computer software package which will allow University of Maryland faculty to work with farmers to detail the value of crop insurance to their operation. MDA will promote crop insurance at farmer meetings, nurserymen events, and through a variety of targeted projects.

"Crop insurance is a valuable risk management tool. These federal partnership agreements will be carefully managed to benefit Maryland farmers," said Riley.

Maryland's funding comes from two separate federal partnership agreements: $379,275 to MDA and $61,700 of $343,000 awarded to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture from the USDA for a regional educational effort on risk management for farmers.

GC Farm Bureau Holds 66th Annual Banquet, Meeting

The Garrett County Farm Bureau held its 66th annual banquet and meeting last week at the Bittinger fire hall. Delmar Yoder opened the event with the invocation by Rev. Alan Birkby.

The guest speaker was James R. Rodeheaver, who was the branch chief of processed fruits and vegetables for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. A West Virginia University graduate with a degree in agriculture, Rodeheaver retired earlier this year after 33 years of service.

Clark and Frannie Mae Kolb were presented an award for their service to the Farm Bureau. Clark was its secretary/treasurer for 17 years, and Frannie Mae was the secretary of the women's committee for several years.

Mark Zuzik, Maryland Farm Bureau administrator, attended the meeting and handed out several door prizes.

Shaina Custer gave a report on her activities as the county's farm queen. Paul Miller also gave a report on the dairy booth at the Garrett County Agriculture Fair in August. This year's booth was deemed the most successful one that the bureau has ever had at the fair.

For more information about the booth or the Farm Bureau, persons may call Miller at 301-746-8216. Persons not involved in farming are also welcome as members.

The Garrett County Farm Bureau was founded in 1938 under the leadership of county agent John Carter. Its first president was William Winterburg of Grantsville.

Meetings were first held in the Accident School, with the first banquet held at a church in Grantsville. After Bittinger fire hall was built, meetings and banquets were both held there.

In addition to assisting local farmers and the agriculture community, the Farm Bureau also involved in legislative issues in the Maryland General Assembly in Annapolis.

Weight Loss Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA -- Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000™, lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

Bio-Rex 3000 is currently available as a dietary supplement and plan in pharmacies and nutrition stores or by calling 1-800-729-8446. www.hcdsales.com.

Steven Dale Wolff, 33, McHenry, pleaded guilty to failure to obey a lawful order and received a 30-day suspended sentence, a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 20 hours of community service. The charges stemmed from a May incident outside the Black Bear Tavern, when Wolff's extreme intoxication led to his disorderly behavior which was witnessed by numerous bystanders. An additional charge of causing a disturbance by being overly intoxicated at a retail establishment was not prosecuted.

Stacy Marie Hamilton, 22, Latrobe, Pa., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, a $200 fine, six months' supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service. Additional charges of possession of Lorazepam pills and drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted.

He later pushed the same victim to the floor during an argument at their home. An additional second-degree assault charge and a malicious destruction of property accusation were not prosecuted.

Jeffrey Paul Pumphrey, 23, Clarksburg, W.Va., pleaded guilty to possession of Hydrocodone and was handed a PBJ and a 30-day sentence, a $200 fine, and one year of unsupervised probation, while additional charges of possession of marijuana, drug paraphernalia, and a concealed weapon were not prosecuted. Susan Marie Moskiewski, 28, Pittsburgh, was handed a stet ruling on possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges, and was ordered to complete 30 hours of community service. Her arrest came after a search that followed a July traffic stop by state troopers near Deep Creek Lake. Irene Marguerite Filsinger, 24, Oakland, was handed stet rulings in connection with seven counts of failure to comply with a peace order. Sheriff's deputies had jailed her in June after she allegedly repeatedly e-mailed a man against his will and after warnings had been made.

Christopher Acheson Beitzel, 23, Oakland, was not prosecuted on first-degree burglary and felony theft charges stemming from a July arrest by sheriff's deputies. He was accused of breaking into an apartment and stealing property belonging to a relative of Stacy Lynn Wilson, 20, Oakland. Wilson in turn was charged with misdemeanor theft for allegedly selling some of the items. That charge was also not prosecuted.

Jeremy Edward Dean, 24, Rowlesburg, W.Va., was not prosecuted on charges of possession of Ritalin with intent to distribute, possession of Ritalin and drug paraphernalia, and removing a pharmacist's prescription label. New Type of Insulin Looks Promising Diabetes is a chronic health problem which affects almost 16 million Americans. It has been implicated in a variety of life-threatening complications including kidney failure, blindness, amputations, and even heart disease. With diabetes, blood sugar levels stay much higher than normal. Insulin levels may be abnormally low or the body may not be able to respond to insulin properly even when it is present in normal amounts. Symptoms of diabetes may include excessive thirst and urination, unexplained weight loss, and extreme hunger.

Insulin is used by the majority of diabetics. New research on the safety and effectiveness of an inhaled insulin looks promising. Some researchers believe insulin could be administered like asthma inhaler medicines. If further testing and the approval process is positive, the new insulin medicine could be available in the next 12 months.

WHY APPRAISE?

If you're selling a home, your greatest challenge is likely to be the selection of an asking price. Most sellers want a price that is the highest buyers are likely to pay, without moving it one dollar lower.

Price it higher than buyers are willing to pay and well, you know what happens. Price it lower and you're giving away your money. So, what's the right price? There is one step you can take before listing your home that insures getting the best price, without the risk of overpricing. It also greatly increases your chances of getting a full-price offer in a shorter period of time.

Get a certified appraisal of your home. That's right, order an appraisal before putting your home on the market, and then price your home squarely at appraised value. Don't be tempted to justify raising the price above the appraisal, it won't help. The result is likely to be an extended sale time followed by a lower offer than expected.

Make copies of the appraisal for your agent, and ask that it be included in information packets given to buyers. Place a copy on your dining table for buyers to inspect. A written appraisal gives credibility to your asking price, and most buyers will not expect you to sell for less. Dislike having to negotiate? An appraisal is surely the answer.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give me a call today!

Alleghenies Council Sets Annual Event, Holds Symposium

The annual meeting of the Council of the Alleghenies will held on Saturday, Nov. 1, in the Great Hall at Penn Alps in Grantsville at 10:30 a.m. The business meeting, to begin at 11 a.m., will include a discussion of the health and welfare of the council, as well as an election of members to the board of directors.

Dr. Francis Tam of the Frostburg State University Department of Physics will present the program following the noon luncheon. He will discuss Albert Einstein's visit to Deep Creek Lake in the 1940s.

Luncheon reservations may be made by Oct. 25 by sending a check for $13 per person (and noting "Nov. 1 luncheon" on the memo line) to Council of the Alleghenies, P.O. Box 514, Frostburg, MD 21532. Questions about the event may be directed to Dr. Anthony Crosby at 301-689-8178 or Doris Lancaster at 301-689-9116.

The council's 10th annual symposium, "Alleghenies Mosaic X," brought a crowd of members and friends together recently at the Cumberland Country Club, where program topics ranged from the environmental consequences of competition between native and "introduced" plant species, to Civil War re-enacting, to demonstrations of traditional Appalachian music.

LOCAL NATURALIST PRESENTS PROGRAM – Liz McDowell, co-owner/founder of Elk Ridge NatureWorks, recently presented "Alien Invasion: Man and Wildlife" during the Council of the Alleghenies' 10th annual symposium in Cumberland. McDowell displayed a collection of live plants and discussed the fragile future for, and in some cases, near or actual extinction of, local indigenous species as a result of the invasion of non-native species. The council will hold its annual meeting on Saturday, Nov. 1, in the Great Hall at Penn Alps in Grantsville at 10:30 a.m. See story for details.

Liz McDowell, co-owner/founder of Elk Ridge NatureWorks, brought potted samples of living wildflowers and other plant species and showed slides to illustrate the "Alien Invasion: Man and Wildlife." She discussed the fragile future for, and in some cases, near or actual extinction of, indigenous species – especially plant life – as a result of the invasion (mostly introduced by humans) of non-native species to Garrett and Allegany counties.

The audience learned the benefits of protecting and conserving certain native species and the perils of cultivating non-native ones or ignoring their local encroachment.

Following lunch, Ryan Cuba and David Bicker, both avid re-enactors of civilian and military American history from colonial times through the Civil War, appeared fully outfitted as Confederate and Union soldiers, respectively, displaying their military uniforms, weapons and accouterments. The re-enactors discussed the rigors of the lives and times of those they portrayed, as well as the intense research and physical preparation necessary in the pursuit of their art.

Rounding out the day's immersion in local history, Betty Mattingly's quartet, Hammers and Strings, well-known throughout the tri-state area, entertained and enlightened the symposium participants with traditional Appalachian vocal and instrumental music.

A native of Oakland and a veteran of auto harp and hammered dulcimer playing, Mattingly originally assembled the foursome, whose other members are Chet Roth on guitar, Scott Rush on fiddle, and Roy Peterman on bass. The musicians performed singly and in combination a variety of mountain music, both historic selections and original compositions, in a repertoire laced with humor.

The Council of the Alleghenies is a non-profit organization begun in 1960 to preserve, develop, and share the vast resources of natural beauty, cultural treasures, and rich heritage of the Allegheny Highlands.

Marks Saluted For Service To Mason Lodge

Oakland Masons Lodge #192 met recently to honor Past Master Lewis M. Marks Sr. for his many contributions to the lodge.

The evening began with a roast beef dinner prepared and served by friends and relatives, led by Marks's wife Emmajane. The dinner was attended by over 60 lodge members, and was followed by the testimonial.

During the remarks, several members thanked Marks for providing instruction in the Masons' work and assisting them in their advancement in the degrees. Marks's son Lewis Marks II gave a brief biography of his father, including his experiences in World War II, when his father in the Battle of the Bulge was taken prisoner by the German army.

A group of Scottish Rite Masons from Cumberland, led by Paul G. Shircliff, where Marks was honored with the 33rd degree, was in attendance.

The Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons in Maryland, John A Young, was present, as was Past Grand Master Bennie G. Owens. Both offered salutations to Marks.

At the conclusion of the testimonials, Marks made comments that ended with the observation that "Masonry provided much more to him than he ever provided Masonry."

The event was planned and directed by members Bill Skinner, Eric Wotring, and Lew Marks II.

Hopefest Set To Raise Funds For House of Hope

The seventh annual Autumn Hopefest, a benefit for the House of Hope, will get under way at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8, at the Will O' the Wisp. Marking the 25th year of the charitable service's operation, the event will feature both silent and Chinese auctions, dinner, and dancing.

Organizers for the event are busy gathering items for the popular silent and Chinese auctions. Among the many donations made by individuals and businesses for the auctions is a handmade lamp by local stained glass artisan Louis DiCarlo (see photo on Page C-2).

Other items to be auctioned include a spa package from Sewickley Spa, ski items from Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort, a floral arrangement from Jan Florist, and a Garrett County throw from Deep Creek Pharmacy. A variety of autographed sports memorabilia will be available, including a Barry Larking jersey donated by Rob Michael, signed photographs of former Baltimore Orioles Cal Ripken and Brook Fordyce, and autographed posters of Darrell Waltrip and Richard Petty.

Tickets are priced at $35.25 per person in honor of the 25th anniversary and include dinner, dancing, wine, beer, and soft drinks.

A limited number of tickets are still available for the event by advance sale only. Tickets can be purchased at Kathy's Furniture and Gifts and Will O' the Wisp at Deep Creek Lake, and at Just Us Styling Salon and the Yarn Shop in Accident.

Northern GOP Women Convene; Umbel Speaker

The Northern Garrett Republican Women met Sept. 30 at the Hilltop Restaurant. Guest speaker Ruth Umbel shared information and personal experiences regarding her teaching position in the special education program at Allegany High School.

Umbel presented statistics on "One Day in the Life of American Children," information leaflets, and "No Child Left Behind" teacher quality and distance education. The Maryland schools began its second year in 2003 under the "No Child Left Behind" accountability system. The "inclusion" of students was mandated in 1998.

Members expressed great concern and interest in the educational opportunities that are made available as a result of President Bush's introduction to the necessity to provide "the same academic standards that the state applies to all schools and children in the state." Maryland ranks fourth in the nation providing this resource, according to a spokesperson.

President Lois Rowe called the meeting to order and thanked Umbel for her presentation. Twila Mae Fike led the pledge to the American flag, followed by Carol Frazee, secretary, reading the minutes of the August meeting. County commissioner Fred Holliday was also a guest speaker and brought an information update on the paving of county roads, county taxes, exhibit hall, and other items of special interest. The August meeting was hosted by Umbel at her home along Mosser Road. Assisting was Ruth Beitzel.

A gold elephant charm was presented to Carolyn Ganoe by Rowe on behalf of the club in recognition of her many years of serving as club president. Ganoe has received an appointment to the Garrett County Election Board.

Those attending the county celebration event hosted by Governor and Mrs. Ehrlich in Annapolis recently were club members Lois Rowe, Joan Holliday, Carolyn Ganoe, Sheila O'Neill, Brenda Butscher, and Ruth Beitzel.

The Maryland Federation of Republican Women (MFRW) annual meeting was held Oct. 17-19 at the Dunes Manor Hotel, Ocean City. The Club sponsored members O'Neill, Butscher, Umbel, Beitzel, Ganoe, and Lisa Griffith to attend this event.

Louise McKenzie, treasurer, has retired from her position, and Lisa Herman accepted the nomination to serve as treasurer of the club.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be the FUNdraiser event, Oct. 28, 7 p.m., at the Hilltop Restaurant.

LOCAL BEEF GOES TO MISSOURI – Evelyn Moloney from Missouri recently won a half baby beef that was purchased at the Garrett County Fair by Elmer Selby of Lakeside Docks and donated to Accident Elementary School's Character Education Team. This is the second year Selby has donated a beef to the school. Moloney purchased the beef chance ticket from her granddaughter, Caitlin Urfer, a kindergarten student. Selby also donated two $25 gift certificates to Uno Restaurant to the Character Education Team. Winners of those certificates were Cheryl Landon and Collin Fratz, both of Accident. Students will each receive a yellow T-shirt with a smile on it reading "Part of the Team – Accident Elementary School" from the monies raised. Mary Jo Johnson and Anna Miller's homerooms sold the most tickets and will each receive a party. Selby is pictured above with his grandsons, Cody and Aaron Rodeheaver, who pulled the winning tickets.

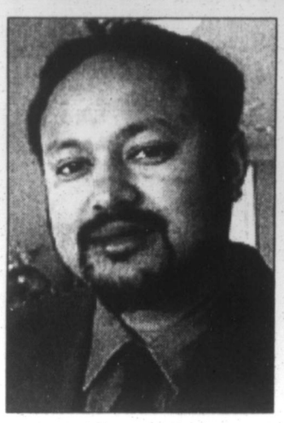
"Our Story" Event To Focus On GC Economic Trends



ANIRBAN BASU

The current health of Garrett County's economy and future trends that could have major impacts will be the focus of the second GC Chamber of Commerce's Our Story conference, set for Friday, Nov. 21, in the Garrett College auditorium. Billed as a "strategic thinking conference," the event will feature seminars on topics that affect local businesses, with a speakers' list that includes leaders in economic analysis, education, marketing, and technology.

"We have been fortunate to line up highly qualified and prestigious speakers for the November forum and are delighted to have noted economic consultant Anirban Basu returning to join us," said Garrett County Chamber president Charlie Ross. "He is an excellent speaker who brings wit and humor — even to economics."

Basu, M.A., M.P.P., J.D., who was a guest speaker at the first Our Story conference in January, is the chief executive officer of Optimal Solutions Group (OSG). Prior to joining OSG, he was director of applied economics and senior economist at RESI, the research and consulting arm of Towson University, where he oversaw $3 million in contracts. His clients included Fortune 500 companies such as BGE, the St. Paul Companies, and BP, as well as numerous government agencies including the Mayor's Office of Baltimore City, the Maryland Office of the Comptroller, the Maryland Department of Human Resources, and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

The Garrett County Office of Economic Development, Garrett Information Enterprise Center, and First United Bank and Trust are working in cooperation with the chamber to present the second edition of Our Story. For more information on the conference, persons may call 301-387-4386.

Community Prayer, Blessing Service Planned

"Counting our Blessings," an ecumenical community prayer and blessing service, will take place on Sunday, Oct. 26, at the Bittinger fire hall, beginning at 7 p.m.

Sponsored by the Bittinger Ministerial Association, the event will feature Pastor Pat Pittsnogle, Bittinger Lutheran Parish; Pastor Chris Weaver, Glade Mennonite; Pastor Dwayne Fredericks, Meadow Mtn. Mennonite; and Pastor Carroll Junkins, Bethesda Church of the Brethren.

Salisbury Church Set To Celebrate 50th Anniversary

The Mountain View Mennonite Church, Salisbury, Pa., will celebrate its 50th anniversary this Sunday, Oct. 26, at 7 p.m. Simon Schrock, Catlett, Va., will be the guest speaker, and there will be a special a cappella singing.

The church is located one mile north of Salisbury along St. Paul Rd. The public is invited to attend, and there will also be light refreshments served after the meeting.

Garrett College Honors Program Students Appreciate Challenges

by Joan Crawford

The 13 local students in the Honors Program at Garrett College this year have different ambitions for future careers, and they all say feel that the educational experiences they are now having will help them reach their goals.

Dr. Greg Jenkins, who has directed the Honors Program for the past three semesters, explained that the program is structured to help its graduates succeed in the world beyond college. "The program provides extra challenges for capable students and enrichment activities that enhance the educational experience," he said. "We have made progress and are pleased that the program is growing. The first semester we had three students, then seven, and now we have 13."

To be eligible for the Honors Program at Garrett, a student must meet at least one of the following criteria: SAT score of 1100, ACT score of 22, high school grade point average of 3.25 or 85 percent, a transfer GPA of 3.5 from another college, or a portfolio of creative work. Students admitted to the program choose one course as their honors course and must achieve at least a "B" grade in that course and maintain a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.3. The instructor of each selected course determines what special activities the honors students will do. These may be research papers, presentations to the class, or other projects related to the discipline.

In addition to completing the extra activities, honors students meet with Jenkins weekly to discuss their work. They also take field trips and attend cultural events as a group. This month the students will attend the production of To Kill a Mockingbird and later a jazz concert at Frostburg State University.

One of the major reasons that more students are being attracted to the Honors Program, according to Jenkins, is the 50 percent tuition reduction they receive. Other reasons indicated in a recent survey are the need for a challenge in an academic program and the intellectual stimulus of the associated activities. "These are outstanding students," Jenkins said. "They are motivated to achieve their goals and they accept the challenges. It is a pleasure to work with them."

The career goals listed on the survey show that four of this year's students plan to enter the teaching profession, two intend to become registered nurses, and several others want to have their own business. Other career choices indicated are law, art, music, environmental science, and psychology.

Jodi Fratz, graduate of Northern High School, entered the Honors Program after doing well in her high school AP courses. She plans to transfer to the nursing program at Allegany College of Maryland, then go to West Virginia University for a bachelor of science degree in nursing and become a pediatric nurse.

Christina Howell, a Northern graduate and a grandmother, joined the program when she decided to go back to school to become a nurse. She also will transfer to Allegany and plans to specialize in trauma or psychiatric nursing.

Two graduates of Southern High School now enrolled in elementary education said they chose the Honors Program because they wanted an excellent educational experience. Cassie Gregory and Stephanie Niner commented that they enjoy the challenge and the activities involved. Both women plan to transfer to FSU and to obtain master's degrees in elementary education.

SHS graduate Miranda Savage said she chose to enter the Honors Program at Garrett because she wanted education that would prepare her for a university without going far from home. She plans to GOP MAD HATTERS HOLD LUNCHEON – The Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club recently hosted the annual Western Region Mad Hatters Luncheon. The "mad hats" are usually designed by the women themselves and decorated in a patriotic theme. The luncheon provides an opportunity for club members to network, share club goals, and have fun with their mad hats. The hats were judged by two nonmembers, Betty Wolford and Jeannie Whitehair. President Bea Crosco's hat was named the winner. Pictured kneeling in the front is Pat White-Moore. In the second row, left to right, are treasurer Arzella Parsons, vice president Ann Rebele, regional co-chair Margaret Morgan, Middletown Valley Club member Jane Farral, Nita Roberts, and Carol Caywood of the Middletown Valley Club. In the third row are Clara Anderson, secretary Judy Wilt, Crosco, and regional co-chair Dottie Kelly. For more information about the SGCRW Club, persons may call 301-334-2147.

Outdoor Programs At Garrett College Slate Open House

The Center for Adventure and Outdoor Studies at Garrett College will hold a open house on Friday, Nov. 7, beginning at 3 p.m. The center is located just past the main campus along Mosser Road. Persons interested in careers in natural resources, wildlife technology, adventure sports, or agriculture are urged to attend.

Students in the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology programs will show PowerPoint slides and discuss environmental projects that were conducted during the summer. The Adventure Sports program will also conduct demonstrations on the challenge and the rock-climbing wall.

Additionally, the Agricultural Management program will have livestock exhibits, in which participants can test their evaluation skills by placing the animals into classes. Tours of the aquaculture and hydroponics green facilities will also be conducted.

Other activities to be conducted throughout the afternoon include an antique tractor display and chain saw carving demonstration. The event will conclude with a pig roast at 5 p.m.

The center will also hold a special program that day for high school students. The students will learn about college options and meet with Garrett College students and faculty. A variety activities are planned – including project talks, livestock judging and a challenge course – to familiarize participants with the college.

High school students who would like to participate in the open house are asked to call Crystal Roberson at Garrett College at 301-387-3046.

Honors Program

pursue a bachelor's degree in secondary education at FSU, and then teach at a local high school. She has found that being in the Honors Program has helped her excel in all her courses.

A graduate of the Mountain View Christian School in Springs, Pa., Lori Yoder was looking for an intellectual stimulus and unique learning experience on which to build a foundation for her future education. She plans to transfer to FSU for a bachelor's degree in elementary education and psychology, and would then like to teach in a middle school working with students who have some emotional or psychological problems. She said she feels that all motivated students should consider the Honors Program as an option.

Another student who has FSU in her future sights is Stacy Holler, a graduate of Southern High, who wants to become a professional writer, editor, or graphic designer after she earns her Ph.D. in English. She likes the small classes at Garrett and joined the Honors Program to be challenged and to find enriching learning opportunities, which she said have helped her succeed in all of her classes.

Two students who are planning careers in the business world joined the Honors Program to achieve a higher academic standard. Jonathan Mann, a graduate of Faith Christian Academy, came to Garrett so that he could develop well in both academics and athletics. He plans to transfer to either Virginia Tech or Liberty University and eventually start his own automotive-based business. Melanie Molz graduated from Southern and came to Garrett because of its "good business administration transfer program." She plans to pursue a bachelor's degree at the University of Central Florida and then start her own business. She said that the Honors Program has challenged her and provided new experience which she recommends to other students.

Two SHS graduates who came to Garrett because of its small size and quality education agreed that the Honors Program has been beneficial and that their hard work has been recognized. Amanda Reckart plans to attend either FSU or WVU and eventually to become a lawyer. Lyndsie Rush, who is interested in music and psychology, plans to attend Fairmont State College and become either a professional singer or a counseling psychologist.

Falon Stutzman, who has grown up in a world of art, said she entered Garrett's Honors Program because she wanted breadth of education and more rigor in her art program. She plans to attend an art school for a more intense study, to expand her portfolio and to pursue a career in art, possibly illustration. She is a graduate of Southern High.

Timothy Taylor, a graduate of Westmar High School, was attracted to the Garrett Honors Program by the location, student-faculty ratio, and challenges it presented. He is interested in math and science, and has plans to attend a four-year college, then possibly work in environmental science.

"The positive comments these students have made indicate that being in the Honors Program has been a worthwhile experience for them," Jenkins said. "As other qualified students become aware of its advantages, we expect to see more of them apply in the future."

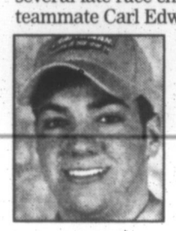
Trucks winner a hometown hit

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Martinsville, Va.

Jon Wood's celebration after his victory in Saturday's Craftsman Truck Series race at his home track, Martinsville Speedway, was a picture of NASCAR racing at its best.

With a partisan Virginia crowd roaring its approval, Wood, the 21-year-old grandson of NASCAR pioneer Glen Wood, took the lead from Dennis Setzer on Lap 176 and held off several late-race charges by his Roush Racing teammate Carl Edwards to win the Advance Auto Parts 200.



WOOD

Wood's family came down from the grandstands and joined the young victor on the winner's platform.

Glen Wood, the 78-year-old patriarch of one of NASCAR's oldest teams, watched the race from a grandstand seat but joined his grandson in celebration.

Jon's father, Eddie, who now helps run the family's Winston Cup team, arrived from the spotter's stand, almost speechless at finally being present to see his son take a checkered flag.

In all of Wood's previous victories in several series, his father has been away tending to his Winston Cup business.

Jon's mother, Carol, his sister, Jordan, and his grandmother Wandress Blackard were there. All the while, friends and neighbors shouted congratulations.

"When I was in high school, I was always going to the games watching my friends play football or baseball," Jon Wood said. "Now it's my turn to shine, and I get to share the same feelings with them that they shared with me."

Glen Wood has been making the 30-mile trek from the Wood's home in Stuart to Martinsville since the track opened in 1947. He won several Modified and Sportsman races at Martinsville as a driver, but only two in Winston Cup as a car owner.

He said seeing his grandson win was as rewarding as any of the 97 Winston Cup races his teams have won.

"This is as good as it gets," Wood said.

Eddie Wood said he was humbled by the crowd's reaction to his son's victory.

"This means a lot to me," he said. "My dad ran well over here, but we've always struggled over here. To me, this is even bigger than Jon's first win at Kansas."

Even Setzer, who finished third ahead of Rick Crawford and Bobby Hamilton, appreciated the moment.

"If I had to see anyone win here besides myself, I wanted it to be Jon Wood," Setzer said.

Brendan Gaughan, who finished 11th, has a 45-point lead on Travis Kvapil with two races left this season.

Rainbow winner

Gordon sweeps at Martinsville

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Martinsville, Va.

Jeff Gordon took home the trophy from Sunday's Subway 500 at Martinsville Speedway, but Winston Cup points leader Matt Kenseth may have been the big winner despite a 13th-place finish.

As the circuit heads to Atlanta Motor Speedway this week for the Bass Pro Shops MBNA 500, the points race is the closest it has been since July. But with only four races to go, Kenseth could take an insurmountable lead with a good run at AMS.

GORDON

Kevin Harvick, the points runner-up, is racing aggressively and trying to play mind games with Kenseth by running close to him on the track in practice and during events. But even with a seventh-place finish at Martinsville, Harvick shaved only 27 points off the lead held by Kenseth, who ran in the back of the pack for most of the race.

Kenseth comes to Atlanta with a 240-point lead over Harvick and a 283-point edge over Dale Earnhardt Jr., who finished fourth at Martinsville. That's down from Kenseth's 436-point lead over Harvick a month ago.

Kenseth, who has led the points standings since the spring race at AMS, dodged disaster Sunday when he made contact with the No. 0 Pontiac of Jason Leffler in mid-race. Afraid Kenseth got a flat tire, he was about to make a costly green flag pit stop when the caution flag flew, allowing him to stop without losing laps.

Kenseth said his worst days should be behind him now that the slam-bang Martinsville race is over and he's headed to Atlanta and Rockingham, where he's won before.

"We knew this was our weakest point coming up the rest of the year," he said. "We've only got four to go, and I think we'll be real competitive at Atlanta and, hopefully, get back up front and run in the top five.

"I hope we have a shot to win."

While the current points system has been criticized because Kenseth has only one victory, the finishing order at Martinsville indicates that the standings do reflect performances on the track. Of the top seven drivers in the points standings, only Kenseth finished outside the top seven in Sunday's race.

Gordon said that proves how hard it is to make a big move in points when all your competitors are running well, too.

"You can't close up on any of those guys because we're all so tight," he said.

While many of his competitors were crashing and spinning on the tight half-mile oval at Martinsville, Gordon sailed through the skirmishes that brought 15 caution periods that consumed a record 117 laps of the Subway 500 to complete a season sweep of the track's Winston Cup events.

Gordon led 313 laps and became the first driver since Fred Lorenzen in 1964 to win both poles and both races at Martinsville, the only track he's won on this season. "I wish we could race every week at Martinsville," he said.

Gordon's Hendrick Motorsports teammate Jimmie Johnson finished second ahead of Tony Stewart, Earnhardt and Ryan Newman.

The first 54 and the final 60 laps of the 500 were run without incident — and with Gordon in front — but the rest of the race was a series of sprints punctuated by repeated caution periods. As has become the norm, track position played a role in the outcome.

Gordon, Johnson and Stewart made their final pit stops on Lap 355. Earnhardt, who had run with the leaders all afternoon, made his last stop on Lap 406. That put him 12th in the running order and 24th on the track — considering lapped cars — with 95 laps left to run.

Although he was unable to catch the leaders, his battles along the way provided some of the best entertainment of the race. For 20 laps, he kept the nose of his No. 8 Chevrolet under the rear end of Ryan Newman's No. 12 in nearly every turn.

Finally, on Lap 477, Earnhardt gave Newman a mighty shove to claim fourth place, but it was too late to advance any more.

Still, Earnhardt seemed pleased with the results.

"I love this race track," he said. "It's fun, but it'll wear you out."

Defending champ

JOHNNY CRAWFORD / Cox News Service

Drivers and fans are hoping the weather at Sunday's race at Atlanta Motor Speedway is better than last year's fall race at AMS. Kurt Busch (above) yawns after rain stopped the 2002 NAPA 500. The driver of the No. 97 Ford wasn't bored for long, however; Busch went on to claim victory with an average speed of 127.519 mph.

POST-RACE NOTES

Director scouts scene for movie about Pettys

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Martinsville, Va.

Hollywood came to Martinsville Speedway on Sunday. Director Callie Khouri was at the track to scope out the NASCAR scene in preparation for a movie about Richard Petty and his family.

Khouri, who won an Academy Award for her screenplay "Thelma and Louise" and recently made her directing debut in "The Divine Secrets of the Ya-Ya Sisterhood," said the Walt Disney movie will star Dennis Quaid as Petty. Other actors have not been chosen.

She said the movie will tell the story of four generations of the Petty family beginning with the late Lee Petty, Richard's father, and will include Kyle Petty and his late son Adam.

"People would feel that only half of the story had been told if we left out the Kyle and Adam legacy," Khouri said.

She said she will strive to keep the movie as historically accurate and factual as possible. "It's a beautiful story of a family starting from nothing and working their way to the very top of this business and changing this business along with it," Khouri said.

The movie is expected to be released in February 2005.

Triple-duty Schrader

Ken Schrader, the oldest regular competitor on the Winston Cup circuit at 48, showed over the weekend he isn't ready to swap his racing seat for a rocking chair.

SCHRADER

He finished eighth in Saturday's Craftsman Truck Series race at Martinsville, then dashed 60 miles east to South Boston Speedway, where he passed Hermie Sadler on Lap 134 and won the 200-lap ARCA race that lasted until the wee hours of Sunday morning.

He then returned to Martinsville and ran the Subway 500, where he ran in the top 10 for most of the day. A flat tire dropped him to 22nd at the finish.

Wood team considers move

After racing out of Stuart, Va., for more than 53 years, the Wood Brothers Racing Team is considering moving its shop to the Charlotte, N.C., area.

"We're looking at a lot of options to make our race team better and moving to the Charlotte area is definitely one of the things we'll have to look at," said Eddie Wood, who runs the team with his brother Len and sister Kim. "That's where everything is; all the technology is there."

Wood said the family likely will make a decision by the end of the year. He also said the team would like to field two cars, but getting the No. 21 Ford back in Victory Lane on a regular basis is its first priority.

"Whatever it takes to make our race team better, that's what we're going to do," he said.

Even if the Woods move their shop to the Charlotte area, they'll still have a presence in Stuart, their hometown.

"The museum and the business part will always be in Stuart even if the cars and the teams are somewhere else," he said.

Practice helps Earnhardt Jr. at short tracks

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Martinsville, Va.

Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s best days at the track are when the Winston Cup circuit visits Daytona and Talladega, where he has captured seven of the eight career victories he's amassed since joining the series three years ago.

But along the way, he's become a pretty adept short track racer as well. Earnhardt demonstrated that by finishing fourth in Sunday's Subway 500.

EARNHARDT

In 2000, his rookie season on NASCAR's elite circuit, Earnhardt had one of the worst runs of his career in the fall race at Martinsville.

"I was bad, out of control, terrible," Earnhardt said of his 2000 Martinsville run.

He realized he had short-track weaknesses and set out to fix them.

It took lots of laps run on weekdays on the short tracks of the Carolinas to fix the problem.

"We came back here to Martinsville, and we went to Greenville-Pickens and Carraway — everywhere we could go for a short track test," Earnhardt said. "We kept trying stuff and finally figured out some things that work."

Topics will include system maintenance, trouble shooting, managing files and folders, dealing with common error messages, and cleaning the computer inside and out. Students will learn many tips and tricks to improve performance, and how to stay up-to-date with their personal computer.

For additional information about these classes, persons may contact Terry Beachy by calling 301-895-3368, or via e-mail at tbeachy@garrettcollege.edu.

GCSO Offers Trick-Or-Treat Safety Tips

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has issued many safety tips for trick-or-treaters during Halloween. "Halloween is an exciting, fun-filled time for young people; unfortunately, it can also be a time when accidents happen and for criminal activity," said Sheriff Dick Sanders. "Follow the safety tips below so that parents, children, and drivers can help make Halloween safe for all."

ADULTS: Welcome trick-or-treaters with your porch lights and any exterior lights on; patrol the street occasionally to discourage speeding motorists, acts of malicious mischief, and crimes against children; report any suspicious or criminal activity to the police department immediately; candlelit jack-o-lanterns should be kept clear of doorsteps and landings; consider the possibility of using flashlights instead of candles to light jack-o-lanterns; keep dogs and other pets away from doors so children will not become frightened; children should carry quarters so they can call home if needed.

MOTORISTS: Exercise extreme caution when driving a vehicle. Be on the alert for excited youngsters, whose vision may be obscured by masks, darting out into traffic; avoid all unnecessary travel on Halloween evening, and drive slowly and be alert to small children crossing streets; many accidents occur when motorists are backing vehicles out of driveways, unaware of the presence of small children.

PARENTS: Set a time limit for children to "trick-or-treat." Also designate a specific route for them to take; never trick-or-treat alone. Go with at least two friends for the entire evening; carry a flashlight and use it so drivers can see you and you can see hazards in the street as well as other people; cross only at street corners, never between parked cars, and never diagonally across an intersection; look in all directions before crossing the street, and obey all traffic signals. Walk, never run, across the street, and use sidewalks, not the street, for walking; do not accept rides from strangers; do not take short cuts through backyards, alleys, or parks; do not go inside anyone's home. Remain on the porch/front door stoop at all times.

TREATS: Tell children not to eat treats until parents have inspected them; do not give homemade or unwrapped treats to children; discard any homemade or unwrapped treats; fruit should be sliced into small pieces and checked for foreign objects.

COSTUMES: Make sure your children's costumes are not flammable; don't allow your children to use cumbersome, long or vision-impairing costumes; reflectorized stripes make your costume more visible; in lieu of masks, face makeup is recommended; wear comfortable, safe shoes.

Persons are encouraged to call 9-1-1 if they suspect any tainted candy.

'Bonnie' loses a child in series revamp

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Samantha Browne-Walters

Q: In the second season opener of "Life With Bonnie," the daughter Samantha was missing, yet there was no explanation for why she wasn't there. How can a show just forget a kid? Do they think we don't pay attention? –Tonya Madden, Thonotosassa, Fla.

A: Boy, I'm sure they wish you didn't, because incredible as it sounds, daughter Samantha Molloy (Samantha Browne-Walters) has been written out of the Bonnie Hunt series as if she had never been a part of her TV family. The move is part of several creative changes aimed at improving the show's soft ratings, including moving high-strung producer David Bellows (David Alan Grier) into the Molloy household and promoting scene-stealing child actor Frankie Ryan Manriquez to series regular status.

Actually, this isn't the first time a character has disappeared without explanation from her family in an ABC sitcom. On "Family Matters," Jaimee Foxworth vanished from her role as young Judy Winslow in 1993 without any reaction from the other characters. In that case, however, the "Matters" cast was so large that many viewers didn't even register Foxworth's absence until she resurfaced in syndicated reruns of early episodes.

What "Bonnie" did, however, is close to unprecedented, because daughter Samantha was a big part of the domestic scenes on the sitcom. It'll be interesting to see whether fans will swallow such a glaring change in a show that has prided itself on its realistic depiction of a loving nuclear family.

Q: Is "Crossing Jordan" coming back this season? My husband and I enjoyed it. –Maria Dowell via e-mail.

A: Wow, judging from my mailbag, almost no one saw the first time I addressed this question several months ago, so here goes again: As of this writing, Jill Hennessy is awaiting the birth of her first child, which may already have arrived by the time you read this.

To accommodate Hennessy's real-life situation, "Jordan" will return to NBC as a midseason series some time in early 2004.

Q: You have me very curious. You recently reported that Bennett Cerf's second wife was Phyllis Fraser. Wasn't he married to Ginger Rogers' cousin? Was Phyllis her cousin? I can't recall. –T. Cenlin, Chicago.

A: You're doing pretty well so far. Yes, it was Rogers who brought her cousin to Hollywood and guided her through small roles in a number of films during the '30s and '40s.

Grantsville Center Slates Computer Classes For Adults

Garrett College's Continuing Education Division has scheduled several computer courses that will take place in November and December at the college's Grantsville Outreach Center.

Computer Skills I is slated for 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. over three consecutive Friday mornings beginning Nov. 7. Designed for beginners, this class offers interactive instruction on the essentials of working with a computer. Topics include common elements of the computer, basic computer terms, mouse techniques, menu bars, and managing files.

QuickBooks will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays, Nov. 12 - 24, for a total of four sessions. This course is designed for the individual seeking an understanding of QuickBooks accounting financial software. Course topics include tools to manage a small business, credit card processing, payroll services, point of sale software, checks, and supplies. The instructor for this course is Shane Grady, a certified public accountant and financial planner with Rodeheaver and Associates.

Microsoft Word will be offered from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. over four consecutive Tuesday mornings beginning Nov. 25. This hands-on course will introduce students to the processing of various types of documents, as well as how to edit, assemble, format, sort, and save. The student will also learn how to create graphs and tables. A prerequisite of Introduction to Computers or working knowledge of computers is required.

Managing and Maintaining Your Computer is slated from 6:30 to 9 p.m. on two consecutive Thursdays, Dec. 4 and 11. This five-hour course is designed to teach the fundamentals of maintaining the personal computer. Topics will include system maintenance, trouble shooting, managing files and folders, dealing with common error messages, and cleaning the computer inside and out. Students will learn many tips and tricks to improve performance, and how to stay up-to-date with their personal computer.

For additional information about these classes, persons may contact Terry Beachy by calling 301-895-3368, or via e-mail at tbeachy@garrettcollege.edu.

GCSO Offers Trick-Or-Treat Safety Tips

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has issued many safety tips for trick-or-treaters during Halloween. "Halloween is an exciting, fun-filled time for young people; unfortunately, it can also be a time when accidents happen and for criminal activity," said Sheriff Dick Sanders. "Follow the safety tips below so that parents, children, and drivers can help make Halloween safe for all."

ADULTS: Welcome trick-or-treaters with your porch lights and any exterior lights on; patrol the street occasionally to discourage speeding motorists, acts of malicious mischief, and crimes against children; report any suspicious or criminal activity to the police department immediately; candlelit jack-o-lanterns should be kept clear of doorsteps and landings; consider the possibility of using flashlights instead of candles to light jack-o-lanterns; keep dogs and other pets away from doors so children will not become frightened; children should carry quarters so they can call home if needed.

MOTORISTS: Exercise extreme caution when driving a vehicle. Be on the alert for excited youngsters, whose vision may be obscured by masks, darting out into traffic; avoid all unnecessary travel on Halloween evening, and drive slowly and be alert to small children crossing streets; many accidents occur when motorists are backing vehicles out of driveways, unaware of the presence of small children.

PARENTS: Set a time limit for children to "trick-or-treat." Also designate a specific route for them to take; never trick-or-treat alone. Go with at least two friends for the entire evening; carry a flashlight and use it so drivers can see you and you can see hazards in the street as well as other people; cross only at street corners, never between parked cars, and never diagonally across an intersection; look in all directions before crossing the street, and obey all traffic signals. Walk, never run, across the street, and use sidewalks, not the street, for walking; do not accept rides from strangers; do not take short cuts through backyards, alleys, or parks; do not go inside anyone's home. Remain on the porch/front door stoop at all times.

TREATS: Tell children not to eat treats until parents have inspected them; do not give homemade or unwrapped treats to children; discard any homemade or unwrapped treats; fruit should be sliced into small pieces and checked for foreign objects.

COSTUMES: Make sure your children's costumes are not flammable; don't allow your children to use cumbersome, long or vision-impairing costumes; reflectorized stripes make your costume more visible; in lieu of masks, face makeup is recommended; wear comfortable, safe shoes.

Persons are encouraged to call 9-1-1 if they suspect any tainted candy.

'Bonnie' loses a child in series revamp

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Samantha Browne-Walters

Q: In the second season opener of "Life With Bonnie," the daughter Samantha was missing, yet there was no explanation for why she wasn't there. How can a show just forget a kid? Do they think we don't pay attention? –Tonya Madden, Thonotosassa, Fla.

A: Boy, I'm sure they wish you didn't, because incredible as it sounds, daughter Samantha Molloy (Samantha Browne-Walters) has been written out of the Bonnie Hunt series as if she had never been a part of her TV family. The move is part of several creative changes aimed at improving the show's soft ratings, including moving high-strung producer David Bellows (David Alan Grier) into the Molloy household and promoting scene-stealing child actor Frankie Ryan Manriquez to series regular status.

Actually, this isn't the first time a character has disappeared without explanation from her family in an ABC sitcom. On "Family Matters," Jaimee Foxworth vanished from her role as young Judy Winslow in 1993 without any reaction from the other characters. In that case, however, the "Matters" cast was so large that many viewers didn't even register Foxworth's absence until she resurfaced in syndicated reruns of early episodes.

What "Bonnie" did, however, is close to unprecedented, because daughter Samantha was a big part of the domestic scenes on the sitcom. It'll be interesting to see whether fans will swallow such a glaring change in a show that has prided itself on its realistic depiction of a loving nuclear family.

Q: Is "Crossing Jordan" coming back this season? My husband and I enjoyed it. –Maria Dowell via e-mail.

A: Wow, judging from my mailbag, almost no one saw the first time I addressed this question several months ago, so here goes again: As of this writing, Jill Hennessy is awaiting the birth of her first child, which may already have arrived by the time you read this.

To accommodate Hennessy's real-life situation, "Jordan" will return to NBC as a midseason series some time in early 2004.

Q: You have me very curious. You recently reported that Bennett Cerf's second wife was Phyllis Fraser. Wasn't he married to Ginger Rogers' cousin? Was Phyllis her cousin? I can't recall. –T. Cenlin, Chicago.

A: You're doing pretty well so far. Yes, it was Rogers who brought her cousin to Hollywood and guided her through small roles in a number of films during the '30s and '40s.

TRIVIA

James Caan ("Brian's Song") is well-known for his numerous roles as an Italian-American, but he actually is the son of a Jewish butcher.

Steve McQueen ("The Thomas Crown Affair") joined the Marine Corps, went AWOL, and spent a month in the brig.

Kiefer Sutherland ("24") was born with the tongue-tying name of Kiefer Frederick Dempsey George Rufus Sutherland.

Michael Douglas ("Fatal Attraction") is not a stranger to hard work, and was an employee at a gas station after he flunked out of college.

Eliza Dushku ("Tru Calling") is a friend of Tobey Maguire, so as a favor, she read opposite him for his "Spider-Man" screen test.

Norm Macdonald ("A Minute With Stan Hooper") was a Canadian stand-up comedian before becoming a writer on "Roseanne."

Disaster Funding For Marylanders Tops $30 Million

Maryland residents have received just over $30 million in disaster aid in the four weeks since the state was declared a federal disaster area following Hurricane Isabel.

According to state and federal officials from the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Maryland Emergency Management Agency, the money represents more than $16 million in housing assistance and $4.2 million in assistance for other needs such as medical expenses, personal property and transportation.

Maryland disaster victims who have not yet applied for federal assistance have until Nov. 18 to register. A total of 14,447 applications for individual assistance have been received from residents in the 23 declared counties and city of Baltimore, according to FEMA. As of Oct. 3, however, only 8 individuals in Garrett County and 13 in Allegany County have applied. Baltimore County has had the most applicants at 3,579.

Applicants may qualify for assistance under several federal and state programs such as disaster housing assistance, grants to meet disaster-related needs and U.S. Small Business Administration loans.

Persons may apply for assistance by calling FEMA's toll-free registration line at 1-800-621-FEMA (3362) or TTY: 1-800-464-7585 for speech and hearing impaired persons. Phone lines are open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m., seven days a week.

JR. WOMAN'S CIVIC CLUB HELPS WARM THE CHILDREN – A donation of $150 was recently made by the Junior Woman's Civic Club to The Republican newspaper's 2003 Warm the Children campaign. This is the paper's seventh annual Warm the Children project, and the women's club has helped out every year, both through donations and by volunteering to take children shopping for needed clothing and footwear. Joining forces with the newspaper for the 2003 project is the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland. Pictured from left are Elizabeth Huxford of the Jr. Woman's Civic Club, Mary McEwen of The Republican, and Ellen Fritz, co-president of the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland.

Three NHS Students Earn AP Recognition

Three students at Northern High School have earned the designation of AP Scholar by the College Board in recognition of their achievement on the college-level Advance Placement Program (AP) exams.

Tessa Folk qualified for the AP Scholar with Honor Award by earning an average grade of at least 3.25 on all AP exams taken, with grades of 3 or higher on four or more of these exams.

Dallas Miller and Landon Southerly qualified for the AP Scholar Award by completing three or more AP exams with grades of 3 or higher.

The College Board's Advanced Placement Program offers students the opportunity to take challenging college-level course while still in high school, and to receive college credit, advanced placement, or both for successful performance on the AP exams. Almost 15 percent of the more than 1 million high school students in more than 14,000 secondary schools worldwide who took AP exams performed at a sufficiently high level to merit the recognition of AP Scholar.

Most of the nation's colleges and universities award credit, advanced placement, or both based on successful performance on the AP exams. More than 1,400 institutions award a full-year's credit (sophomore standing) to students presenting a sufficient number of qualifying grades.

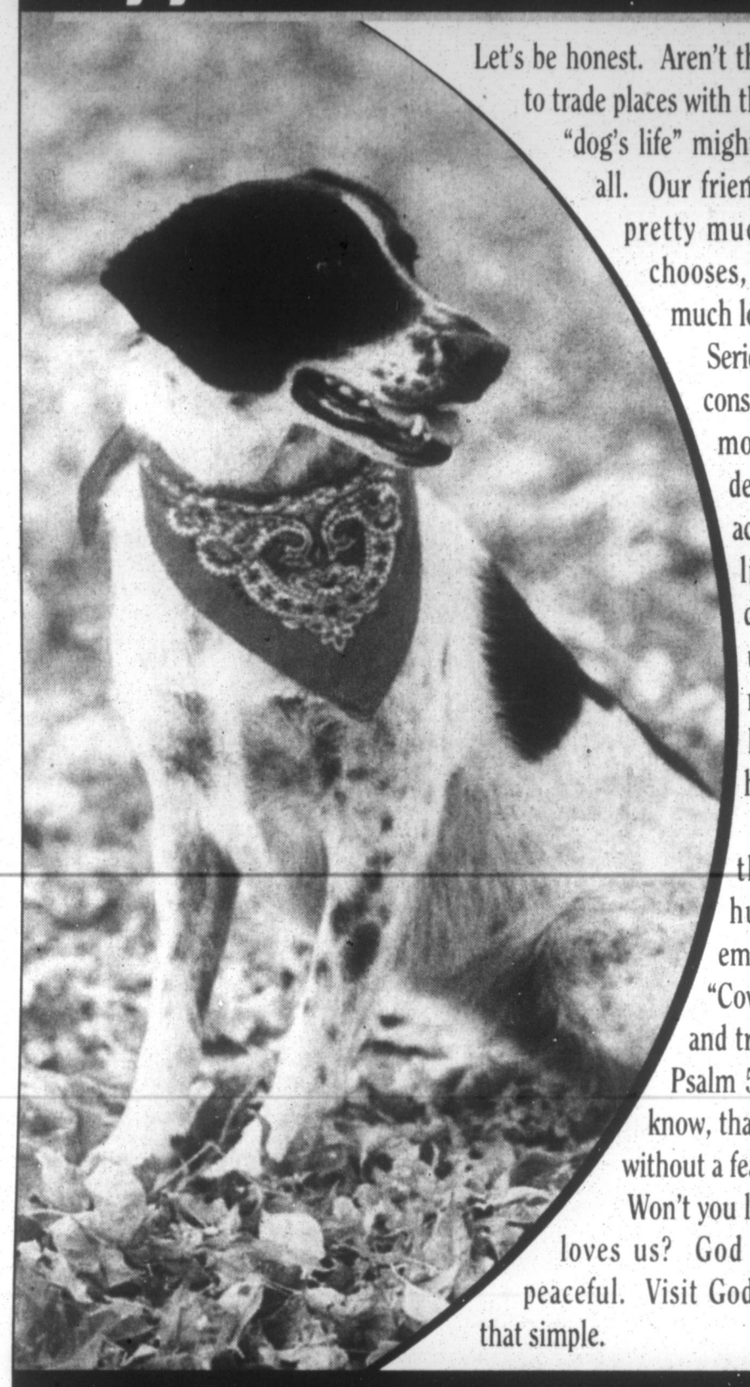
Happier Than an Ol' Hound Dog



Let's be honest. Aren't there days when you would like to trade places with this canine character? Having a "dog's life" might not be the worst thing after all. Our friend here has no deadlines. He pretty much eats and sleeps when he chooses, and apparently "Cowboy" is much loved. How did he get so lucky? Seriously, there is something we can consider. "Cowboy" is undemanding most of the time, though he is dependent upon his master and actually has little control over his life. He takes what comes, doesn't hold grudges, and shows unconditional love even if his master forgets his favorite treat. He loves his master and trusts her to love him. It's that simple.

Yes, our lives are not quite that simple because we are humans with responsibilities, emotions and free will. Yet, like "Cowboy" we can love our Master and trust Him to take care of us. In Psalm 56:9-11 David declares, "This I know, that God is for me...in God I trust without a fear. What can man do to me?" Won't you love God unconditionally as He loves us? God wants us to be joyful and peaceful. Visit God's House this Sabbath. It's that simple.

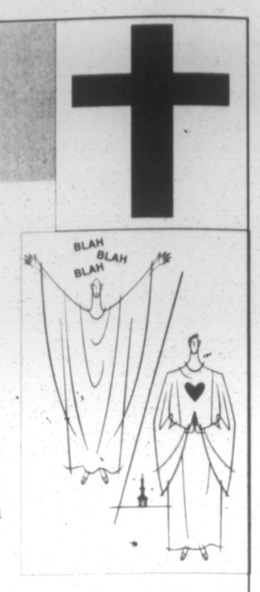
Internal Versus External Religion



The gospels frequently protest against the external manifestation of religion, whether it is the Pharisees wearing broad phylacteries or the public expression of loud and pompous prayer. One could argue that the development of religion from the Old to the New Testament moves in the direction of internalizing religious acts which originally had a primarily ritualistic or external function. In the oldest books of the Old Testament, we frequently witness acts of "external" religion, such as public sacrifices and public prayer, whereas the later prophets such as Isaiah and Jeremiah stress the internal experience of religion, the religion of the heart. Christianity completes this movement, with Jesus stressing that ultimately God is mainly concerned only with what is in our hearts – compassion and love. It may be impossible, and even inappropriate, to completely disregard the external side of religion, since whether they be in the form of a physical object such as a cross or in the form of a ritual, such as a baptism. We should remember that ultimately it is the internal experience of religion that gives it meaning and value, and we should be careful to avoid getting caught up in its external manifestations.

Beware of the scribes, who like to go about in long robes, and love salutations in the market places ... and for a pretense make long prayers.

Honey May Provide Barrier to Spread of Colon Tumors

Honey has been used as a home remedy to speed healing since ancient times. Surprisingly animal research conducted recently in Turkey suggests that use of topical honey during surgery may help pre-vent colon tumors from coming back. The study was intended to help improve the safety of laparoscopic surgery, an increasing popular technique that involves tiny incisions and very small instruments. The study suggests that outside of honey's known usefulness as an anti-bacterial and effective treatment for burns, it may also possibly work as a barrier to tumor cells when such tumors are spread in surgical incisions. Some feel that substances in honey may help dissolve tumor cells before they can spread to new areas.

Honey applied directly to a burn or gauze covering for such burns has been shown to improve the formation of new tissue and speed healing. The medicinal activity of honey is thought to vary depending on the type of plant from which honeybees that make the honey obtained their nectar.

Playtime for Indoor Cats

Q. I read your column on keeping cats indoors all the time. How can you keep a pet active and engaged when it doesn't ever see the outside world? — Julie L., Salt Lake City

A. Is it possible to keep an indoor cat happy? Sure it is. My own cat, which started life as a "barn critter" in the countryside, has adapted well to life indoors in the city. Over the years (he's an astute five now) I've worked-in several routines to keep him active and challenged, even when I'm not around.

Try to play with your cat for a solid hour, either before or after work. Introduce him or her to toys that will engage playful or hunting instincts — such as dangling the plastic ring from a milk jug from the end of a string, setting a windup mouse loose on the floor, or waving a feather on the end of a stick. Give treats during playtime, as well as when you get home and when you leave.

While you're at work, leave safe toys around the house. A scratching post is important, as is a cozy, semi-enclosed spot for your cat to curl up in. Fill a toy or an old sock with catnip and leave it on the floor. Keep the radio on at low volume.

If you've only got one cat, but you know other cat owners, why not arrange play dates? For sociable cats (who don't exhibit extreme aggressiveness around other pets), spending a day or two each month with other pets (all spayed, neutered and with shots, of course) is another way to keep him or her happy. Talk to friends or the vet about this possibility.

Braddock Trail Program Slated In Springs, Pa.

Robert Bantz Sr. of Bowling Green will present a program on Braddock's Trail on Monday, Oct. 27, at 7 p.m. at the Folk Meeting House in Springs, Pa.

Bantz, a member of the Western Maryland Chapter of the Archeological Society of Maryland, has hiked the local section of the trail four times in the last six years. Using global positioning technology, he accurately plotted the Maryland section of the road, including four miles of unmolested trail in Allegany County and 18 miles in Garrett County. About 90 percent of the original trail in Maryland runs across privately owned land.

Beginning as an animal trace and Native American footpath (Nemacolin's Path), the trail to the Ohio Valley was used for trade and travel from coastal settlements, the Shenandoah Valley and other points east and south. Throughout the 1700s, trappers and traders used the trail extensively.

Under the command of Maj. Gen. Edward Braddock, the rough road was cleared by British troops in 1754-55 as they made their way to Fr. Duquesne, Pa. They had to widen the trail nearly six feet in some portions to allow for the passage of wagons and artillery, which was considered an engineering feat during that time period. Braddock's Trail was the only way west from Cumberland until U.S. Rt. 40 was completed in 1834.

The Folk Meeting House is located along Springs Road (Rt. 669). Sponsored by the Springs Historical Society, the program is free and open to the public. For further information, persons may call 814-662-4366 or go to www.springspa.org.

A 19-year-old Kitzmiller resident was arrested and charged with second-degree burglary and felony theft earlier this week, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies and Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

An arrest warrant was issued for Joshua Guy Damron after John Hershberger of Kitzmiller called authorities after discovering a house he owns in Kitzmiller had been broken into and more than $1,700 in property was stolen.

Damron was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $1,000 bond, police said.

Just nine days after she was charged in connection with a fatal drunk driving accident, Julie Marie Jenkins, 23, Accident, was arrested again for alleged drunk driving early Friday morning along U.S. Route 219 in front of Wal-Mart, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Deputies observed the 1998 Dodge truck weaving back and forth and crossing the center line. Jenkins failed field sobriety tests, and was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), failure to drive right of center, and negligent driving.

Jenkins remains jailed at the Garrett County Detention Center on $125,000 bond.

The fatal accident on Oct. 15 claimed the life of 25-year-old Jody Lee Emerick of Grantsville and severely injured Garrett Keith Barclay, 22, also of Grantsville.

In that accident, Jenkins was operating a van that struck a tractor-trailer that was parked legally on the westbound exit ramp from Interstate 68 to Chestnut Ridge Road with its running lights activated, police said.

In other police news, several drivers were also charged with drunk driving offenses.

James Otto Talbert, 36, Westminster, was stopped along Lake Shore Drive at 2:29 a.m., and failed field sobriety tests. He was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, and failure to drive right of center. Talbert was later released.

Raymond Louis Monk, 48, Oakland, was stopped along Gorman Road near Steyer Mine Road after his vehicle was observed weaving and crossing the center line early Sunday morning. He was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

In a separate incident, Paul David Howdyshell III, 24, Kitzmiller, was arrested after his vehicle crossed the center line several times early Saturday morning along Garrett Highway near Mason School Road. He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failure to drive right of center. He was later released.

Friendsville Rd. Stop Results In Three Arrests

A traffic stop on Friendsville Road early this morning led the arrests of three men on drug-related charges, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

At approximately 12:07 a.m., a 1997 Chevrolet Tahoe was stopped just south of Hoyes Road for failure to drive right of center and expired license plates. The driver, Walter R. Jepson, 37, Silver Spring, was arrested for driving while under the influence. A search led to the discovery of a bag of suspected marijuana in one of Jepson's pockets.

The two passengers, Tony Foresta, 44, New York City, and Robert T. George, 44, Chamblee, Ga., were also arrested when a partially burnt suspected

Friendsville Man Injured In Trap Run Road Crash

A Saturday evening collision south of Friendsville slightly injured one driver, while the other was charged by Maryland State Police troopers who investigated the 5 p.m. mishap.

The accident occurred on Trap Run Road when a 1989 Chevrolet sedan operated by Jason Andrew Cosner, 20, Aberdeen, veered across the center line in a curve just south of White Rock Road and struck an oncoming vehicle operated by Larry Glenn Lipscomb, 50, Friendsville.

Cosner, who escaped injury, was charged with failure to give full time and attention to his driving. Lipscomb was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded. Lipscomb's 1969 Chevrolet Camaro sustained disabling damage to its driver's side, and was towed from the scene.

Veterans Day Parade Slated In Oakland

Proctor Kildow Post 71 of the American Legion will again sponsor a Veterans Day parade through Oakland on Sunday, Nov. 9, beginning at 1 p.m. Veterans programs will also be held at 2 p.m. that same day and on Tuesday, Nov. 11, at 11 a.m., both in Oakland.

Second vice commander "Red" Guthrie said the parade will form on Liberty Street at the Oakland Train Station and follow First, Center, Second, Alder, and Third streets and disband in the vicinity of McDonald's.

Candy will again be thrown from various vehicles in the parade for the children, and miniature flags will be distributed during the parade. "For the safety of the children, parents are asked to prevent them from running into the street," stressed a Post 71 spokesperson.

The post is requesting participation from groups and organizations to help make the parade a success. Those wishing to participate may call the American Legion home in Oakland at 301-334-3308 and leave the name, type of group or organization, and number of individuals or units.

All veterans are also asked to participate in the parade. Those who would like to march are welcome to do so, but vehicles will be available for those who would like to ride.

Immediately following the parade at 2 p.m., a patriotic program is planned at St. Peter's social hall along Fourth Street in Oakland.

On Tuesday, Nov. 11, at 11 a.m. the annual Veterans Day program will be held at Veterans Park, located at the corner of Third and Oak streets in Oakland. In case of inclement weather, the event will be held in the court house rotunda.

The featured speaker for the program will be O.N. "Butch" Haggard, American Legion, Department of Maryland, sergeant at arms and retired Veterans Administration area representative.

The public is encouraged to view the parade and to attend the Veterans Day programs.

GC Officials Give Monthly Reports; Rigidply Recovers Quickly From Fire

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 15 departments and agencies. Issues discussed this month included Rigidply Rafters' recovery efforts, local bridge projects, farmers' bear damage claims, Social Services' facilities, the Deer Park water project, and the new visitors center at the Oakland Train Station.

Economic Development

Director Jim Hinebaugh, Garrett County Economic Development, reported that Rigidply Rafters was back in production. Fire broke out early last Wednesday morning at the Oakland area business, which manufactures wood trusses and other building products, causing an estimated $1 million in damages.

The fire destroyed a 12,000-square-foot building that housed two of the company's five production areas, said Hinebaugh; however, only one customer order was lost. Electricity was restored the next day, and employees, working in multiple shifts, were back in production at 75 percent of the normal rate.

"It's amazing how quickly they recovered," Hinebaugh said.

The company, which is headquartered in Richland, Pa., plans to upgrade the facility with more modern equipment and build another 12,000- to 14,000-square-foot building, said Hinebaugh. Locally, the company employs about 70 persons.

Hinebaugh noted that Rigidply's general manager in Richland, Ken Guffey, was highly complimentary about the people in this area who helped the company during and after the fire, such as the volunteer firefighters and Allegheny Power workers.

Hinebaugh also reported that core bores at the proposed Keyser's Ridge Industrial Park had been completed. The analysis of the samples is underway, and the results may be known by the end of next week. He said the results were very important to the project as they "shape and guide" the work.

Roads Department

Supervisor Fred Polce, Garrett County Roads Department, reported that road crews had completed their repair projects for the year, finishing 88 miles of improvements this year. Paving crews have also finished for the year. Nearly 46 miles of the scheduled 55 miles of paving were completed this year. Paving will resume on Cranesville Road this spring.

Dwight Emory, county engineer, also reported that the temporary replacement bridge for Savage River Road was set last Friday. It may be open by mid next week, he said.

An additional quote is needed for the Oakland-Rosedale replacement bridge to allow for the inclusion of a pedestrian walkway on the structure. Oakland had requested that the walkway be included, Emory noted.

He also reported that he had met last week with owners of property adjacent to the Third Street bridge in Oakland. "I think we have reached a consensus on the approach [for the new bridge] with the property owners," he said.

The engineer added that the design work for the bridge replacement project was about 85 percent completed. The State Highway Administration, however, has the final say on the design.

There is no change in the status of the Bayard-Corona bridge project, Emory noted. The bridge, which spans the Potomac River between Maryland and West Virginia, has been closed for several years. The project is a shared effort between the two states; however, the West Virginia State Highway Administration has yet to move forward on the project.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg said the Garrett County government had offered to front the money for the project and allow West Virginia to pay the county back later, but for whatever reason West Virginia officials rejected the offer.

Extension Office

Acting director Ann Sherrard, Garrett County Extension Office, reported that 10 farmers had submitted bear damage claims so far this fall, which is down from last year. Of those damage claims, six involved field corn, two round bales, one sweet corn, and one oats. Some of the damage was significant, noted Sherrard.

The University of Maryland has not yet appointed a replacement for county extension agent Jim Simms, who retired in June. Until a

A special candle-lighting ceremony will be held in honor of those veterans who gave their lives to preserve and defend freedom.

Paul Mullan of WMSG radio will be the master of ceremonies, and Joe Ashby will play Taps on the trumpet.

The community is invited to attend and participate. There is no admission fee, but a free-will offering will be collected to benefit the Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Open House To Feature Adventure Sports Institute

Garrett College will host an open house featuring one of Garrett's signature programs, the Adventure Sports Institute, on Friday, Nov. 7, from 9 to 5 p.m.

All prospective high school and college students are invited to attend.

The Adventure Sports Institute is known to be one of the top skills-based two-year programs in the country. As the adventure sports industry continues to boom, the need also increases for well-trained and competent outdoor leaders. Garrett's surrounding location is "exceptionally suited" to taking courses beyond the traditional class setting into the natural outdoor environment, said a spokesperson.

While the classes are enjoyable, they also emphasize important areas such as risk management, group preparedness, attitude, and overall skill competence, added the spokesperson.

The Adventure Sports Institute of Garrett College is a program with an objective to educate the outdoor leaders of tomorrow to face the challenges of the future.

Other signature programs to be featured at the open house include agricultural management and natural resources and wildlife technology.

Pa. Man Pleads Guilty To Theft Of Police Dog

A western Pennsylvania man pleaded guilty this week to stealing a trained Garrett County Sheriff's Office K-9 bloodhound, and was handed a two-month jail term by visiting judge Thomas Lohm during a Garrett County District Court proceeding.

Leroy Erwin Friend, 38, Beaver, was arrested in May by sheriff's deputies who observed Jonathan the K-9 sitting in a suspicious vehicle they were summoned to check just south of Oakland. As the investigation unfolded, Friend was taken into custody and charged with felony theft, and Jonathan was reunited with his work partner at that deputy's residence.

After Friend entered his guilty plea in the courtroom, Judge Lohm handed down a 10-month sentence, all but two months of which was suspended, and levied a $55 fine and a period of 18 months' supervised probation. An additional charge of second-degree burglary was not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

A co-defendant in the same case, James Eston Sherbin, 30, Oakland, was not prosecuted on an associated charge of felony theft. Sherbin had been implicated in the crime at the time of the investigation.

In other District Court news, a Mtn. Lake Park man was fined $405 after he pleaded guilty to possession of drug paraphernalia.

Derek Ryan Steffan, 19, was jailed following a February search of a Mtn. Lake Park residence by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. The odor of burnt marijuana was noted inside the home, and a bag of marijuana was located during the search. Steffan, who was visiting at the time of the incident, was found to be carrying rolling papers in his pocket. Visiting judge Paul Stakem heard the case, and an additional charge of marijuana possession was not prosecuted.

Stephen Arthur Cabe, 47, McHenry, was handed a stet ruling on a possession of marijuana charge, while a charge of driving while under the influence (DUI) drew his guilty plea and a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling from visiting judge James Vaughn. The judge also imposed a $305 fine, a two-year supervised probation order, and 40 hours of community service.

Cabe's April arrest by Maryland State Police troopers came during a Garrett Highway traffic stop in McHenry. Following the DUI arrest, a film canister containing suspected marijuana was located in Cabe's car.

Amy Jean Janes, 25, Oakland, faced charges of second-degree assault, resisting arrest, and obstructing and hindering a police investigation, each of which was placed onto the stet docket. The charges stemmed from an August incident in the McHenry area when a relative of hers, Aaron Cantrell Janes, 23, Charleston, S.C., was stopped on Garrett Highway just south of Lake Shore Drive. As state troopers were speaking with him, Amy Janes, his passenger, tried to intervene, repeatedly yelling obscenities and striking a police officer who tried to calm her. Both Amy and Aaron Janes, who was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia when a smoking device was found in his pocket, were ordered to complete 30 hours of community service by Judge Lohm.

Shelby Ovilene Tasker, 39, Terra Alta, W.Va., was handed a stet ruling by Judge Stakem in connection with an accusation of second-degree assault. Tasker had been jailed by sheriff's deputies in August after she admitted to punching a man in the face during a dispute.

Connie Marie Workman, 18, Swanton, was handed a stet ruling on a failure to comply with a lawful order charge filed in August by Oakland police officers. She was arrested after a disturbance in front of the District Courthouse, when she allegedly harassed a woman even though a peace order was on file.

Richard Craig Welch, 45, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of second-degree assault, resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, malicious destruction of property, and failure to obey a lawful order. His July arrest by Oakland police officers stemmed from a domestic-related incident at a Crosby Drive residence.

Robert King, 30, Davidsville, Pa., was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge that had stemmed from a 1998 arrest by state troopers. The charge was filed in connection with a domestic altercation at the Accident-area Colony Drive home he was residing in at the time.

Ladon S. Garrett, 24, McHenry, was not prosecuted on a misdemeanor theft charge that stemmed from a March 2001 drug investigation. Garrett was given $200 in recorded currency by a confidential informant in a cocaine sting, but failed to purchase the drug as he had agreed to do and absconded with the money.

Billy Joe Robertson, 24, Flintstone, was not prosecuted on a misdemeanor theft charge filed by state troopers who investigated the January theft of a CD player from the Pawn-It store in the Deep Creek Lake area.

DWIs

The following driving while impaired cases were heard in traffic court recently.

Roy Norman Cheshire Jr., 24, Md., was deemed to be in violation of his driving while intoxicated (DWI) probation. Judge Stakem revoked the probation order and reimposed a 24-day jail sentence.

Charles James Harkins Jr., 40, Md., and Bradley William Ladik, 32, Pa., both pleaded guilty to DWI and each was handed a PBJ, fined $305, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Weather A Factor In Three Single-Vehicle Accidents

Weather has been named a contributing factor in three separate single-vehicle accidents Thursday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

In the first incident, a 1998 Ford Escort driven by Anna M. Galik, 25, McHenry, was southbound on Mosser Road near Moors Hollow Road when she lost control and the vehicle hit a ditch. The vehicle was pulled from the ditch and driven back to the residence, police said. She was not injured, but her passenger, William W. Clipper, 19, McHenry, was transported by private vehicle to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for minor injuries.

In the second accident, a 1983 Ford Thunderbird operated by William E. Schreck II, 34, Oakland, lost control along Steyer Mine Road. The vehicle hit a ditch and rolled on its top, police said. Schreck was not injured, and the vehicle was towed by Hutton Auto.

In the final accident, a 1993 Subaru operated by Arthur A. Horowitz, 63, Oakland, was traveling southbound on Oakland Sang Run Road in the area of Casteel Road and was approaching a hill when he said he was startled by a passing vehicle. Horowitz lost control, and the vehicle hit a ditch and rolled on its top. He refused medical treated, and the vehicle was towed by Hutton Auto. The Oakland fire department and Southern Rescue Squad responded to the scene.

All three accidents are still under investigation, police said.

LOHR DISTRIBUTORS DONATES TO OAKLAND VFD – The annual Oktoberfest at the Autumn Glory Festival couldn't have happened without the efforts of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and Lohr Distributors, which helped make for a true German beer hall atmosphere by providing a vital ingredient. Bus Window Shattered; No Students Injured

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Garrett Bureau of Investigation are currently investigating an incident involving a Garrett County school bus that was traveling along Snowy Creek Road Wednesday afternoon.

The driver, Clayton Miller, was operating bus number 35 and had 10 students on board when a rear window was shattered. Miller stopped the bus to look at the damage, which appeared to have been caused by an unidentified projectile, police said.

None of the students were injured in the 2:40 p.m. incident.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT RECEIVES RURAL AWARD – The 2003 Maryland Rural Health Achievement Award was presented to the Health Education and Outreach Program of the Garrett County Health Department recently. The Outstanding Rural Health Achievement Award is given for leadership and noteworthy initiative in the development of community-oriented rural health care delivery. Under the supervision of Kendra Todd, the Health Education and Outreach program is composed of a team of health educators, program coordinators, and outreach workers who work together to provide and assist with all health education activities in Garrett County. Through the extensive use of volunteers, they staff and oversee a number of community coalitions including the Tobacco-Free Coalition, Zero Tolerance Committee, and Traffic Safety Advisory Committee. They also oversee two after-school programs and numerous other outreach activities. The team of six outreach workers are selected based not only on their professional qualifications but also on where they live. Outreach workers live, work, shop, and worship in the communities in which they are assigned, said Rodney Glotfelty, Garrett County health officer. The community outreach workers focus their attention on empowering (and in many instances organizing) community members, businesses, churches, and others to provide health education that is "woven into the fabric" of everyday life, he added. "We are extremely proud of the work being done through our Health Education and Outreach programs. The staff members are in the forefront of the Garrett County Health Department's prevention efforts. It is wonderful to see a prevention program receive this kind of recognition," said Glotfelty. Pictured, from left to right are Glotfelty; Kathy Elliott, Outreach worker; William Eckman, president of the Rural Maryland Council; Sadie Liller, Outreach worker; Grace Zaczek, director of the State Office of Primary Care and Rural Health; Jacob Frego, president of the Maryland Rural Health Association; and David Beard, Garrett County commissioner.

This area is currently outlined and classified in the county's master plan as town residential, suburban residential, commercial, rural, and agriculture resource. The proposed land-use patterns are town residential and commercial.

Interested residents or parties are encouraged to attend. The discussion will be held in the commissioners' public meeting room, located on the second floor of the courthouse in Oakland.

A Heap of Trouble...

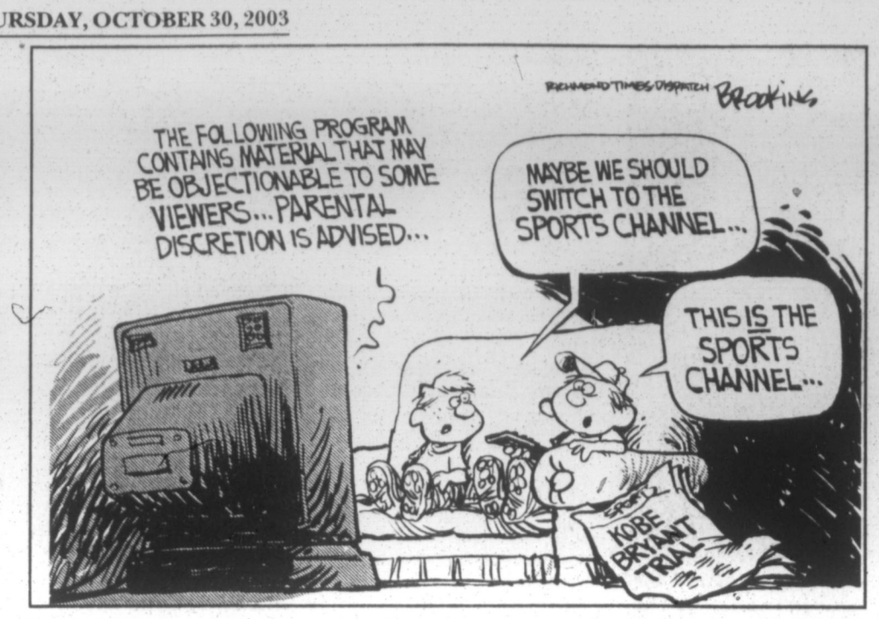
If the degradation of language is a symptom of a society in trouble, then we in America are in a heap of it. The total disregard for proper grammar, punctuation, and word usage is one thing, and we've commented on that several times in the past. The degradation we are referring to in this column today, however, is the now common, casual use of profanity, particularly by the television medium. And when we say profanity, we are not referring to the "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn" statement uttered by Rhett Butler; we're referring to the use of the crudest, most foul words that are, unfortunately, in the English language.

No longer are television viewers spared from hearing such talk, even during the prime-time programming hours when many of the ears that are tuned in belong to the very young and impressionable. No longer is this language limited to cable TV shows. All of the major networks, in their new season of programs this fall, have basically tossed out the remaining remnants of traditional values and decency that they had, and are taking a no-holds-barred attitude. This is not only from a language standpoint, but behavior as well, as nudity and intimate love scenes are also becoming almost routine.

Television airwaves, unbeknownst to many, are owned by the public. The networks broadcast by license and at the discretion of the public. The Federal Communications Commission is the agency charged with maintaining decency and standards on the airwaves. Just this past week, the FCC commissioners ruled that use of the "f" word by singer Bono during the Golden Globe Awards did not violate federal indecency rules. The commission admitted that the word "may be crude and offensive," but because it did not "describe sexual or excretory organs or activities," its use met the federal standard for broadcast decency.

How laughable is that?! Just what is the "standard"? Perhaps the acronym should stand for Federal Communications Clowns, or maybe Cowards. How about Federal Crude Commission?

Besides getting rid of the current FCC commissioners, or the commission itself, we have three other suggestions: turn the channel, turn the TV off, or just throw out the TV altogether. Any one of the three, if acted upon by enough people as a protest to the aforementioned degradation that is being allowed, would result in a quick and radical change by the networks. This is because, as with just about everything else, it is the almighty dollar, and not values and decency, that controls the decision-making process.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

My name is Ruth Foley and I am a candidate for Loch Lynn town councilwoman. I have been a property owner and resident of Loch Lynn for most of the past 36 years. I am retired, but continue to be active doing volunteer work for a number of organizations as well as the town.

You may believe that with no opposition for this position, your vote is not necessary. I feel your vote is needed as a show of your continued interest in the work being done by the mayor and town council. Many good things have been happening in the town, and many more are in the planning stages. I am particularly interested in encouraging our youth to participate in these plans. They need to learn about the responsibilities of living in a small town as well as the need for all of our residents to help, rather than complain of things not done.

See you at the polls, and hope to see you at all of the town meetings.

To the Editor:

My husband and I recently had the pleasure of being in Oakland visiting friends and enjoying Oktoberfest. While the crafts, parade, and weather were great, the real reason for this letter is to share my experience at Proudfoot's Pharmacy in Oakland.

I know that there are kind and giving people, and this is about one amongst you.

My mission, when entering the pharmacy, was to purchase ibuprofen. While looking for the item, the pharmacist approached and offered assistance. We discussed my problem and the pharmacist made a recommendation. I, being a nurse (which I never divulged) agreed. I proceeded to search for the item, but the pharmacist retrieved, opened the package, and handed me three Benadryl tablets.

I really was surprised by this gesture, so I offered to pay a few times, but finally I accepted this gracious offer, thanked him, and left the store.

I wanted to share this act of kindness so the people of Oakland know what caliber of people are within the community.

To the Editor:

I do not normally read letters of 300+ words, but must respond to inaccuracies in Mr. DeGroot's letter of 10/23/03.

The idea of using non-wood products made me do some thinking. Maybe plastic toilet paper?

When trees reach their peak and start to decline in age, they, too, produce carbon dioxide. Forest management is necessary for a healthy forest; ask any smoke jumper where the hot spots are.

To compare forests fires of the west (coniferous) as a reason to log eastern forests (deciduous) is a no-brainer.

What is "surgically precise forestry" and "heavily managed forest"?

Logging roads do not fragment wildlife habitat nor harm streams. Ever heard of Best Management Practice (BMP)?

Logging roads provide motorized access to remote areas to fight fires, recreational use and retrieve smoke jumpers.

Whitetail deer browse the forest edge and will also browse where sunlight regenerates and stimulates regrowth of grasses and/or trees within a well managed forest.

Managing a forest is like planting a garden. Not to weed or thin plants in a row, you have nothing for future use.

Not once did Mr. DeGroot mention the real and present threat to forests: the real estate industry.

I intensively manage my woodland (large by Eastern standards) for multiple purpose use by using clearcuts, timber stand improvement (TSI), crop tree release (CTR), and road daylighting.

To the Editor:

"Give me a break." This is the title of a segment by ABC's John Stossel that airs weekly on the television program 20/20. I would like to suggest that you contact Mr. Stossel and submit two letters from the October 16 edition of The Republican. They seem to be the kind of letters that would be right up Mr. Stossel's alley.

The first letter of which I speak was written by D.N. Rebele of Hagerstown, who had the audacity to complain, publicly, that the Maryland State Police spoiled his/her Autumn Glory "fun" by ticketing him/her for having an open container of alcohol in his/her vehicle. The second letter was written by Jack Rhode of Pittsburgh. Once again (and unbelievably in the same issue) the writer complains, publicly, about the MSP enforcing anti-alcohol policies – this time in the form of DWI checkpoints. Thankfully, this letter was followed by your tactful statements that having a designated driver would end any anxiety this policy causes Mr. Rhode. (That he needed to be reminded of this to begin with is pretty scary.)

The two writers have obviously "missed the point" somewhere in their history – the point being that, to maintain public order and safety, no one is "allowed" to drink and drive, period. All logic surrounding this issue has apparently escaped the writers. What they seem to be needing to tell their Republican audience is that they should have a right to behave in ways that are against the law, and that the police should step aside, their reasoning being that they're only tourists trying to have a good time, or that they're Americans and not terrorists, or both. Someone needs to say, to these two and any others like them, "Give me a break!" Maybe Mr. Stossel would be interested in the chance to do just that.

Amazed,

To the Editor:

I am a former resident of Mountain Lake Park and a frequent summer visitor. I am also a Vietnam veteran with 18 months of service as a troop lift helicopter pilot in the 1st Air Cavalry. And, I am still on active duty in the Pennsylvania Army National Guard.

Today I did something that I have never done before. I e-mailed both Pennsylvania senators and several congressmen. The topic of the e-mails: Equip the Troops in Iraq and Other Places in Harm's Way.

A unit in the Pa. Army National Guard, A Company, 28th Signal Battalion, from Pittsburgh, is being mobilized and sent to Iraq. I urged Senators Santorum and Specter to use the power of their offices to insure that these soldiers are equipped, before deployment, with modernized body armor and "armored up" HUMMVs.

A significant number of soldiers now deployed in Iraq do not have modernized body armor and many of the HUMMVs in Iraq have no armor at all, while "armored up" HUMMVs sit in storage in Bosnia. I also urged in my e-mails that this situation be corrected as rapidly as humanly possible. Fly the equipment over there on Air Force One if necessary.

Most of the troops now being killed in Iraq are being killed by B-40 Rocket Propelled Grenades, AK-47s, and booby traps (now called improvised explosive devices, or IEDs). Sound familiar to any of you other Vietnam vets? The modern body armor and "armored up" HUMMVs will prevent or minimize many casualties taken as a result of attacks by AKs, RPGs, and booby traps. Wish we would have had this equipment 35 years ago. I know of some people who might be alive today. (Helicopter pilots in Vietnam had a predecessor to the modern body armor, a 10-pound Kevlar chest protector we called a chicken plate and wore most of the time. The grunts had nothing.)

Regardless of how you feel about the war in Iraq, I urge all of you to do the following if you want to support our troops. E-mail, call, and write every congressman and senator you can think of and demand our troops in Iraq and other places in harm's way be equipped immediately with this protective lifesaving equipment, and that those scheduled for the next round of deployments be equipped prior to arrival in theater.

In some instances parents and/or husbands or wives of soldiers have gone out and bought the modernized body armor, at $1,000 a pop, and mailed it to their soldiers in Iraq. That some soldiers have been killed who did not have this equipment is not only outrageous, but, in my opinion, criminal.

To the Editor:

On the one hand, I appreciate your recent report of the news item about unemployment figures ("down" in Maryland and even further "down" in Garrett County). However, lest the public continue to be misled as to the true situation, I wish you had performed a little analysis on the report from the Md. Dept. of Labor (DLLR).

First of all, these were "seasonally adjusted" figures, representing a lot of minimum-wage summer jobs, mostly held by high school and college students. Those jobs are now gone, but the students don't show up as unemployed because they are back in school.

Second, after unemployment benefits run out, a person is no longer counted by the agencies as being "out of work." The assumption is that the person is now choosing not to work. What a cruel kick in the teeth that must be!

Finally, "having a job" is not the same as "having the income to provide for your family." Many employers have replaced experienced (and, of course, older) workers with younger, inexperienced ones. The quality of the work done is not the same, and the older workers usually have more significant financial obligations, not to mention the effect on the rest of the economy when the older worker no longer buys or donates at the prior levels. Nevertheless, someone is holding "a job" so the numbers go down.

All of the above are examples of the cynical manipulation of the truth for the political benefit of those in power. It's no different when the other party is in the job, either. They all count on the ignorance and willingness of the public to believe such reports.

Instead of simply handing on the self-serving reports of the state and federal agencies, why don't you offer a little analysis, including interviewing some of the people affected right here? I have a feeling that an honest discussion with the folks on the corner of Third and Oak (DLLR) could shed a different light for your readers (unless they have been ordered to refer all inquiries to Annapolis). At the very least, you could preface the government reports with a statement that the information contained therein is not necessarily reliable, nor is it the whole story. It is merely the agencies' effort to paint a rosy picture, while many of us know that the truth is far worse.

Of course, the administration will gladly quote these "facts" in the coming election, crowing about how "unemployment is down." Sadly, many will accept this half-truth without questioning its validity. After all, if a government agency said it, not to mention the Leader of the Free World, it must be true. Just like the uranium from Niger.

Tom Hudson

To the Editor:

Where to begin? There has been much written of late by Bill Thomas and others and it is such a great feeling to know one is not alone. More young men died today. Our "best and brightest" are being forced to defend the indefensible. Mr. Kay's report on weapons of mass destruction says it all. There was no "imminent threat" as declared by our president. There were no chemical factories; only a couple of trailers that have now been discovered to have been used for making weather instruments (ironically, exactly what UN inspectors were told by Iraq before they left). Two years ago even Colin Powell said that Iraq posed no threat to its neighbors and possessed no "significant capability" in weapons of mass destruction. And yet, more young men died, again, today.

Even more frightening is the administration's recent activity to keep reporters from knowing about casualties. A Newsweek reporter was shown the October 8th Coalition casuality report that indicated eight soldiers were seriously wounded and evacuated to military hospitals. Later at a press conference there was no mention of the ambush. When questioned repeatedly, U.S. officials said the "incident" was being investigated. It was as if it never happened and those soldiers were never wounded. What an insult to the families of those soldiers and, yes, an insult to us all.

So now the U.S. is tightly controlling journalists. Reporters are now not allowed to roam freely into hospitals and morgues. As the best catcher the baseball world ever saw, Yogi, used to say, "it is like deja vu all over again." When things were at their worst in Vietnam, the administration began keeping the bad news from us. Here we go again! Recent letters signed by different soldiers have been appearing in newspapers all over the country stating that the "quality of life and security for the citizens has been largely restored, and we are a large part of why that happened." Good news, except that the exact same words are used in each letter. Another attempt by this administration to bamboozle the American public.

The president's "I know of no one who feels the world would be a better place with Saddam in power" is doublespeak to convince the world that this war was justifiable. His total justification was Iraq's "imminent threat" to America and the "preponderance" of evidence that he has weapons of mass destruction that were poised to attack us or our allies. These allegations have been proven false, so now it is "the world is better off." There are dozens of dictators around the world committing more violent atrocities than Saddam, yet those are not even on this administration's "hit list." Most of these dictators are a lesser threat to world peace than our "selected" president. To make a preemptive strike against Iraq, botch the reconstruction, award billions of dollars of contracts to his friends, send American taxpayers an 87 billion dollar bill for this fiasco, and then hide behind such an explanation as "the world is better off" is, or should be, an impeachable offense. And lest we forget, more young men died today.

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to my fellow Democrats of Garrett County. I realize there aren't many of us, but I'm hoping most of us read these pages.

On October 13, Rep. Dennis Kucinich formally announced his intention to seek our party's nomination for president of the USA. But this isn't an endorsement of his candidacy; we have nine candidates from which to choose and just a few months until primary voting starts. I urge you to inform yourselves about all the candidates' platforms and positions on issues, choose the person who best represents your hopes for our country, and support him/her actively and passionately.

I know it can be difficult to find information on the candidates. For example, as one journalist writing about Kucinich put it, "Kucinich's politics are hard to describe, so journalists have settled on calling him a leftist and burying him in the 13th paragraph." Relying on the so-called debates that have been televised is a bit of a dodgy proposition; the formats have not been conducive to effective communication, to say the least. But the Internet provides a fast way straight to the horse's mouth, so to speak. All the candidates have web sites that are easy to find with a quick search of a name: Wesley Clark, Howard Dean, John Kerry, Dick Gephardt, Al Sharpton, Carol Moseley Braun, Joe Lieberman, John Edwards, and Dennis Kucinich. My point is that it is important to try.

We are so blessed as citizens of a democracy that, of course, we should always stay informed and exercise our right to vote. President Bush has steered our nation onto an exceedingly hawkish and radically right-wing course. Through his empty language, over-personalization, and the negative frameworks he outlines in his speeches, he has influenced the American people to feel helpless, powerless, and desperate. The irony is that his administration has made us less safe through their mendacity (which, for instance, prevents us from getting to the vital answers about how 9/11/01 happened), their thuggish attempts to tame dissent (the reprehensible leak of a covert CIA agent's name, for example), and the Orwell Act (my apologies, the inappropriately named Patriot Act). This is to say nothing of the invasion and occupation of Iraq – a military operation launched on false premises of an imminent threat and an alarmingly bad doctrine of pre-emption of future threats. By most accounts our soldiers are doing a good job of cleaning up the terrible mess war makes, but too many of them have been sacrificed to this dubious venture. We, collectively as a nation, haven't even been able to mourn the losses properly of those who died in Iraq, because the White House won't allow news organizations to film the flag-draped caskets as they return to American soil at Dover Air Force Base.

Those of us who are frightened by our present course need to feel hopeful! We need to believe we can and will pull America back from the brink of the slippery slope. Supporting a candidate almost always involves some compromise, but there are nine people who want to try to redirect this nation – surely we can all find someone who most clearly speaks to our individual concerns and ideals. But don't stop at choosing whose line to complete on the ballot; contribute time and/or money (every little bit helps), put a sign in your yard or bumper sticker on your car, tell your friends who you support and why. Summon your own enthusiasm, and you will see just how contagious it is!

Sincerely,
Emily Morgan

To the Editor:

Last week, I wrote about my experiences as a "stay-at-home" father, and the trials and tribulations that are involved in such a task. This week, I thought it only fair if I write about my wife's perspective as the "bread winner" of the family.

I am a very fortunate and lucky man to have such a talented and giving wife as I do. She allows me to stay at home and take care of our children, while she goes out every day and works. Her responsibilities at work are home. In fact, I think she probably goes through more stress in the workplace than I do at home. But, because of her talents and abilities, she is able to provide enough income for me to stay home and take care of our two youngest children, ages 5 months and 15 months. It is because of her unselfishness and talents that we are able to manage our family and responsibilities in such a successful manner.

I remember growing up, and my father always going off to work every day. I remember wishing that he didn't have to go all the time, that it would be nice to spend some time with him. I am sure that he wishes he could have stayed home and spent more time with my other two siblings and me, but someone had to make the money necessary for all of us to live. At that time, our culture was very set. The man went out and brought home the paycheck, and the mother stayed home and took care of the children. I have a great respect now, for both my father and for my wife, as the pressures of "bringing home the bacon" can be even greater than that of taking care of your young children. Dealing with bosses, worrying about layoffs, and the day-to-day pressures of getting one's job accomplished successfully cause a great just as important as mine at deal of stress for a person. So, I have to say that there are many times when I, and probably many stay-at-home parents, take for

Southern Band Wins Tourney; Northern Second

The Southern Garrett Marching Band, under the direction of Richard Clever and Duane Salisbury, assistant, captured first place in Group I of the annual Big Apple Tournament of Bands, hosted Saturday by Musselman High School, Inwood, W.Va.

In the process, the Southern band earned its highest score of the season, an 85.7. The Northern Garrett Marching Band, directed by Bill Robinson, placed a close second in the competition, being awarded a score of 85.25, while Westmar was a distant third with a 75.7, and Hancock placed fourth with a score of 71.45.

The Southern band also received the Best Music, Best Percussion, and Best Color Guard specialty awards.

The overall winner of the tournament and winner in Group IV was Keyser High School with a score of 89.15.

Southern is now ranked 17th in the Atlantic Coast Tournament of Band Group I standings, while Northern is ranked 19th.

"Our show is continuing to mature as our students continue to add and perfect the details," Clever said. "We marched and played very well, but everyone in the band believes we can do even better than this. We are very much looking forward to this week's Chapter 13 championships."

Both the Southern and Northern bands will compete in those championships this Saturday. They will be hosted by Allegany High School and held at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland.

HUNDREDS OF TROPHIES have been won over the years by the Southern Garrett Marching Band, and several more were added to that collection on Saturday when the band won first place, plus three specialty awards, in Group I competition at the annual Big Apple Tournament of Bands, hosted by Musselman High School, Inwood, W.Va. The Southern band is now ranked 17th in Group I in the Atlantic Coast TOB Conference, which encompasses several states. Pictured from left above are: Kayla Legeer, Jeremy Sines, drum major Kasey Bell, Daniel Frederick, Twila Ashby, and Emily Thomas. The band will compete again this Saturday in the Chapter 13 Championships, which will be hosted by Allegany High School and staged in Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland. See story. Students Take Reading Project One Step Further

This past summer, students entering sixth grade in Garrett County public schools were each given their own copy of Because of Winn-Dixie written by Kate Di Camillo. Students were to read the book at home. Throughout the summer the Garrett Reading Council sponsored book-sharing activities based on the story at the public libraries.

Once school resumed in August, the sixth grade classroom teachers were asked to complete follow-up activities related to the book.

Mrs. Bryner and Mrs. Margroff's reading class at Northern Middle. School was no exception. They also held an enriched culminating activity for Because of Winn-Dixie. Students Matthew Snyder and Dillion Duponte enjoyed reading and completing numerous book-related activities so much that they were inspired to do something special, said the teachers.

Their inspiration was to host a "Gloria Dump Party," modeled after the one in the story. The guest list included both central BOE office personnel and Northern Middle School staff.

In the story, 10-year-old India Opal Buloni struggles with issues of friendship and prejudice. Her chance meeting with a stray dog whom she named Winn-Dixie and adopted, helped her to eventually realize that friendship is a powerful tool "which helps us through life's both sweet and bitter times." Close to the end of the story India recognizes this power and brings all her friends together for a party. This friendship celebration was the springboard for the Northern Middle School students' party.

Matthew and Dillion created the necessary props and transformed their classroom into Gloria Dump's backyard, based on the author's description. Party refreshments mirrored the menu stated in the story. With some adult assistance, the students prepared egg salad sandwiches, pickles, Littmus lozenges, and "Dump" punch. In the story, Otis provided live party entertainment with his guitar. The Northern Middle School Gloria Dump party included appropriate pre-recorded folk music since neither student plays the guitar.

As guests arrived for the party, they were greeted by the students and given a tour of the "backyard" prior to being seated. First on the party agenda was a brief story synopsis. This was followed by individual student critiques of the story. Students also shared their Because of Winn-Dixie portfolios with the guests. Next, the guests were served official Because of Winn-Dixie refreshments.

"A good time was had by all" who attended the Gloria Dump Party at Northern Middle School, a spokesperson said.

"Congratulations to Matthew Snyder and Dillion Duponte for a job well done," said Carolyn Tice, reading resource teacher. "Thanks to Mrs. Bryner for encouraging creative learning in the classroom, and thanks to the guests who attended this special event."

ANNAPOLIS – Kindly neighbors may think they're doing the right thing by tossing granola bars or boxed raisins into trick-or-treaters' bags, but what they don't know is that these "candies in costume" can be more harmful to teeth than chocolate. Dentists and nutritionists warn that some "healthy" treats actually stick to teeth longer than foods with soluble sugars, which are quickly washed away by saliva. These imposters include granola bars, peanut butter crackers, dried figs, jelly beans, raisins, and caramels.

"Our conventional mind says that chocolate may be the worst, but there are things that are more harmful," said Ross Heisman, dentist and member of the Anne Arundel County Dental Society. The damage, Heisman said, depends on how sticky the food is and how much it adheres to teeth. Granola, for example, takes a long time to break down, so the teeth are in contact with the food longer.

"You need to brush within a reasonable period of time," said Heisman, who used to disappoint many Halloweeners by passing out toothbrushes on the holiday. He now gives out little toys and trinkets less likely to rot children's teeth, or cause a frown when they hit a tot's sack.

Dentists are not the only ones warning about the dangers of unrestricted Halloween candy consumption. The American Academy of Pediatrics, in recognition of a national focus on obesity, is recommending several steps to ensure a healthy, safe All Hallows Eve.

"Be very careful about super-sweet treats," said Daniel Levy, a pediatrician from Owings Mills. He suggested handing out healthy things, such as fruit and vegetables. If children do receive a lot of candy, parents should control the amounts and limit children to eating it no more than two or three times per week.

Very sweet candies often contain corn syrup, a cheap sweetener that can cause cravings for more goodies, Levy said. Those cravings can develop into lifelong bad eating habits that contribute to obesity problems.

Well-meaning parents can substitute treats with none of the nutritional tricks involved.

Crayons, yo-yos, Play-Doh, jacks, and Nerf balls are some popular, non-edible Halloween treats that Wal-Mart stores have noticed selling well.

Some organizations offer downloadable Internet pictures to color and connect-the-dot and memory games to distribute to children. Canister snacks, including chips and cookies, apples with caramel dip, and cheese and peanut butter crackers, are also moving at Wal-Mart.

No matter how much care parents put into choosing and limiting treats, Heisman said excess is inevitable at Halloween.

"Children will consume a lot more sweets than they usually do," he said. "Parents should supervise young children and monitor their consumption."

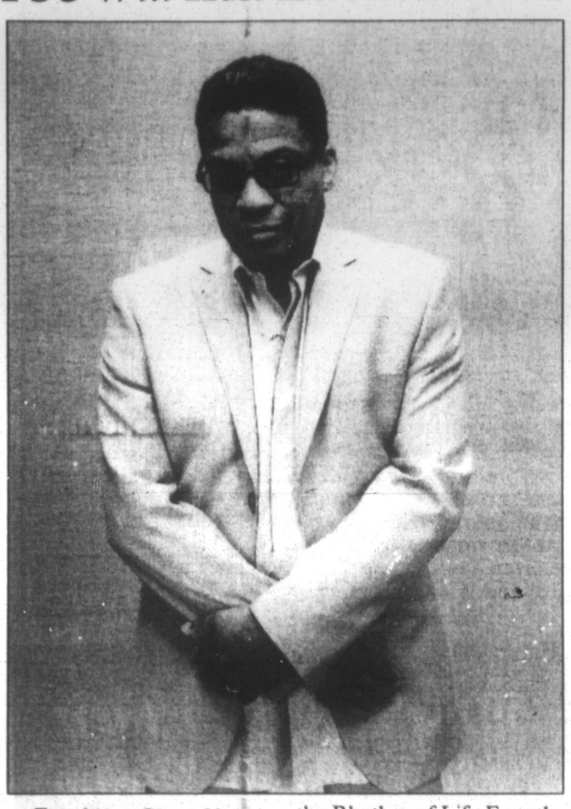
The Arts

FSU Will Host Herbie Hancock



Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series and the Kauffman Music Guest Artist Series present Grammy Award-winning jazz musician Herbie Hancock on Sunday, Nov. 9, at 3 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Pealer Recital Hall.

"Hancock is revered as an innovator in the world of jazz. Continually pushing the boundaries, he retains his trademark style whether playing hip-hop, Gershwin ballads, or traditional tunes," stated a program spokesperson.

As a child prodigy, Hancock first made waves at the age of 11, soloing in the first movement of a Mozart piano concerto with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra before dedicating himself to the rhythms of jazz. Invited to New York City by jazz legend Donald Byrd, he released his debut album Takin' Off at the age of 22, and was a key player in the celebrated Miles Davis Quintet. "Herbie was the step after Bud Powell and Thelonius Monk, and I haven't heard anybody yet who has come after him," says Davis.

The winner of eight Grammy Awards, he has achieved a balance of commercial and artistic success, and few artists in the entire music industry have attained more respect or cast more influence, according to the spokesperson.

Hancock actively shares his talents as an educator, acting as artist-in-residence at Jazz Aspen Snowmass in Colorado, and is a trustee of the Thelonius Monk Institute of Jazz, the founder of the Rhythm of Life Foundation, and a partner in Transparent Music. "Now in his fifth decade as a performer, Hancock remains in the forefront of world culture, technology and, above all, music," the spokesperson said.

Joining Hancock on stage is Gary Thomas on saxophone and flute; Terri Lyne Carrington on drums; and Scott Colley on bass. Thomas, a Baltimore native, is currently the director of jazz studies at Howard University and has appeared on more than 70 recordings in the past 15 years. Lyne is a world-renowned drummer, composer, producer, and clinician, who developed a reputation as a child prodigy, performing with jazz veterans Dizzy Gillespie, Oscar Peterson, Joe Williams, and more. Scott Colley, appearing on more than 70 albums, has been one of the most in-demand bassists on the jazz scene since his arrival in New York in 1988.

Frostburg native and jazz pioneer Lucius "Pete" Harper will be honored at this performance for his contributions to the advancement of jazz to the local rural community. Since he first picked up a ukelele at age 12 and sang "Ain't She Sweet?" the self-trained Harper performed in New York, Washington, D.C., and Pittsburgh, before opening his after-hours music club in Frostburg in the 1950s. Harper's Chicken Shack was the first black-owned business in the area, and soon developed a national reputation among jazz musicians. Legends such as Count Basie and Maynard Ferguson stopped at the Chicken Shack for lengthy jam sessions during their cross-country tours. Harper will turn 88 in November.

This performance is presented in partnership with the University Programming Council. To purchase tickets or to find out more information, persons may call the FSU Cultural Events Box Office at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1-866-TIXX-CES, or visit online at ces.frostburg.edu.

Additional packages include the Arts Getaway Packages, providing accommodations for two at the Best Western Braddock in LaVale, Cumberland Holiday Inn, or Rocky Gap Resort, selected meal options, transportation between the hotel and the FSU campus, a special welcome gift at check-in, and two tickets for preferred seating for the Cultural Events Series performance.

Persons can also add a Dinner Show Package to a ticket purchase, which provides complimentary transportation to and from the FSU campus to any one of five participating restaurants: BJ's at the Gladstone, Gehauf's, Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant, Harrigan's, and the Tombstone Café.

Author Baggott Will Read At Frostburg State

Novelist and poet Julianna Baggott will present a reading at Frostburg State University on Thursday, Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in Atkinson Room 201 of the Lane University Center. The event is free and open to the public.

Baggott's most recent novel, The Madam, based on the life of her grandmother who was raised in a house of prostitution in the '20s and '30s, has just been published by Simon and Schuster. Her first novel, Girl Talk, was published by Simon and Schuster's Pocket Books in February 2001 and later distributed by six publishing houses overseas. Her collection of poems, This Country of Mothers, followed in April 2001 and was published by Southern Illinois University Press. Her second novel, The Miss America Family, was published by Pocket Books in April 2002.

Writer Madison Smartt Bell says of Baggott's work, "Few writers of the 21st century can rival the verve, the energy, and the sheer delight in language of Julianna Baggott." Pulitzer Prize winner Richard Russo adds, "Baggott enjoys living on the knife edge between hilarity and heartbreak."

Baggott received her M.F.A. from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in 1991. The recipient of fellowships from the Delaware Division of Arts, Virginia Center for the Creative Arts, Ragdale Foundation, and Bread Loaf Writers' Conference, she has placed poems and short stories in dozens of literary journals including Poetry, The Southern Review, Chelsea, Cream City Review, and Quarterly West, as well as the acclaimed anthology Best American Poetry 2000. She has also read her work on Boston's WBUR/NPR's "Here and Now" and NPR's "Talk of the Nation."

Baggott lives in Delaware with her husband, poet David G.W. Scott, and their three young children.

Mission Musicians Slated To Perform At Glade Church

Mennonite Mission Network will present a folk/bluegrass concert by Mission Musicians in residence Doug and Jude Krehbiel of "Road Less Traveled" at 7 p.m., Oct. 31, at Glade Mennonite Church.

The Krehbiels, who live in Newton, Kan., play up to a dozen instruments in concert, including mountain dulcimer, dobro, tin whistles, Irish bodhran, and jaw harp. Their music creates a unique blend that incorporates elements of folk, country, bluegrass, and rhythm and blues.

There will be no admission charge, but a love offering will be accepted.

For more information, persons may contact Pastor Chris Weaver at 301-245-4239.

FSU Theatre To Present The Glory of Living

Frostburg State University Theatre will present Rebecca Gilman's The Glory of Living, a Pulitzer prize runner-up, on Nov. 14, 15, 20, 21, and 22 at 8 p.m., and Nov. 15 at 2 p.m. The play will be performed in the F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre in the FSU Performing Arts Center.

The Glory Of Living focuses on 15-year-old Lisa, who tries to escape a miserable life with her prostitute mother by running away with, and eventually marrying, Clint, an ex-con. Through systematic abuse, Clint coerces Lisa into helping him commit crimes of varying magnitude, including procuring "disposable" young girls. According to Michael Billington of The Guardian, "Plays don't come much tougher, or more compassionate, than ... The Glory Of Living."

Gilman has become one of the most prolific and celebrated playwrights in America today. Her several award-winning plays (Spinning Into Butter, Boy Gets Girl, and Blue Serge) are darking and controversial treatments of contemporary social issues like racism, class discrimination, and stalking. "Whatever the subject, Gilman's work is always distinctive, especially through impressively detailed characterizations that force the audience to look beneath the larger problem," stated an FSU spokesperson.

Ticket prices are $5 for students and $10 for non-students. They can be reserved by calling 301-687-7462. This play contains strong language and adult themes. Parental guidance is strongly recommended.

Featured Pianist At Faculty Recital

Professor Korby Moss Sanders will be the featured pianist at the annual Hagerstown Community College faculty recital, set for 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 9, in the college's Kepler Theater.

Sanders has been the applied piano instructor at HCC for 15 years, and has served as rehearsal pianist and performance pianist for the Hagerstown Community College Robinwood Players and Encore Players. She also directs the annual Robinwood Music Festival. Sanders, who owns a private studio where she produces several student recitals, is also a solo performer and professional accompanist. She is a graduate of Williamsport High School and Shepherd College.

The HCC recital, titled "Dueling Pianos," will also include Jonas Dawson, a student of Sanders'.

The program features selections written for one and two pianos including George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and Franz Lizt's "Hungarian Rhapsody," plus several other contemporary and classical favorites. There will be a reception following the recital in the theater lobby. The concert is free and open to the public.

Sanders is the daughter of Jim and Ellen Kesselring of Swanton.

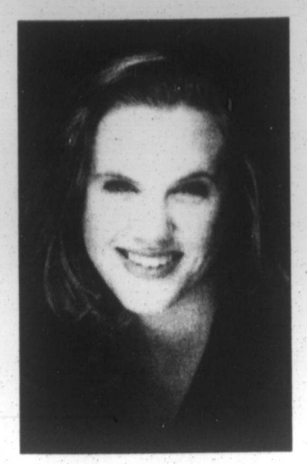
Frostburg State Jazz Ensemble Concert Slated

Frostburg State University's Jazz Ensemble will present a concert Friday, Nov. 7, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Pealer Recital Hall. The concert is free and open to the public.

Directed by Jenny Menna, professor of flute, the program will be contemporary jazz, featuring pieces by John Fedchock, Jeff Jarvis, and Chick Corea. The rhythmic range from swing to Latin to funk exhibits the musical versatility of the band, according to Menna, who added that the concert will also feature faculty guest soloists as well as student soloists.

For more information, persons may contact the Department of Music at 301-687-4109.

Local Student To Perform Lead In WVU Production



Evelyn White, a 1999 graduate of Southern High School and currently a senior acting major at West Virginia University, has been named the female lead in a production of William Saroyan's The Time of Your Life. The play will be performed at the WVU Creative Arts Center November 14-22.

White, daughter of John and Lois White, Oakland, has performed a number of other roles while a student at WVU, including the female leads in The Play About the Baby and The Long Goodbye. She also performed in the WVU Dance Concert 2003.

She also had roles in community theatre productions in Morgantown, including Free Will and Wanton Lust, and Waiting for the Parade, presented at MT Pockets Theatre, where she was awarded membership.

Evelyn also served a seven-month internship at Walt Disney World, Orlando, Fla., where she performed in the entertainment department as several different Disney characters, and in various parades and shows in which she was a dancer.

During her high school years, White had many roles in school plays and Our Town Theatre (Oakland) productions, including Our Town (as Emily), Smoke on the Mountain, The Dining Room, and Talking With.

She was accepted into WVU's highly selective and rigorous studio program as a junior, and has been awarded academic scholarships, as well as the Sarah Tait Theatre Scholarship. A consistent dean's list student, she is currently carrying a grade point average of 3.6. She will graduate in May 2004 with a bachelor of fine arts degree.

First Caring And Sharing Event Deemed Success

The first Garrett County Day of Caring and Sharing held recently was a "huge success," according to Bob Stephens, who helped organize the event.

More than 100 volunteers organized by the Garrett County United Way turned out to celebrate National Make A Difference Day by doing volunteer work at nine different sites around the county. The day began with volunteers arriving at the Mary Browning Senior Center, where a light breakfast was served and volunteers received their assignments.

More than 20 Girl Scouts and their leaders traveled to Salem Children's Trust, where they worked with young residents to improve the horseback riding and hiking trails. "It was really neat to see our girls interact with the children who are at Salem," said leader Elizabeth Huxford.

Jo Ann Harsh from Mountain Glade Adult Day Care marveled at the work that was done. "I'm amazed at what we accomplished today," she said. She added that the completed work included painting a fence, landscaping, and painting lines on the parking lot.

Another crew reported to Habitat for Humanity. Under the direction of Glenn Hardesty, they finished drywall in one house and put vinyl siding on another home in Mountain Lake Park.

Lisa Thayer Welch supervised the drywall crew that consisted mostly of school-age children. "These kids are really great at sanding drywall. It's great that they are getting to learn first hand about United Way and Habitat for Humanity."

Heather Hanline, director of the Dove Center, was overwhelmed with the work that was done. "These people showed up to work. All we thought we would get done today was cutting out and sanding the Silent Witness display. When the crew found out that we had a shed that needed emptied and disposed of, they volunteered to tear it down and take it to the dump."

Big Brothers Big Sisters used the day to complete their adopt-a-highway project. "As a United Way agency we want to give back to the community, and this is one of the ways we do it," said county coordinator Joan Johnson.

At Broadford Park, Webelos Scouts from Pack 70 raked mounds of leaves, while members of PAWS were installing Pet Waste Stations so that people who walk their animals in community parks will be able to clean up after their pets.

At Community Action, volunteers cleaned every light in the building, set up an exercise room in the Mary Browning Senior Center, decorated and made cookies with residents of Rose Terrace Assisted Living Apartments, and worked on the bulk mailing for the United Way campaign.

Volunteers at Christian Crossing in Loch Lynn sorted clothing, painted, built shelves, and even put new cedar siding on the back of the building. Tom Myers picked up lunches for the volunteer construction crew who were still putting up the siding because they did not want to stop until the job was completed. "These volunteers are a credit to the community," said Myers, while noting that the helpers included a crew from C&S Contracting who all gave their time.

Upon returning to the Mary Browning Senior Center, the volunteers ate lunch and viewed a slide show of pictures from the various sites. One of the volunteers, Terry Riley, said, "I can't wait until next year. I had a great time."

Stephens, who helped organize the event, said he was especially pleased. "We were told to expect about 50 volunteers because that's about how many participated in other communities their first year. Not only did our community come through for us, they also completed a lot more work than we had planned. I'm sure that in a few years we will have 400 to 500 volunteers participating in the Day of Caring and Sharing event."

Garrett County's Day of Caring and Sharing was planned to coincide with the National Make a Difference Day. Its purpose is to celebrate the volunteer spirit while also helping community members get a first hand view of United Way affiliate agencies.

To find out more about the Garrett County United Way, persons may check out its web site at garrettunitedway.org.

Poll Reveals That Most Marylanders Support Slots

by Michael Duck
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Both Maryland House Speaker Michael Busch and Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr.'s office claim new poll results justify their divergent views on expanding slots in Maryland. Most Marylanders support slots, and an even larger majority wants the state to keep financial control over slot machine facilities, according to the Gonzales Research and Marketing Strategies survey released Monday.

Busch has argued for state control over slots venues and was instrumental in killing Ehrlich's slots proposals in the last General Assembly session. He wants maximum government control, significant consumer protections, and the most profit possible going to the state.

"I think it strengthens my argument on that part," Busch said. The poll's release two-and-a-half months before Assembly opens Jan. 14 will give him leverage to push for as much state control and profit as possible, he said.

Ehrlich included slot machine approval in his campaign and made gambling profits a cornerstone of his first budget to help pay for education reform. However, his plan would have put much of the earnings into racetrack owners' hands. Track owners, too, would have had significant control over the slot machines they owned.

"This poll doesn't tell anybody anything they didn't know," said Paul Schurick, Ehrlich's communications director. Rather than supporting Busch's arguments, Schurick said, it bolsters Ehrlich's proposals.

Its release just before the session "will help legislators understand what we've known for a long time," Schurick said.

Pollster Patrick Gonzales's October survey showed 56 percent of Marylanders favor slots, essentially unchanged from his August numbers. The earlier poll also found Ehrlich's job approval was 57 percent.

Polls from a year earlier showed less than a majority supporting slots.

The October poll was also the first time Gonzales asked respondents about slots plan details, such as government oversight and the location of slots facilities.

"This is a good roadmap for the Legislature" to craft bill proposals, Gonzales said.

Gonzales surveyed 831 registered Maryland voters by telephone in late October, and the poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points. Just 11 percent of respondents said race tracks should control slots facilities and give a percentage of the profits to the state, while 62 percent said the state should "retain financial control of any slot machine facilities."

Those options mimicked Ehrlich and Busch's positions "in a broad, general sense," Gonzales said.

The poll also addressed the location of slots parlors, with 34 percent of respondents saying slots, if approved, should only be at race tracks. But 43 percent of respondents agreed with Busch's arguments that slots should not go exclusively to race tracks. His poll shows Busch "seems to have a huge majority of the will of the people behind what he's been talking about," Gonzales said.

"It certainly vindicates what he has been saying," agreed Sheila Hixson, House Ways and Means Committee chairwoman.

But Schurick argued the poll's government oversight question was so vaguely worded that it encompassed Ehrlich's plan, too. The governor had proposed close government monitoring of individual slot machines, Schurick said.

"I see that as another endorsement of the Ehrlich plan," Schurick said, referring to the majority of respondents favoring state oversight.

Ehrlich "still believes his proposal from last session is the best deal for the state," said spokesman Henry Fawell, adding that last session's plan – which passed in the Senate before dying in the House – will be the basis for this year's proposal. But Busch said he believes the poll gives him good ammunition for his positions in the next session, and he opposes Ehrlich's plans.

"I think everybody agrees," Busch said, "that last year's bill was not very well thought out."

HOW DO YOU SCORE?

Mortgage rates are fantastically low. To take advantage, check out your credit history before applying for a loan. Your credit or "FICO" score shows how well you manage credit and whether you are a "good risk" for a lender.

The three major credit reporting agencies are: 1) Equifax (equifax.com or 1-800-685-1111), 2) Experian (experian.com or 888-397-3742), and 3) TransUnion (transunion.com or 800-888-4213). Contact one or all, and correct any errors that have been reported. You might also go to: www.myfico.com where for $12.95, you can receive a detailed record of your credit history complete with your "FICO" score.

To improve your score, pay down your balances, but don't just transfer them to a new lower-interest card. Don't open new accounts to build up your credit. Stay away from finance companies that charge high rates and fees. If possible, close all but 3 or 4 credit card accounts.

If you've experienced credit troubles recently, wait twelve months before applying for a mortgage. Then remember once you've applied for a mortgage, hold off on large purchases like appliances and furnishings. Any balance that you owe on such purchases only adds to the debt being reviewed by the lender.

Once you understand your credit score and the ways to improve it, you'll be well on your way to securing a competitive mortgage rate and moving into your new home!

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

Letters

granted the contributions of our spouses in meeting the needs of our families.

In the end, I think that it requires – and this is the point of both letters that I have written – two parents working as a team, appreciating the contributions of each other to their families, and also providing relief and support to the other, in order for a family to be secure, happy, and successful in their endeavors. I know that there are times when I don't appreciate what my wife does for me, as I am sure that there are those stay-at-home parents who don't appreciate what their spouses do for their families. In the end, it is self-centeredness that is, in my opinion, the root cause of 99 percent of the problems that occur within a family. I know that is the case for myself. When I feel overburdened, I need to remember what my wife is going through in order for us to be successful as a family. The family should not be about one person, but about the family as a whole; not that everyone doesn't need a break occasionally – we all do.

Now, what about those single parents who never get a break? I feel very, very sorry and have an enormous amount of respect for single parents. They have to juggle job, children, family life, and even, if they find the time, a date occasionally. The odds are very much stacked against them. Not to say they can't be, and aren't, successful. Indeed, many are.

Also, what about the two-parent families where both parents work? This is the norm today, and I believe is the number one reason why marriages fail, and our children have so many problems. It is very, very difficult for a married couple with young children to get any time together alone. When both parents work, it becomes that much more difficult to have any kind of marital relationship, while juggling job, children, family life, etc.

I honestly can't even begin to comprehend what it would be like to take care of our two young babies without my wife to help and support me. In closing, I want to thank my wife for her love and support, and also thank my father, as both have sacrificed in order to take care of their families in the very best manner that they could. I owe each of them a debt of gratitude that I can never repay.

Wolf Leads Husky Pack To 16-7 Win Over Petersburg

When you have a weapon like the area's leading ball carrier you'd better put him to work, and Northern High School did just that Friday night as the Huskies' offensive line unleashed Michael Wolf for 256 yards on the ground in a 16-7 win over visiting Petersburg. The halfback worked the intricate blocking schemes of NHS's patented wishbone option offense to roll his season tally up to 1,211 yards, making for a devastating 151-yard per game average.

"The blocking was great and our execution was almost perfect," commented NHS head coach Phil Carr after the victory, which raised his troops' record to 3-5. "Jeff Yommer at center, Chad Carr and Corey Yoder at the guard positions, Danny Ellis and Ben Wagner at the tackles, and Steve Snyder and Andrew Frantz at the blocking tight end spots all did exactly what they needed to do. Halfback Corey Fike and fullback Tyler Warn also complement Michael's work real well with fine blocking and some excellent running of their own.

"You give Michael a little seam and he'll take full advantage of it," Carr said of his junior stalwart. "What makes him stand out is that he gets through the hole first, then makes his moves; he doesn't try to 'dance' in the hole. That quickness is especially good for our offensive linemen, who don't have to hold their blocks as long as they might have to otherwise. When you are outsized like our guys are, that helps keep us fresh — and maintain our intensity — as the game wears on."

Northern's intensity "after a great week of practice," Carr noted, helped the Huskies control the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball. NHS's offense rushed for a total of 358 yards on 59 carries, while the Husky defensive unit held the visiting Vikings to just 169 yards in total offense. Petersburg's ground game was limited to just one yard in the first quarter, 25 in the second quarter, and three yards over the entire second half. "I thought we really got after them and stuffed them pretty good," Carr remarked.

The Huskies hit the ground running as the game opened, and on Wolf's first carry of the contest he reeled off a 50-yard gain. Northern failed to capitalize on the early opportunity, however, when a third down reverse play was stopped for a loss by a blitzing Petersburg linebacker. Then, on fourth-and-six from the Vikes' 13-yard line, a pass completion came up short and the ball was turned over to Petersburg.

NHS's "grave-digger" defense held the Vikings to a three-and-out, and Northern's offense took over after the punt to mount a 42-yard downfield march that made it to the Petersburg eight-yard line. Another scoring opportunity fell short, however, when a 25-yard Husky field goal attempt sailed wide left.

Another stonewalling effort by the NHS defense put the Husky offense right back to work, but a slant pass to an open receiver bounced off his pads and the Vikings took over on the Northern 43-yard line. On third-and-long from the 30, the Petersburg quarterback tossed a pass that went through a defender's hands and into range for a Vike receiver to make a bobbling one-handed catch that put the ball on the two-yard line. A quarterback sneak into the end zone gave the Vikings the early lead, as the successful point-after kick made the score 7-0.

Undaunted, the Northern offense responded on the ensuing possession to embark on a nine-play, 73-yard scoring drive. The march culminated with just a minute to play in the second half, when NHS quarterback Robert Stark called a sneak of his own and plunged in from one yard out. A successful conversion run by Wolf gave the Huskies an 8-7 advantage.

The half's excitement didn't end there, however, as NHS's defense forced a Petersburg punt with scant seconds on the clock. Husky returner Eric Johnson fielded the kick and sped off 37 yards down the sideline to give NHS a first down at the Viking 10-yard line, but a pass attempt was intercepted in the end zone to close out the stanza.

Northern put another touchdown on the board in the third quarter on a 30-yard touchdown run by Wolf, who followed with a two-point run to give NHS its final 16-7 advantage.

The Huskies had the ball in the red zone two other times during the second half and came away without a score on both occasions. One drive was stymied by a holding penalty, and the other ended with a Northern fumble.

"We had the ball inside the 25 five times without scoring over the course of the game, but we just kept shooting ourselves in the foot," said Carr.

"It was our best defensive game of the year, however. Coach Ewing worked the guys hard in practice, and we gave them a challenge they were able to rise and meet. Dustin Wiland and Steve Snyder at the defensive end positions did an especially good job of pressuring the Petersburg quarterback.

"If we maintain our intensity for tomorrow night's game against Westmar, and win out the rest of the season, we have a good chance at the playoffs," observed Carr. "The Wildcats are 3-5, just like us, but they're going to be confident after pulling an upset over Turkeyfoot last week. Westmar is especially good at capitalizing on mistakes, so we can't make any."

Wildcats to watch for include junior quarterback Russell Miller (6-3, 195), a versatile passer who also has a strong running style. One of his favorite targets is senior tight end Dan Duncan (6-0, 175), a speedster with exceptional hands. Westmar's 6-2 blitzing defense is anchored by Miller at safety and lineman Johnny Shingler (5-9, 200).

The homefield contest is set to begin at 7 p.m. tomorrow in Accident. The Hus-

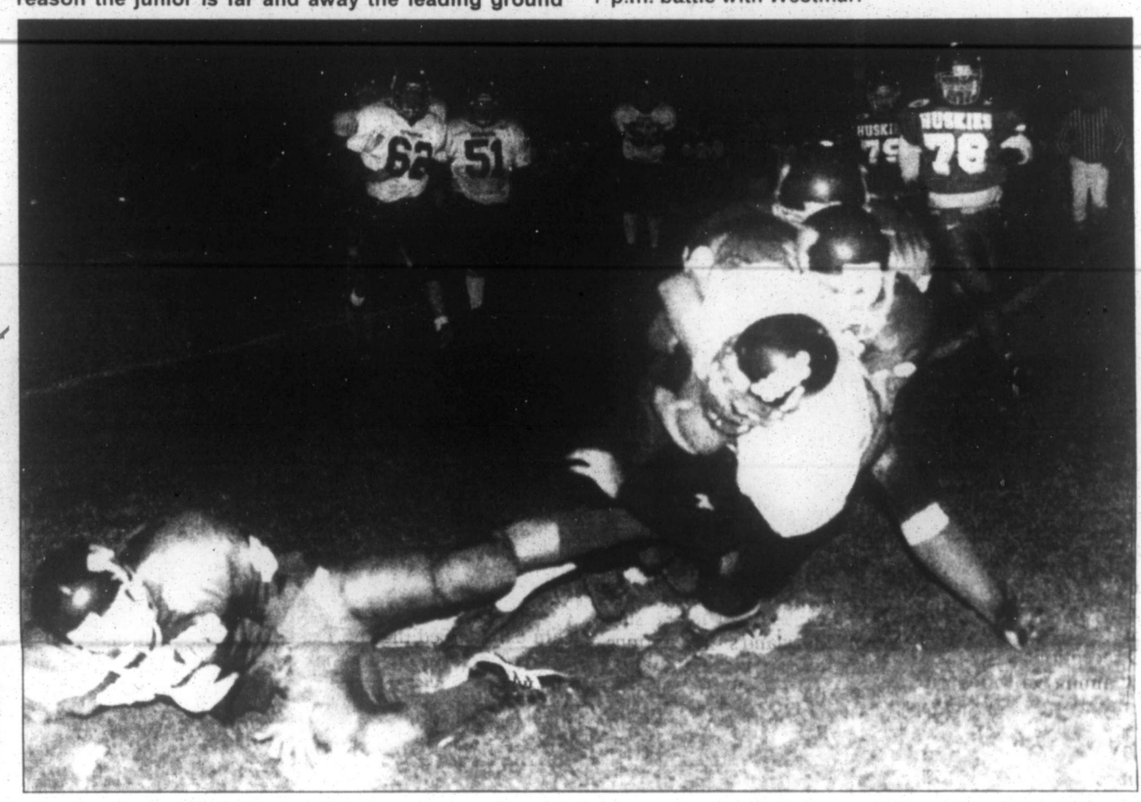
HUSKIES MOVE THE CHAINS — A small but hugely important gain during the Northern High Huskies' 16-7 win over Petersburg Friday night is shown above as halfback Michael Wolf (#24) surges ahead to pick up a Husky first down on fourth-and-inches deep within Viking territory. Note the savvy thinking of extending the ball across the line of scrimmage, another reason the junior is far and away the leading ground gainer in the area with a 151-yard per game average. Northern's defense pummeled the Vikings as it held the visitors to less than half the NHS offensive output, and the photo below shows a trio of Husky defenders hounding a Petersburg ballcarrier to the ground. Northern's second contest in its three-game season-ending homestand will take place tomorrow night in a 7 p.m. battle with Westmar.



Steelers' Div. II Squad Falls To Ridgeley Rams

The Northern Steelers came within two points of gaining a berth in the upcoming Cumberland Area Youth Football League when it dropped a nail-biting semi-final contest to the Ridgeley Rams by a slim 20-18 margin Saturday at Northern High School. The Steelers' excellent season ends at an 8-2 overall mark.

Ridgeley got on the board first with a 65-yard first-quarter touchdown run, but Northern fired back when Randy Wiley took off on a 68-yard scoring scamper of his own. With the score knotted at 6-all in the second quarter, Ridgeley broke the ice on a 65-yard touchdown pass and a successful point-after conversion kick.

The Steelers responded with two touchdowns, one on a 40-yard carry by Wiley and the other a 36-yard scoring strike that Wiley tossed to Nick Graham. The Northern flurry put the hosts up 18-14 at the half.

The Steeler lead held until the fourth quarter, when the Rams' Shawn Gillespie, who tallied a game-high195 yards on 11 carries, broke free for a backbreaking 85-yard touchdown run.

In addition to Wiley and Graham's offensive play, the Northern coaches noted the defensive effort of Ryan Evans, who tallied eight tackles.

Public Meetings On Deer Hunting Regs Scheduled

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Wildlife and Heritage Service will hold two public meetings to discuss proposed changes in deer-hunting regulations for Region A, which includes Garrett and Allegany counties and western Washington County. Any changes would become effective in the 2004-2005 hunting seasons.

Currently, hunters in Region A may take two antlered deer in each season (that is, in the bow, firearms, and muzzleloader seasons). DNR is also considering new opportunities for hunters to take antlerless deer. Deer project leader Doug Hotton said, "DNR's desired outcomes for Region A are a deer population in balance with the habitat and a measurable increase of antlered deer in the older age classes."

After a short presentation on deer management in Region A, DNR will welcome public comments on deer-management options and will record all suggestions. No decisions will be made at the meetings. DNR will present any changes to the public during the regulations review scheduled for the spring of 2004.

The first meeting will be held Nov. 4 at Frostburg State University in Dunkle Hall, Room 218. Dunkle Hall is off University Drive, next to the fine arts building. The second meeting will be held Nov. 5 at Hancock Middle-Senior High School along Route 144 in Hancock. Both meetings will begin at 7 p.m. and conclude no later than 9 p.m.

Injury-Afflicted Rams Blanked 34-0 By Falcons

A perfectly healthy Southern High School football team would have had its work cut out for it in order to be competitive against the likes of visiting Frankfort High School last Friday night; however, with the Rams' leading rusher and first-team quarterback both on the bench with injuries, coupled with the loss of another offensive and defensive standout early in the game, the already tough odds became that much worse.

The struggling Rams fell to the 7-1 Falcons, 34-0, which dropped their record to 1-7.

Frankfort, which is a heavy favorite to advance to the West Virginia AA finals this season, got three first-half touchdown passes from Chris Kenney, all to receiver Josh James.

Kenney also connected with James for a two-point conversion following the second touchdown.

The Kenney-James connection struck first with just 47 seconds left in the first quarter. The kick for the conversion failed, and the Falcons led 6-0.

Kenny threw TD passes to James on 64- and five-yard plays in the second quarter, at the 4:51 and 0:29 marks, respectively. The two-point conversion pass and a successful conversion kick by Brian Shipway put Frankfort on top 21-0 at halftime.

Sam Castillo accounted for all but one of the Falcons' 13 second-half points, as he scored a touchdown on a 38-yard run with 3:34 left in the third quarter, and recorded another one on a 15-yard carry with 2:24 to play in the game. Shipway was successful on the conversion kick for the third-quarter score.

Kenney completed five of eight passes for the evening and finished with 131 yards through the air. James had 115 yards on his three TD receptions.

Gaining 94 yards on 27 carries for the Rams was Bret DeWitt.

The Southern defensive unit was again led by Chris Bennett, who recorded 10 tackles, and Shane Riley with five. The Falcons were paced defensively by Marcus Haines, Castillo, and Shipway with 14, 11, and nine tackles, respectively.

Missing from the Rams' lineup at the start of the contest was lead running back Andrew VanBogelen, who is still nursing a knee injury, and junior quarterback Cory Bosley, who sustained a broken hand in a practice session last week.

Back for the start of the game, but quickly lost for the season, was running back/defensive back Chad Everd, who suffered a broken leg.

Brad Reese filled the quarterback position.

"In spite of the score and the stats, we were actually pretty pleased with how we played overall, especially considering all of the obstacles that were facing us," said Ram coach Fred Gregg. "When we watched the game films, we saw that if we had been able to eliminate even a few of their big plays, the score would have been much closer.

"But Frankfort is a team that is very good at capitalizing on your mistakes. If you make one, they make you pay dearly for it, and we did.

"With Andrew and Cory still out, things were really stacked against us offensively, and then when Chad went down again it put a big hole in our defense," he continued. "I felt so bad for Chad. He lives and breathes football, and has had such hard luck this year. We are definitely a different, better defense when he's in there. I'm just glad he's a junior and will get another shot next year."

As if things couldn't get any more challenging for the Rams this week, they are going to, as they now have to host Fort Hill, a team that was undefeated and ranked first in the state of Maryland's 2A ratings, and is now third following a loss to powerhouse Martinsburg last week.

"Fort Hill is without question the best team on our schedule this year," Gregg said, "and last week's loss to Martinsburg hasn't changed my opinion about that at all."

The Sentinels' primarily wing-T, occasionally I-formation, offense is led by junior running back Andre Pope (6-0, 203) and back Randy Rice (5-7, 175).

"These guys are excellent runners," Gregg said. "They have both speed and strength.

"Fort Hill is primarily a running team, but they like to throw the ball when you least expect it, and they do it well."

Fort Hill's 6-2, 5-3 defensive unit is anchored by junior linebacker Josh Root (6-2, 228).

"This young man plays linebacker the way it is supposed to be played," Gregg said. "He is just outstanding."

Gregg and his staff will turn to Southern's junior varsity quarterback this week, sophomore Jason Wakefield (5-11, 149), to start at the QB position on varsity.

"Jason couldn't play for us last week because he had played in a jayvee game earlier in the week," Gregg said. "He has done a nice job this year. He spent a lot of time and worked very hard on his skills this past summer.

"Fortunately, our jayvee offense runs a lot of the same plays as our varsity," he said. "The biggest challenge for Jason this week will be whether or not he can do everything a lot faster, which is the biggest difference between jayvee and varsity. And, of course, against a team like Fort Hill, he's going to have to work even faster still.

"There is no doubt he's going to make mistakes, but it will also give him some valuable experience."

When asked if he thinks Fort Hill will play even harder this week because of their loss last week, Gregg said, "I really don't think there's any great hope that they will play flat. They knew they were in for a tough time against Martinsburg last week. I expect they will try hard to get back in synch and play well this week, because next on their schedule is Allegany."

Gregg concluded, "We know that being shorthanded the way we are right now makes a difficult job even more difficult. But we still plan to play as hard as we can and try to improve what we do."

Friday will be Senior Night at Southern, and parents of all senior players, cheerleaders, and band members, along with their seniors, will be recognized in pre-game ceremonies, which will begin at approximately 6:40. The kickoff is set for 7 p.m.

Maddawgs Crown Perfect Season With Superbowl Win Over Keyser

The Northern Maddawgs team exemplified the "never say die" philosophy to the hilt when they took their first Pee Wee Football League Superbowl title Sunday by capping an undefeated campaign with a thrilling come-from-behind 20-19 win over Keyser. The Maddawgs also notched their first perfect season with an 11-0 mark, while Keyser's loss left the Mini-Tornadoes at 10-1.

Northern turned in a balanced rushing attack Sunday before an enthusiastic crowd at Greenway Stadium behind some fine blocking, as Kameron Kamp rolled up 95 yards on seven carries, Patrick Beckman recorded 72 yards on 10 rushes, and Cody Rodeheaver tallied 71 yards on seven carriers. No run, however, proved bigger than Beckman's quarterback keeper that put Northern ahead for good with 4:25 remaining in the contest. With the ball on the Maddawgs' own 47-yard line, Northern ran a power sweep that sent three running backs, Alex Baker, Dylan Day, and Josh Duckworth, out to the left to mow a path for Beckman, who was able to turn the corner and speed off 53 yards for a touchdown that made the score 20-19. After Northern's defense held strong, the 'Dawgs had the crown in hand.

The game began with the B teams on the field for the first quarter. Northern's defense bent but didn't break at the outset, and stifled an impressive opening drive by Keyser with a Josh Mason interception at the Maddawgs' own 14-yard line. Northern capitalized on the turnover when, on just its second play from scrimmage, Kamp cleared the way with a crushing block that enabled Rodeheaver to sweep around the corner of the line and cut loose for a 65-yard touchdown carry. In a contest where every point turned out to count, the Maddawgs converted the point-after when Josh Mason lobbed a short pass to Patrick Sines, who split two defenders to find the end zone.

The Mini-Tornadoes showed they still had a dog in the fight when they came back with another grinding drive, but Northern's defense held on a fourth-down play in the red zone, and the Maddawgs' offense took over on the 18-yard line.

It wasn't long before Northern offensive linemen Toby Grove and Seth Layton laid out a pair of Keyser defenders on the left side of the line, and Kamp was able to scoot through the hole, break a sandwich tackle attempt by two Mini-Tornado linebackers, and blow by the secondary for a 62-yard scoring run. Matt Thomas bulldozed in for the extra point run, giving Northern up 14-0.

A defensive lockdown ensued in the second quarter, as each offense was held scoreless. The Maddawgs let a big opportunity slip away in the stanza when a touchdown was called back on a holding penalty, and Northern had to be content with its 14-point lead as the combatants headed for the locker room at the intermission.

The B team battle of the third quarter began as a drizzling rain began to pour, and the slippery pigskin squirted out of a Maddawg's hands on the first play from scrimmage. Keyser recovered the ball on the 23-yard line, and capitalized with a scoring drive that ended with running back Jamison Jones diving into the end zone from one yard out. Northern's defense held on what turned out to be a crucial point-after rushing attempt, leaving the score at 14-6.

The Maddawgs' offense then took over, but Keyser's defense held Northern on a third and short and the Garrett squad was forced to punt the ball away. The Mini-Tornadoes then mounted a downfield march that drove Northern backward to the one-yard line. On a huge fourth-and-goal off-tackle play from the one, Maddawg defensive guard Zack Meyers turned in the day's defensive highlight by crushing the Keyser ball carrier, allowing the Maddawgs to dodge what could have been a fatal bullet.

Northern's B offense stumbled on its subsequent possession, and after three-and-out the Maddawgs were forced to punt the ball away, giving Keyser excellent field position. Jones broke a run to the outside for 23 yards and a touchdown score, and a quarterback dive by Keyser's Ryan Lucas pulled the Mini-Tornadoes to within one point, 14-13.

Northern's offense gambled on its subsequent possession, but a busted play on fourth-and-four let a Keyser tackler corral a Maddawg in the backfield. Keyser took over deep in Northern territory and embarked on a drive that culminated in a one-yard touchdown run by Lucas. A failed point-after rushing attempt left Northern down by a 19-14 margin.

The A teams battled through a defensive struggle in the fourth quarter, a stalemate not broken until Beckman's game-winning keeper late in the stanza. Northern's defense held sway the rest of the way, and Maddawg middle linebacker Alex Baker sealed the win with an interception with eight seconds remaining, setting off a well-earned celebration.

While admitting that it was hard to single out any individuals in such a "fantastic team effort," Northern coach Steve Vincent noted the outstanding play of B team players Meyers (who tallied 16 total tackles), Beckman, Rodeheaver, Kamp, Sines, Robert Hill, Josh Bittinger, and Mason. Kudos also went to A team members Baker, Teddy Linton, Trevor Tombley, Dylan Miller, and Josh Duckworth.

MAKING SAVES IN GOAL is something that Alasha Rush has done extremely well over the past several seasons for the Southern High School varsity girls' soccer team, and she is pictured above demonstrating that skill against visiting Boonsboro Tuesday evening. Unfortunately, it would be her and many of her senior teammates' last match of their high school careers, as the Rams were upset by the Warriors, 1-0, in a quarterfinal match of the Class 1A West Region playoffs. The defeat left the Rams with an overall record of 12-3. Also in the photo above are Southern's Laura Bonser, left, and Erin Rhodes, far right. Southern, Northern Girls Both Upset 1-0 In Playoffs

The 2003 soccer season came to an abrupt and unexpected conclusion for the members of the Southern and Northern high school girls' varsities Tuesday evening when the favored Rams were handed a 1-0 overtime upset by visiting Boonsboro and the Huskies lost in similar fashion, and by the same score, to visiting Clear Spring in Class 1A West Region quarterfinal action.

The Rams controlled most of the match against Boonsboro and finished with a 15-7 advantage in shots on goal, with several Southern shots just missing their target. They also had a 7-3 advantage in corner kicks.

After 80 minutes of scoreless play, the contest went into the 10-minute, sudden-death overtime, and with 6:30 left in that period, Boonsboro's Sarah Keyser took a shot on goal from about 20 yards out. The ball deflected off a teammate, giving Ram keeper Alasha Rush no chance to make a save.

It was only the seventh win in 15 starts for the Warriors, who advance to the regional semi-finals and will host the winner of the Smithsburg/Westmar match on Friday.

Rush, who concluded an outstanding career in goal for the Rams, had six saves.

Southern, which was seeded third in the playoffs, ended the season with an overall record of 12-3.

Meanwhile, in the northern end of the county, it was another unusual score that resulted in the 1-0 upset of the Northern girls.

It was at the 7:58 mark of the first half that Tawnya Blair scored the match's only goal after the ball bounced away from Northern keeper Sarah Masters just after she made a save at the end of the penalty box. Clear Spring's Lindsey Keyton was credited with an assist.

As the Southern Rams did against Boonsboro, the Huskies out-played and outshot the Blazers by a 17-7 margin, but they just couldn't put the ball into the net. Clear Spring finished with a 5-2 lead in corner kicks.

Masters finished with three saves, while Amy Mills turned away nine of the Huskies' shots in goal for Clear Spring.

"My girls played a heck of a game," Coach Lynn Lais said. "But all year we've had a problem getting the ball into the net, even when we dominate play.

"But I also have to give Clear Spring credit," he said. "They had some nice speed out front that we weren't well prepared for."

Lais noted the outstanding midfield play of Brittany Milbourne and Megan Shaffer, and the defensive efforts of Laura Costa.

The Huskies were seeded fourth in the West Region playoffs and finished the campaign with an overall record of 8-7. It was the sixth win for the Blazers, against eight losses and one tie.

Northern Boys Boot Southern Out Of Playoffs With 3-1 Win

A two-goal, one-assist performance by Chris Speicher led the Northern High School varsity boys' soccer team to a 3-1 Class 1A West Region playoff victory over visiting Southern High Tuesday evening, effectively ending the season for the Rams and guaranteeing the Huskies another shot at the undefeated Beall Mountaineers.

The win was the 11th of the season for Coach Tom Ables' Huskies against only three defeats and one tie. Two of those defeats were at the feet of the 15-0 Mountaineers, with the last one being a 1-0 squeaker just last week in the regular-season finale.

Speicher gave the Huskies the lead for good against the Southern Rams on Tuesday when he scored off an assist by Preston Sisler at the 34:40 mark of the first half.

Scott Pusateri made it 2-0 at about the 9:00 mark when he scored off a feed by Speicher.

The Rams' Nick Perry cut Northern's lead in half about two minutes later when he connected on a penalty kick, and the score remained 2-1 until the second half.

Speicher's second goal, and the only score of the second half, came with about 25 minutes remaining in the match. Getting an assist on the score was Aaron Rawe.

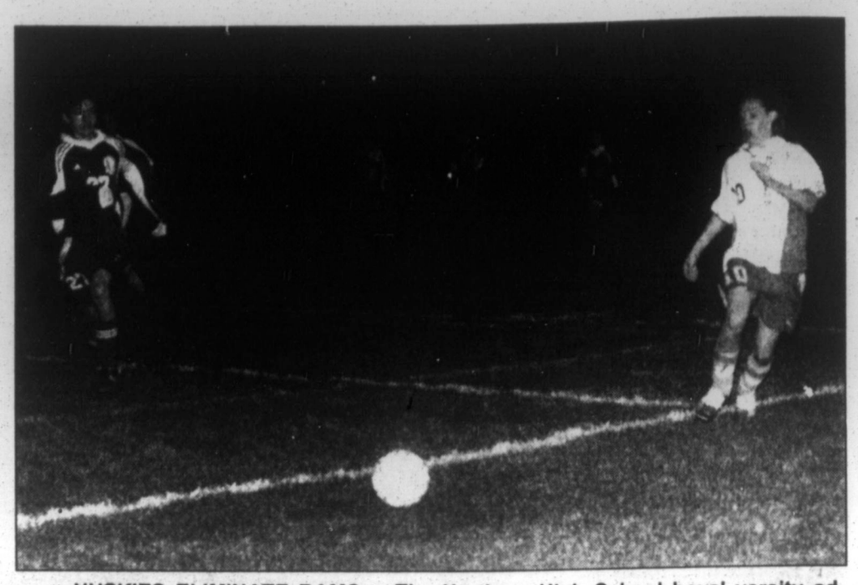
The Huskies finished with a 23-11 advantage in shots and led in corner kicks, 4-0.

Northern keeper Chris Fickes stopped seven of Southern's shots, while Ram keeper Michael Edwards turned away 11 attempts.

The loss dropped the Rams' record to 2-12.

"It's not easy to defeat the same team three times in one season," Coach Ables said, "and Southern played a good game with a lot of emotion. But we are happy to get the win and have the opportunity to meet Beall again."

Northern will face Beall in a region semifinal match this evening on the Mountaineers' field. The kickoff is set for 7 p.m.



HUSKIES ELIMINATE RAMS — The Northern High School boys' varsity advanced to the Class 1A West Region semifinals this week by disposing of visiting Southern, 3-1, Tuesday evening in a quarterfinal clash. Leading the Huskies in that effort offensively was Chris Speicher, pictured above right, who finished with a pair of goals and one assist. Also racing to the ball in the photo is Southern's Drew Betz. Below, taking aim at the ball is Southern Ram Logan Craig. MSA Youth Soccer Season Ends With Pair Of Shootouts

The 2003 Mountaintop Soccer Association youth soccer season came to an exciting end for both the under-15 and under-12 divisions this past weekend, as both championship matches had to be determined by shootouts.

In the final under-15 match, played Saturday at the Loch Lynn fields, the Cornerstone Family Practice Spirit pulled off a major (2)-1 upset of the previously unbeaten and defending champion Deep Creek Pharmacy Rockers.

Zach Brosnihan put the Rockers on top 1-0 about midway through the first half with an unassisted goal.

Cornerstone's Jennifer Cosner scored late in the first half to knot the score at 1-1.

The second half of action produced no more goals by either side, nor did two 10-minute overtime periods, resulting in a shootout. It took all 10 shots, five by each side, to determine a winner.

Sara Voekel, the first shooter for the Rockers, was successful in her attempt, and Morgan Anderson then tied the shootout by making good on her attempt. The shootout remained tied at 1-1 until the 10th and final shot, which was taken and made by Cornerstone's Amanda VanBogelen, giving Spirit the victory and the league title.

The Spirit, coached by Sotiere Savopoulos and assistant Charlie Harvey, had to play without one of their top midfielders, Mike Rosecky, who was out of town.

The Rockers, coached by Lisa Sisler, finished with far more shots on goal, and led in corner kicks.

Cornerstone had to go into double overtime against Diversified Contractors in a semi-final match in order to get a spot in the title match. The score was tied 1-1 after regulation, with Juliana Sheets scoring for Spirit and Cooper Thomas scoring for the Blast. Recording the sudden-death winning goal for Spirit in the second OT period was Lauren Neville.

In Sunday's under-12 title match, the Fraternal Order of Police Galaxy defeated the Red Rock Enterprises Fusion, also in a shootout, (3)-2.

After the regulation clock expired, the teams were knotted at 2-2, and were likewise tied after two 10-minute overtime periods.

Frankie Moravetz scored both goals during regulation time for the Galaxy, and also had one goal in the shootout.

Scoring in regulation for the Fusion were Kaitlynn Fratz and Will Larson. Fratz also scored one of two shootout goals.

Three Galaxy players were successful on their shootout attempts — Moravetz, Tyler Shunk, and Alex Daniels — while two Fusion team members connected — Fratz and Michael Frantz.

Menker Named Region XX's Coach Of Year

Mel Menker, a former assistant soccer coach at Southern High School and currently first-year coach of the Potomac State College men's team, has been named the 2003 Region XX Coach of the Year by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Menker's selection was based upon the dramatic improvement of the PSC team and program over the past year. The regional coaches acknowledged the level of play of the team and the fact that the Catamounts were a highly competitive team in all of their matches this season, even against nationally ranked opponents.

The 2002 Catamounts scored 15 goals in 13 matches while giving up a total of 46 to their opponents. The 2003 team, which finished with a 6-6-1 regular-season record, scored 39 goals while allowing 28.

Potomac State also played four nationally ranked teams and came away with one win, one tie, and two losses, with two of the games going into overtime and all four ending with just a one-goal differential.

"The collective work of the team is what resulted in our success this year," Menker said. "Every player gave 100% every match, which enabled us to be competitive every match day."

Menker, who is the pastor of the Oak Park Church of the Brethren and a resident of Oakland, has been involved with the sport of soccer for about two decades, as a coach and a referee. He and his wife Cathy were the founders of the Garrett County Arsenal Football program, which provided year-round playing opportunities for local youth. He was also actively involved in the Mountaintop Soccer Association. He was named the Maryland State Youth Soccer Association Boys' Coach of the Year in 1998 while he was an assistant to Tom Powers at Southern High School.

Cats Fall to Catonsville

The Potomac State men wrapped up their regular season with a 3-2 double-overtime loss to Catonsville Community College last Friday.

After the Cardinals scored in the first half and held a 1-0 lead at intermission, PSC tied the score with a goal by Kwadwo Duah two minutes into the second half.

The Cats took a 2-1 lead six minutes later with a goal by Scott Kallner.

With just 90 seconds left in regulation, Catonsville tied the score at 2-2 with a penalty kick. After a scoreless first OT period, the Cardinals scored with less than two minutes left in the second overtime to record the sudden-death victory.

Former Northern High Husky Shawn Fike saw action in the match. PSC led in shots, 18-17, and corner kicks were even at four each.

Southern graduates Sean Buckle, Ben Friend, and Chris Menker are also members of the PSC team.

The Catamounts are seeded third in the JUCO Region XX tournament. They will host Harford CC in a 1 p.m. match this Saturday at Stayman Field in Keyser.

RUNNIN' RAMS READY FOR REGIONALS — The Southern High School cross country teams will be among the favorites at the Class 1A West Region Championships, which will be hosted this Friday by Clear Spring High School. The SHS girls' team recently captured the Western Maryland Interscholastic League title, while the Southern boys' squad finished as the runner-up in that event. JAYVEE RAM NETTERS DO IT AGAIN — With last night's season-finale win over Allegany, the Southern High School junior varsity volleyball program recorded a stellar 13-1 campaign for the second year in a row, boding a bright future for Ram varsity play. Pictured in the front row are, from the left, Adrienne Yoder, Sarah Stephens, and Jade Ream. In the middle row are Natalie Rohrbaugh, Randi Bennett, Jenna Wagner, Amberly Lewis, and Sara Cavalier. In the back row are Sarah Rexroad, Amber Plank, Danielle Daniels, and Elizabeth Ray. The junior varsity program at Southern has drawn on a rich feeder program in place at the middle school level. "We've played some very competitive volleyball in the past, and our past two seasons have been especially successful," commented SHS jayvee coach Helen Stephens, "and it looks like we have several more excellent seasons ahead of us at the junior varsity level."

SHS JV Netters Roll Up Second 13-1 Campaign

The Southern High School junior varsity volleyball team concluded its second consecutive 13-1 season with last night's two-game sweep over Allegany in the campaign finale. Earlier in the week the jayvee Rams swept past Musselman into the championship contest of the Fort Hill JV Tournament, but were downed in the final round 2-1 by a Hedgesville jayvee squad composed of 10th and 11th graders.

A total of 10 teams took part in the tourney along with SHS, Musselman, and Hedgesville. Rounding out the field were host Fort Hill, Hampshire; Allegany, Keyser, St. Maria Goretti, and Northern. Results of the Huskies' matches were not available.

Southern downed Musselman in a hard-fought 25-18, 25-22 match to advance to meet Hedgesville, which had recorded a 25-21, 25-4 victory over Frankfort to reach the finals. SHS's Sarah Stephens and Danielle Daniels led the way with nine service points apiece, while Daniels added one ace. Stephens and Sarah Rexroad recorded two kills apiece, and Natalie Rohrbaugh handed out three assists.

The Rams took the first match over Hedgesville, 25-18, but dropped the next two 25-6, 15-7. For Southern, Randi Bennett netted eight points and two assists, Danielle Daniels recorded seven points and three assists, and Sarah Stephens contributed four kills. Stephens was named to the All-Tournament Team.

SHS rebounded for last night's campaign closer against visiting Allegany to take a 25-14, 25-7 sweep. Stephens paced the Rams with 10 service points, one ace, and four kills, and Daniels tallied eight service points with two aces. Adrienne Yoder dished out 3 assists.

Last year's 13-1 mark was the best ever for a Southern jayvee unit. "This has been another exceptional year for the girls," said SHS JV coach Helen Stephens. "I'm very proud of them. They played all year through with passion, which is what we like to see."

Lakers Drop Season Finale To Trojans; Region Tourney Ahead

The Garrett College volleyball team concluded its regular season this week with a 3-1 loss to host Allegany College of Maryland Tuesday night. The Lakers carry a 10-17 mark into the Region XX Tournament, which will take place this weekend in Hagerstown.

After dropping the first two matches to the Trojans by 30-16, 30-14 margins, Garrett rebounded to take the third outing 30-26. Allegany clinched the match in game four with a 30-24 victory, giving the Trojans a 21-4 mark for the year.

For the Lakers, Autumn Beavers had a personal season-high 17 kills, and was 29-for-31 in attempts. Heather Glotflety recorded seven kills, and Tiffany McFarland netted four aces and was 21-for-25 from the service line. Marlena Raines and Erin Frantz contributed two and one aces, respectively, while Raines dished out 28 assists and Frantz went 8-for-11 on serves. Amanda Frantz had two solo blocks and 16 digs, McFarland had three solo blocks, and Brooke Alkire and Erin Frantz had eight and seven digs, respectively.

Garrett is seeded seventh in the eight-team Region XX event, which will be played this weekend at Hagerstown Community College. The Lakers open Saturday with an 11 a.m. match against sixth seed Potomac State College. The day's matches open at 10 a.m., and conclude with a 3 p.m. round. Sunday's semifinals get under way at noon, and the championship contest is slated for 2 p.m.

The winner of the Region Tourney will earn a berth in the Division II National Tournament at Owens Community College in Toledo, Ohio.

Town Hall

KITZMILLER

Kitzmiller residents are reminded that the town's annual fall cleanup will be held Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 3 and 4. Yard waste and other large items will be collected and taken to the Garrett County Landfill. For more information, persons may call Town Hall at 301-453-3449.

FRIENDSVILLE

The mayor and town council met on Oct. 23. The following business was conducted:

•An engineering study will be conducted by the county public utilities department next spring in order to address the problem of surface water run-off in the "McCullough-town" area of Second Avenue.

•The town's annual fall clean up day on Oct. 18 was very successful.

•The refurbished leaf collection vacuum machine is being used by the town to collect leaves. A more detailed schedule of collection times will be set at the next council meeting.

•The first collection day for local curbside recycling is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 7, starting at 8 a.m. The town workers and local volunteers will collect clear, green and brown glass containers, dry newsprint, and aluminum cans. These items are to be separated and placed curbside for collection. If there is a lot of participation in this program, the collections may be increased to twice a month in the future. More information will follow.

•The county roads department has finished the paving work on Water Street.

•The charter amendment to allow enforcement of local code violations as municipal infractions was unanimously approved, and the first reading was conducted.

The next council meeting will be held on Monday, Nov. 3 at 7 p.m.

The town of Friendsville is joining other communities in the county in a recycling program. Beginning with the first Friday in November, on a monthly basis, the town will collect dry newspapers, clear, green, and brown glass containers, and aluminum cans.

Citizens are asked to separate recyclables and place them on the curb by 8 a.m. Newspapers can be placed flat in plastic or paper grocery bags, all colors of glass in a bag, and aluminum cans in another bag.

Being "waste wise" means citizens are making environmentally responsible decisions. Landfills are reaching capacity, and it is very expensive to develop new landfills, noted a town spokesperson.

Local residents are encouraged to take the time to participate. By adding this community's small amount of recyclables with those of others, the town's residents will make a positive impact on the environment.

If enough participation is achieved, the curbside recycling program may be expanded to two days per month.

OAKLAND

The next mayor and town council meeting will be held Monday, Nov. 3, in the Oakland Town Hall.

•The proposed agenda will be: Peter Brown with the cable company at 7:05; Stan Mopsik and a discussion regarding a proposed Outdoor Art Ordinance at 7:30; plus the monthly financial report for October; the police dog issue; RFP for Second Street property; contract modification for Mt. View Engineering; charter changes in the section dealing with the town election; a quote from Mt. Top Paving regarding the Water Plant Road; the recycling issue; and committee reports.

ACCIDENT

•Newspaper pick-up for recycling in the town of Accident will be on Wednesday, Nov. 5, instead of Thursday because of a scheduling conflict. Persons are asked to remove all advertisements, and have the papers along the curb by 9 a.m.

•Trick-or-treating in the town of Accident will be Friday, Oct. 31, from 6 to 7 p.m. Residents are asked to turn their porch lights on if they wish to participate.

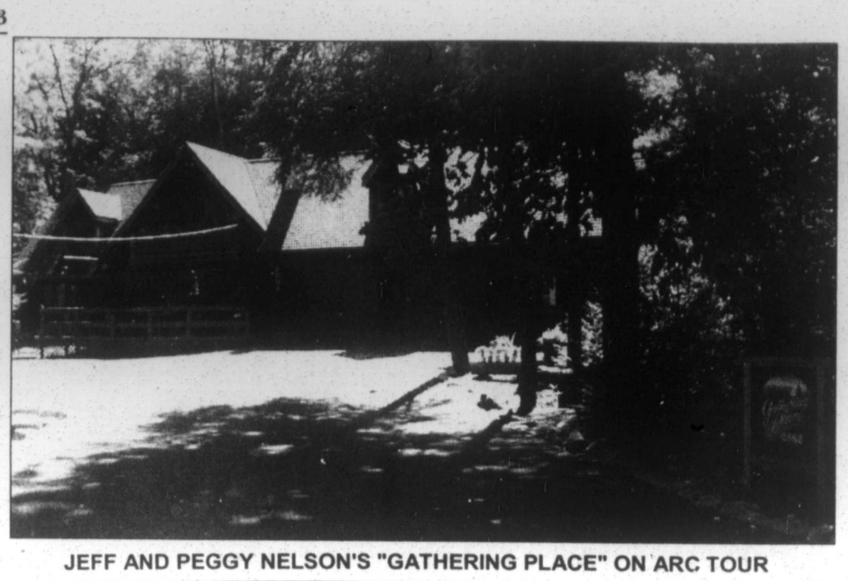
"The Gathering Place" To Be On ARC Holiday Tour

The local chapter of the American Red Cross has slated the 12th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours, this year featuring four homes, a riding stable, and a bed and breakfast. Among the houses this year will be the Gathering Place, the home of Peggy and Jeff Nelson.

The tours will take place on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5 and 6. Guests may visit the tour stops any time between the hours of 4 and 9 p.m. on Dec. 5, or between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Dec. 6.



JEFF AND PEGGY NELSON'S "GATHERING PLACE" ON ARC TOUR

The Nelsons' cedar-sided chalet was built in 1985 by a Pittsburgh construction company as a four-bedroom, three-bath vacation home with a living room and an eat-in kitchen. It was soon dubbed the Gathering Place for family and friends who had grown to love the mountains of western Maryland over some 25 years of family vacationing.

Upon Jeff Nelson's retirement from the federal government in 1997, he and Peggy decided to move to Deep Creek permanently. However, the living space in the house was not adequate. The two designed a 2,900-square-foot addition, consisting of only living area (no additional bedrooms or bathrooms). The addition was constructed chiefly by the Nelsons, with the help of family and friends.

The addition included a 24x14 kitchen (converting the original eat-in area to a dining room), a 24x14 master closet above the kitchen, a 20x25 great room, a two-car garage with a shop, and a 35x25 loft above the garage. An office and quilting area are located in the loft, as well as storage space.

For the Christmas season, the house will be decorated with Peggy's Santa collection, which numbers several hundred, and a Christmas tree in every room. Jeff's antique tool collection will also be on display.

Advance tickets for the tours are $8 per person and may be purchased at Proudfoot's or Gregg's pharmacies, Flowers by Webers in Oakland, Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake, or Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. On the days of the tours, the ticket price will be $10.

Tickets, which are required of all persons going on the tours (including children), will include directions to each tour stop. Raffles for various donated prizes will be held at each site.

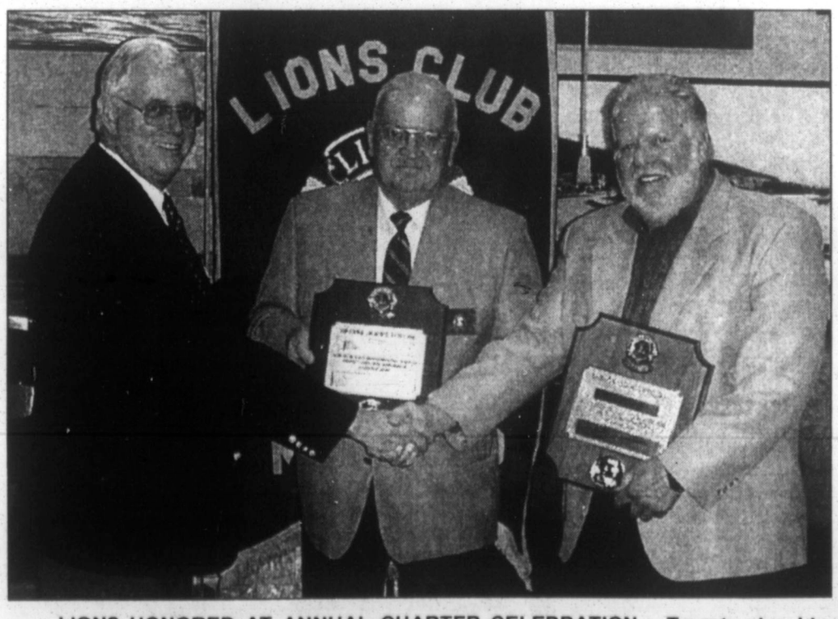
4-H MEMBERS MAKE A DIFFERENCE – Local 4-H members participated in National Make A Difference Day by coordinating a children's book drive recently. Pictured above are 4-H members Kelsey and Jordan Skipper packing some of the donated books. The book collection effort is sponsored by the AmeriCorps program, administered through Frostburg State University. Shown on the right is Zach Fowler, AmeriCorps member at the Garrett County Extension Office. Both new and used books for children of all ages will be transported to the Western Maryland Reading Center for literacy projects in the region. All members and sites are asked to collect K-12 books (old or new) and donate them to this project.



LIONS HONORED AT ANNUAL CHARTER CELEBRATION – Twenty-nine Lions Club members and guests attended the 42nd annual Charter Celebration of the Grantsville Lions recently. Special guests attending were Roger Sauter, secretary for Lions District 22-W and his wife Karen; and District 22-W Governor Carl Welsh and his wife Anna. Governor Welsh gave a brief talk about Lionism and presented Melvin Jones Fellowship awards to the two remaining active charter members of the club, Bill Bender and Bob Watkins. Both have been very active in the club since it was chartered Oct. 12, 1961. The sponsor for the Grantsville Lions Club was the Lonaconing Lions Club. Welsh also presented perfect attendance pins to Gerry Beachy, George Edwards, George Gaffney, Ron Gillum, Fred Holliday, Rich Towers, and Watkins. The Grantsville Lions Club is active in the community, coordinating Grantsville Days, maintaining the Grantsville Park along with the town of Grantsville, providing eyeglasses for needy persons, and making donations to many sight projects. Persons interested in joining the Grantsville Lions may call secretary Gerry Beachy at 301-895-5387. Pictured above, left to right, are Welsh, Bender, and Watkins, the charter members who received the Melvin Jones Fellowship, which is the highest honor in Lions.

UMBEL ENTERPRISES BREAKS GROUND – Umbel Enterprises broke ground this week at its Market Square Shopping Center, McHenry, for a major expansion that will almost double the retail space in the complex. According to Ken Wishnick, executive manager for the company, the cornerstone of the expansion will be a new 10,000 square-foot country store. See story for details. Pictured, left to right, are Ed Wolfe, equipment operator; Wishnick; Hugh Umbel, owner of Umbel Enterprises; Norm Hanline, Hanline Excavating; and Mark Hinebaugh, Legacy Home Corp.

McHenry Company Breaks Ground For Expansion Project

Umbel Enterprises broke ground this week at its Market Square Shopping Center, McHenry, for a major expansion that will almost double the retail space in the complex. According to Ken Wishnick, executive manager for the company, the cornerstone of the expansion will be a new 10,000 square-foot country store.

The Foodland Fresh supermarket will also add an additional aisle for frozen convenience foods. Three to four new retail stores will fill the space between Foodland Fresh and the new country store. The company anticipates that approximately 50 new retail jobs will be created by this project.

Hugh Umbel, owner of the center, has been planning this expansion for years, according to Wishnick. "The McHenry area has needed a 'town center' type retail hub for some time, and I am pleased to provide it," said Umbel.

Construction will be done by Legacy Home Corp. and will continue the same architectural style of the existing buildings. A unique feature of the project will be the construction of a small, covered, outdoor pavilion area that will host free summer entertainment and educational programs. According to Umbel, a public gathering place is an important component of his town center concept.

The country store will be open by next Memorial Day weekend, while the Foodland Fresh enlargement may be completed before that, according to Wishnick. "Our company will own and operate the country store," he said. "Thus far we've had several people contact us about the remaining retail spaces, but have not yet made any commitments."

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Q. What's so important about a football spinning? My husband says so-and-so is a great quarterback because "he puts a lot of spin on the ball."

A. A good quarterback intuitively senses (and does) what physics can explain.

When someone throws a ball to another person, the ball travels along a trajectory. Depending on how hard it's thrown, the ball may go over the receiver's head, may fall short and bounce, or may be "right on target." The thrower adjusts the force given to the ball in order to reach the other person and make it easy to catch. Most people figure this out by about the age of 4. It's a physics lesson before school even begins.

For most balls, most of the time, that's the end of the story. However, a football is not a round sphere, and that introduces something new. A football is an ellipsoid, which means mathematically that the axis in one direction is different from the other directions. That condition is what allows some new physics to come in.

If you just lob the football down the field, as in a desperation long pass with time running out, the football will tumble or wobble irregularly as it flies through the air, and the effect of air resistance will decide exactly where it comes down. But to improve the accuracy of your throw, you would like the ball to move in a very stable way.

The way to get stable flight is to make the ball spin around its long axis. At the conclusion of his forward arm motion, a good quarterback will snap his wrist suddenly downward, causing the ball to roll off his fingers with a spinning motion. The ball won't wobble or suffer the irregular air resistance that makes passes inaccurate. We sometimes speak of a QB "drilling" a pass to a receiver.

Why does spinning a football cause it to remain pointing the same direction? This brings in the subject of angular momentum. Whenever there is rotational motion, there is angular momentum. A moving bicycle remains upright, but a stopped bicycle falls over. The spinning wheels give the bicycle the angular momentum it needs to remain stable. Again, without the official name "physics," it's something we learn at an early age.

A spinning football is more stable than a non-spinning one. That's because the angular momentum tries not to change – it is a conserved quantity. Angular momentum has both magnitude and direction, so neither wants to change. The magnitude of the angular momentum will depend on the mass and shape of the football, but most important, on the rate at which it's spinning. The faster it spins, the greater the magnitude, and the more the angular momentum resists change, including a change of direction.

So a quarterback who "puts a lot of spin on the ball" gives it extra angular momentum, which resists change, which keeps the ball pointing straight, which prevents it from wobbling, which reduces air resistance. If the quarterback has excellent judgment and timing as well, the football will arrive at an exact point at the exact time when the intended receiver arrives.

Adorable Adoptables

THIS YOUNG, MALE GERMAN SHEPHERD was recently dropped off at the Garrett County Animal Shelter and is now in search of a new home. Above right is Echa, an 8-year-old spayed longhaired cat. She is described as friendly and good with other pets and children. Below are just three of several kittens also anxiously looking for homes. "Last week's featured cat and dog, fortunately, were adopted, but that's not always the case," stressed a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. For more information about adopting these or any other pets, persons may call 301-334-3553, or visit the shelter, located at 152 Oakland Sang Run Road. The shelter is open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., and Thursday from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Maryland Salem Children's Trust: A Safe Haven, A Second Chance

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Sheltered in the northern hills of Garrett County is a facility many locals may not even know exists. They may hear its name from time to time, or see a news story about some occurrence there, but the actual "length and breadth" of the Maryland Salem Children's Trust is surely not realized by many. The services offered there, to children from far and wide as well as to some of this area, are many and varied, and are above all greatly valuable to every child who enters the unique facility.

The Maryland Salem Children's Trust was actually founded in 1976 in Calvert County by Louise Richards, who continues to be the executive director of the operation. Compelled to find another location, she began searching in western Maryland and by sheer happenstance met up with Alta Schrock of Grantsville. Dr. Schrock and several area church leaders were already operating the Christian Outreach of Maryland, a helping facility for older teens and young adults with alcohol and/or drug problems. Dr. Schrock and her colleagues felt "led by God," Louise said, to sell the house to someone who was reaching out to younger children in need. Louise's plans and Christian methods were a good fit, and the house and property along Lower New Germany Road was sold to her in 1979. The Salem Children's Trust of Garrett County was born.

As the facility grew, more space was needed, and in 1993 a small house situated along Lower New Germany Road was purchased by the Salem Trust. The bedrooms became classrooms, the living room became the library, and the kitchen became the cafeteria.

The children kept coming. They came from broken homes, they came from the roughest places of inner cities. They found quiet and solace in Garrett County, where they could learn not only from books, but also from caring instructors and "teaching parents," who worked hard to teach the children important lessons, such as self-worth, responsibility, and how to allow people to love them.

Over the past 20 years, the facility has been home and family to over 300 children between the ages of 6 and 18. Enrollment ranges from 24 to 32 at any given time. Licensed and monitored by the Maryland Department of Human Resources/Social Services Administration, Salem receives children referred to the center by state and local agencies. Those coming to Salem are often ones who have been abused or neglected, or whose parents are simply unable to provide a secure home for them. Some come to Salem because, for whatever reason, they cannot achieve success in the public school system. Some have behavior problems, while others are mentally or emotionally challenged.

Salem offers a variety of options for children in need. There is a residency program for year-round care. The Trust operates the Salem School, a facility approved by the Maryland State Board of Education, on the grounds. While some residents attend the school, others are able to go to Garrett County public schools. Still other children who are not residents of the facility may attend just the school to receive individualized instruction in a secure and quiet setting.

The residency program is for those youngsters who live at Salem, often year-round. Since its modest beginnings in 1979, the Salem property now includes four houses, each equipped to house a "family." These families are made up of six to eight residents who live in the house, and who are cared for around the clock by "teaching parents." The children make their own meals, they choose a church to attend together, and they live as a family under one roof. They have regular family meetings and Bible studies, and work on specific areas of need, such as self-control, mutual respect, and learning how to accept "no" as an answer.

There is no cable TV in the houses, although approved, educational videos are available for the children to watch when their chores are finished. The teaching parents, who are trained and participate in continuing education, transport the children to doctors' appointments or school events, make sure they are well, and keep in close contact with each of them.

Another key feature of the Salem Children's Trust is the equestrian program. A horse barn is among the buildings located on the grounds. The children are charged with the tasks of maintaining the barns and caring for the horses. The benefits of the program are many, Louise said, such as the bond that forms between a child and a horse.

"Sometimes I overhear a student talking with his horse. Sometimes he talks more with the animal, at least at first, than he does with anyone else. They learn to love the animals, and they learn to give of themselves in caring for them," the director said.

Gardening is another integral part of the Salem program. During the summer months, gardeners teach the children about cultivating produce, and the food grown is consumed by the residents. A brochure about Salem states the following: "Much healing comes from contact with animals and nature, and great effort is made at Salem to provide the children with regular opportunity to interact with the world around them."

For children who have either been terribly abused by the adults they were supposed to be able to trust most of all, or who have been left to their own devices at a young age, wandering the streets of cities alone, the Salem Children's Trust offers them a haven they may never have imagined. And it does change the lives of these young people, guiding them toward paths of success, assisting them to better understand the world, and allowing them to finally feel loved.

In the midst of turning 20 this year, the Salem School is now in need of expansion. As the need for space increased, buildings were added to the property. As a result, the school is now located in three separate buildings — the original school, plus two mobile classrooms being rented by the non-profit organization. Meals are made in a farmhouse some distance away from the school and are transported by a van up to the cafeteria area.

"We really need to have our school under one roof, and we need to have a regulation kitchen located in the cafeteria," Richards said. "The Garrett County Health Department has worked so well with us over the years, and they have been suggesting for a very long time that the kitchen be located within the school. We want to comply, but we haven't been able to build just yet."

A building project is under way at Salem, with the dream of a 13,000-14,000-square-foot facility being pursued. The new building would have four classrooms, a much-needed music room, a bigger library, a proper cafeteria, and office space. As it is, some of the children must cross the highway to reach one of the three classrooms. The building would eliminate that safety issue. The response time from one classroom to the next would be minimized, and therapy professionals, who are on the grounds regularly but often do not have enough space, would be much better accommodated.

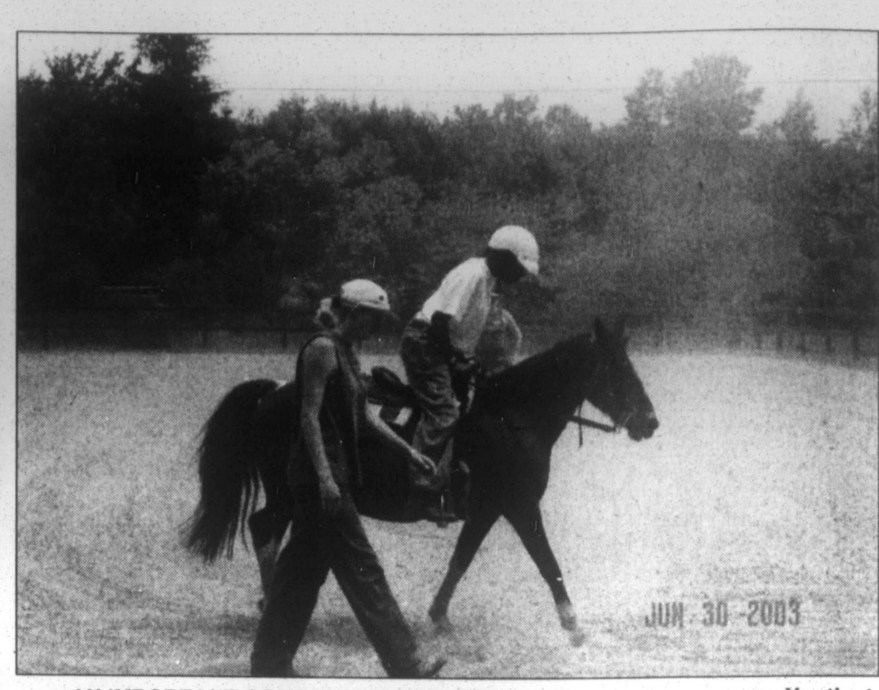
"We're very excited about the prospect of our new facility," Louise said.

As the building project progresses, more information will be publicized. Persons interested in finding out how they may help may contact the school at 301-689-8176, or may write or send tax-deductible donations to Salem School, 605 Salem Drive, Frostburg, MD 21532.

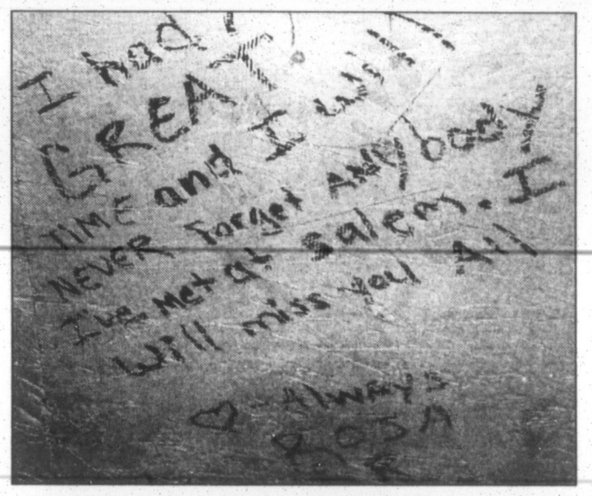
The program's brochure states that the Salem Children's Trust "beckons as a haven for children who have experienced repeated trauma at a young age. It is a sanctuary whose mission is to glorify God and respect his creation through promoting reconciliation and peace in a world of broken promises and failed responsibilities."

By all accounts, the program has followed this mission, and has indeed proved successful for the majority of young people who have had the extraordinary opportunity to experience it. With continued hard work and dedication, combined with help from the surrounding community, surely this special place will continue to thrive.

A SPECIAL PLACE – The Maryland Salem Children's Trust is a non-profit organization with the mission of caring for young people at risk. Children from across the state come to the northern Garrett County school and home. There they discover that they are have potential and that they deserve to be loved. The school and residency program currently employs approximately 70 people, and has cared for over 300 children over the past 20 years. Pictured above from left are Mike, Ashley, and Keith.



AN IMPORTANT COMPONENT OF SALEM is the equestrian program. Youth at the center are required to take part in the care of several horses. Technically they learn how to clean barns, brush the animals, and ride, among other things. The more important lessons gleaned through this program, however, are responsibility, reliability, and deep relationships with teachers and with the horses. When a child is feeling alone, sometimes a human being can't fill the void as well as a quiet, friendly animal — a friend who won't scold or talk back, but will listen and will be a steady companion.



MESSAGES OF HOPE AND LOVE can be seen on a certain wall of the Salem School, where youth who have graduated are allowed to "leave their marks." While the school experience may be difficult at times for these young people, the messages all reflect a positive outcome of the years spent there.

replacement is named, Sherrard said her office was searching for ways to meet the needs of the farming community.

For example, Willie Lantz of Garrett College, Department of Natural Resources staff, and an AmeriCorps volunteer have offered to help with the bear claims. Simms, who used to handle the claims at the office, has also agreed to help by training the volunteer.

Social Services

Acting director Rick DeWitt, Garrett County Social Services, reported that his department's facilities had been recently reconfigured to better serve its customers. Offices that serve the same customers are now located closer together, and a separate child services entranceway will soon be open.

The reconfiguration freed up space for the proposed child advocacy center. The changes have created a more "child friendly environment," noted DeWitt. He invited the commissioners and the public to visit the facilities.

The acting director added that the staff had 100 percent participation in Maryland charities.

Municipal Assistance

Mike Mullan, municipal assistance coordinator, reported that the Deer Park water project was "finally moving." The lines are finished, and the project should be completed by late spring. The coordinator noted that the project had to be "wrapped up" by June 30. He had been informed by the Community Development Block Grant officials that no further extensions would be granted on the project.

Applications are currently being accepted from residents who may need assistance to connect to the system, Mullan noted.

Chamber of Commerce

CEO/president Charlie Ross, Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, reported that he had only one statistic so far from this year's Autumn Glory Festival. The kickoff dinner saw a 25 percent increase in the number of businesses supporting the event.

Ross also said he had met with Oakland mayor Asa McCain recently about the Oakland Train Station. The chamber will be operating a visitors center at the station, which will be open seven days a week from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The chamber is also working on the re-enactment of George Washington's journey through the county on his way to Ft. LeBouef, Pa., prior to the War for Empire (French and Indian War). The event is slated for Nov. 14, 15, and 16 at the Pleasant Valley 4-H Center along Bittinger Road, near Bittinger.

This year is the 250th anniversary of the journey. In October 1753, the governor and council of Virginia decided to send Fort LeBoeuf's senior officers a formal demand for the withdrawal of all French forces. Twenty-one-year-old militia Major George Washington was dispatched with the demand. He arrived at the fort on Dec. 14.

Ross said, so far, about 35 re-enactors have expressed interest in participating in the event. For more information, persons may call the chamber at 301-387-4386.

Drivers Advised To Be Wary When Ghouls Come Out to Play

by Jamie Wellinton
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — This Halloween, drivers must beware — and be aware — of the creatures pedestrians become when darkness falls.

Night arrives earlier and children's excitement makes them less attentive during the holiday, so the utmost concentration is required of drivers, said Pete Piringer, spokesman for the Montgomery County Fire and Rescue Service. Children-turned-bats and superheroes might fly between houses because they are so wound up.

It's a "visibility thing," Piringer said. Montgomery County has put particular emphasis on pedestrian safety, Piringer said. In that county from 1997 to 1999, more pedestrians were killed crossing streets than in homicides. And in Burtonsville Tuesday, two girls, 11 and 5, were seriously injured trying to cross a darkened street while wearing dark clothing.

Trick-or-treaters should wear reflective wrist bands and parents should apply reflective tape and stickers to anything children are wearing or carrying on Halloween night, rescue personnel recommend.

Mary Jo Neil, a mediation and conflict resolution leadership trainer for Maryland PTA, isn't really worried about Halloween.

Neil, of Howard County, said she will stay close to her children when they go trick-or-treating. Plus, the houses in her area are spread out and there isn't too much traffic, she said.

Halloween participants can get a little visibility help from the Maryland State Highway Administration, which, for the ninth year, will lend out its orange reflective vests to put over costumes. They will be available through Friday on a first-come, first-served basis.

One of the goals of the SHA is to put the issue of pedestrian safety on the map, even if the vests aren't used, said Lora Rakowski, an SHA public information officer.

It is better to "see and be seen," Rakowski said.

The vests are on loan, but parents, she said, have been "very conscientious" about returning them. Just in case, shops take down information so SHA can gently remind patrons if vests are not returned in a timely manner.

Even though Halloween is usually a children's holiday, it might attract more adults this year because it falls on a Friday, said John White, public and government relations manager for AAA Mid-Atlantic.

What that means, he said, is more drinking and, he hopes, more planning. Adults celebrating All Hallows Eve should find a designated driver if they want to drink.

The National Center for Statistics and Analysis, a division of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, found that alcohol was involved in 11 percent of all crashes on weekends in 2002, and in 54 percent of fatal weekend crashes.

Bloodmobile To Visit Oak Park Church Nov. 7

An American Red Cross bloodmobile will welcome donors on Friday, Nov. 7, at the Oak Park Church of the Brethren between the hours of noon and 6 p.m.

At present this is the only bloodmobile visit for Garrett County scheduled for the month of November.

In order to be eligible to donate blood, one must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, and be in generally good health. The ARC permits donation of a unit of blood every 56 days.

The Oak Park Church is located just off Old Rt. 135 (Oakland Drive) across from Southern High School.

Garrett's "College And Me" Program Puts Kids Into Campus Classrooms

by Joan Crawford

When the yellow school buses roll into the Garrett College parking lot in the morning, their passengers seem eager to get where they are going. They are the fifth grade students from one of the Garrett County schools coming to the campus for their week in the College and Me program.

Now in its 14th year, the program is a cooperative effort between the college and the Board of Education to orient the young students to college and to make them aware of the opportunities available to them. A different group of students comes with their homeroom teachers to the college each week for a total of 18 weeks in the school year. Each day of the four-day session includes regular classes and several enrichment classes, usually taught by members of the college faculty. On Wednesdays parents are invited to spend the entire day or half the day and have lunch with their child.

According to Pam Fike, coordinator of the College and Me program, 13 different enrichment activities are in the schedule this year. "The classes represent a variety of subjects," she said. "They all have 'hands on' components where the students actually do something creative or have fun playing a game."

In a class titled "Rivers and River Safety," Mike Logsdon, director of the Adventure Sports program, uses the model he constructed to explain how the currents in a river are affected by the shoreline, rocks, and other barriers. He then shows a video of a canoe trip down a river and dangers to be avoided. Scott Richardson of the Adventure Sports staff teaches a class about the program, and shows the students equipment needed for rock climbing, hiking, biking, and kayaking, then leads them in playing several games.

Another class with an outdoor orientation is taught by Eric Savage and Caroline Blizzard of the Department of Natural Resources, who explain how animals survive in the wild using the food chain and show the students how to make owl calls with PVC pipe.

Other professionals from the community share expertise with the young students. Linda Tomblin of the college library staff leads the fifth graders on a search for a treasure chest in the library using computers and books. Rose Ahern of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital staff shows a PowerPoint presentation about available allied health careers and then organizes a game.

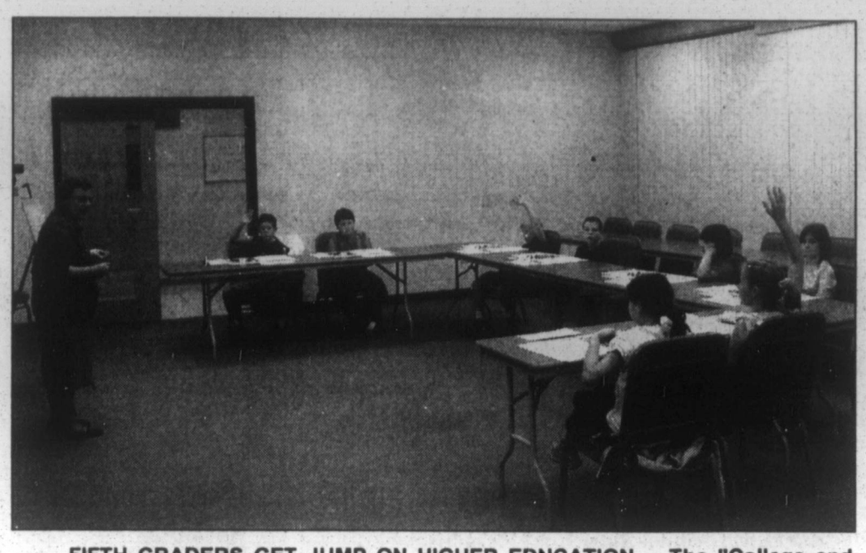
In a class taught by Sue Abe, the students learn about musical instruments and how the notes they play can change the tone and the beat. They also sing songs that form different musical patterns. Vicki Teets teaches an origami class in which students create boxes and fish, and get instructions for making a jumping frog and a bird at home.

Members of the college faculty teach classes related to their academic discipline. Professor of biology Carolyn Deniker shows the biology lab to students and helps them look through microscopes to see a dissected fetal pig. Professor of theatre and speech Ben Sincell explains the four designs of the theatre to students and then invites them to join him on stage to become actors, wearing hats he supplies. He also presents a light show with music. Math department faculty Dr. Nancy Priselac and Linda May help students do a project with wires, batteries and light bulbs, then play a game matching mathematicians with their accomplishments.

In a class titled "Computers," interim director of business and information technology Terry Norris, and Terry Beachy, program coordinator of the Grantsville Outreach Center, teach the fifth grade students about computers and help them make their own certificate to present to their favorite instructor of the week. Local artist Edna Bender conducts an oil painting class in which this year's students paint a squirrel on a tree branch. Director of financial aid Pat Bennett tells the young students about scholarships, grants and loans available to them, and then directs a Jeopardy-type game using the information she provided.

By the end of the four-day week, the students have been given a bird's eye view of life on a college campus and have experienced the joy of discovering new interests and having opportunities to use their creativity. But even more, they have learned that a college education is a worthwhile and achievable goal for every fifth grade student who desires to have experienced the joys of discovering new interests and having opportunities to use their creative energies.

Even more, they have learned that a college education is a worthwhile and achievable goal for every fifth grader who determines to obtain one.



FIFTH GRADERS GET JUMP ON HIGHER EDUCATION – The "College and Me" program, a joint effort of Garrett College and the Garrett County Board of Education that provides an orientation to the college for local fifth graders, is in its 14th successful year. A different group of students and homeroom teachers visit the campus each week for a total of 18 weeks during the school year, and take part in regular classes and a variety of enrichment classes often taught by college faculty members. Eastern Star Meeting Held Oakland Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star met Tuesday, Oct. 21, at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple, Oakland.

Juanita Bosley, Worthy Matron, opened with a reading of "It's Like Being a Pumpkin," and Ted Raynovich, Worthy Patron, read "High Minded Man."

Bosley then greeted Dottie Csamer, Wilda Hile, and Charee Reckner, Deputy Grand Lecturers of Maryland, at which time Csamer was seated in the east.

Richard Csamer, Grand Representative to West Virginia, greeted Past Matrons and Past Patrons of Oakland Chapter, officers, members, and Brothers holding Masonic honors.

A program written by Debbie Raynovich was presented to Dottie Csamer, Deputy Grand Lecturer appointed to Oakland Chapter, titled "Cornucopia Harvest," and a gift was given to Juanita Bosley.

Dottie Csamer gave a reading, "Black Cats and Pumpkins," and the Worthy Matron closed with "Today's Mighty Oak." The Worthy Patron closed with "Sad News."

Refreshments followed and were hosted by Lillian Reckner and Hazel Sherwood.

The next meeting will be "Friendship Night" on Tuesday, Nov. 4. All members are invited to attend.

Most people don't realize that there are 15 lakes in Garrett County. The Republican has been providing information about each of those lakes in this column.

LITTLE MEADOWS

Location: Little Meadows Lake and Campground are located along Chestnut Ridge Road, ½ mile south of U.S. Rt. 68 (Exit 22). The exit is three miles east of Grantsville.

How to get there: Turn south on Chestnut Ridge Road from Rt. 68 at Exit 22 and travel ½ mile to the lake. From southern Garrett County, travel Rt. 495 north, turn right onto New Germany Road and then right onto Chestnut Ridge Road, and travel about two miles.

Ownership: John and Thelma Davies placed this lake and surrounding land into the Little Meadows Charitable Trust. Judie Robinette manages it.

Purpose: The lake was formed in the recovery of a coal stripping project for recreation and, incidentally, has become a home for about 200 Canada geese!

Description: This rectangular lake backs up from a 1,000-foot-long earthen dam. It is ¼ mile wide and ½ mile long. It is located on a flat meadow with no steep sides. Because the site was formerly a strip mine, the 100-acre lake has depths up to 60 feet. A gravel road surrounds the entire lake.

Beside the lake on the southeast side is a smaller body of water four feet higher than the main lake and feeding into it by way of a bubbling race.

Facilities: There are picnic tables and a shelter with a fireplace for large groups of people. On the east side of the lake is a quiet, well-shaded trailer campground. Camping sites under the shadow of well-spaced hardwood trees are served with water and electricity. There is a dumping station, grassy areas for tents, and a gazebo.

Recreation: This is an ideal lake for easy-access fishing and boating. One can fish from a folding chair along the shore or from a boat, which can be easily launched from the low shoreline (only battery-powered boats permitted). The lake is stocked with trout, bass, bluegill, shiners, catfish, and crappie. If you catch a tagged fish, you win $50. Since the lake is privately owned, fishing licenses are not required.

The smaller lake on the southeast side of the main lake is bordered by trees and has a marsh on one end. It is ideal for canoeing and kayaking. Bring your field glasses; there are lots of birds.

There are also, as previously mentioned, picnicking facilities.

Swimming is not permitted.

Fees: Fishing and/or boating, $5 per day (three game-fish limit); $30 per year; senior citizens, free. Camping/trailers, $15 per night, $90 per week, $517 per year. Tents, $10 per night for four people ($1 each for additional people). Shelter rental, $50.

For information/reservations: Call 301-895-5675.

Biffle resumes his winning ways

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

Forget gas mileage and tire strategies when it comes to Busch Series racing at Atlanta Motor Speedway. When the final caution flag of Saturday's Aaron's 312 flew, polesitter Greg Biffle used the old-fashioned approach to grab his second Busch victory in the past three weeks. On the pivotal pit stop, race leader Michael Waltrip stayed on the track, a move his crew quickly admitted was the result of a breakdown in communication between driver and crew. Scott Riggs took over second place by changing only two tires while Biffle, who had been in fourth place, changed four, as did third-running Matt Kenseth, the Winston Cup points leader.

BIFFLE

"I thought [Waltrip] was kind of a sitting duck," Biffle said.

He was.

When the green flag dropped to begin a 16-lap sprint to the finish, Biffle took his No. 7 Chevrolet to the outside lane, held the accelerator flat on the floor for three laps and came out with a lead he never relinquished.

"I couldn't believe you could do that," he said. "I was willing to let up on the throttle if it didn't stick, but that was the only way to win."

Kenseth, who runs a part-time Busch schedule, finished second over Bobby Hamilton Jr., Waltrip and Hank Parker Jr.

Biffle dominated the Little Trees 300 at Lowe's Motor Speedway two weeks ago and entered the 312 poised for a repeat performance.

He started on the pole and led three times for 59 laps but nearly lost his chance for victory when he was penalized for speeding down pit road on Lap 115. After driving down pit road to serve his penalty, he rejoined the race in 10th place, 20 seconds behind.

"I was mad because I didn't speed, but there was nothing I could do about it," Biffle said. "I didn't think I would be able to overcome it. I was pretty lucky."

The Busch Series points standings were shuffled again with David Green retaking the lead from Brian Vickers, who blew a tire on Lap 47 and finished Saturday's race in the 31st spot. That finish dropped him to fifth in the standings.

Barker helps out at AMS

Crew chief Robert "Bootie" Barker, who left his job at Dave Blaney's No. 77 team in Winston Cup two weeks ago, resurfaced in the Busch garage this past weekend at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

He was there assisting Ashton Lewis and the crew of the No. 46 Chevrolet. Lewis and Barker worked together in their Late Model days in Virginia.

Barker said he's unsure of his plans for 2004.

"I've talked to some people, but there's nothing definite yet," he said.

Gordon wins again

No. 24 fends off Stewart to claim victory at Atlanta

By RICK MINTER

Hampton, Ga.

Jeff Gordon overcame early adversity to fend off a late-race charge by Tony Stewart and win Monday's rain-delayed Bass Pro Shops MBNA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

It was his second consecutive Winston Cup victory, the 64th of his career and his sixth top-five finish in a row.

While Gordon's team showed it might be regaining its championship form, Matt Kenseth and his squad showed they're worthy of the 2003 Winston Cup title that they're nearing. Kenseth's No. 17 car overcame a fender-bender on Lap 45 and a broken exhaust header to finish 11th and boost his points lead over runner-up Dale Earnhardt Jr. with three races left to run.

"We did all we could with what we had," said Kenseth, who leads by 258 points. "We certainly didn't run very good today, but overall, looking at the points thing, everything was a great day for us."

Kevin Harvick finished 20th after being swept up in a spin by Dave Blaney on Lap 200 and dropped to third in the standings, four points behind Earnhardt, who finished sixth.

Harvick declined to comment after the race other than to say, "It's over."

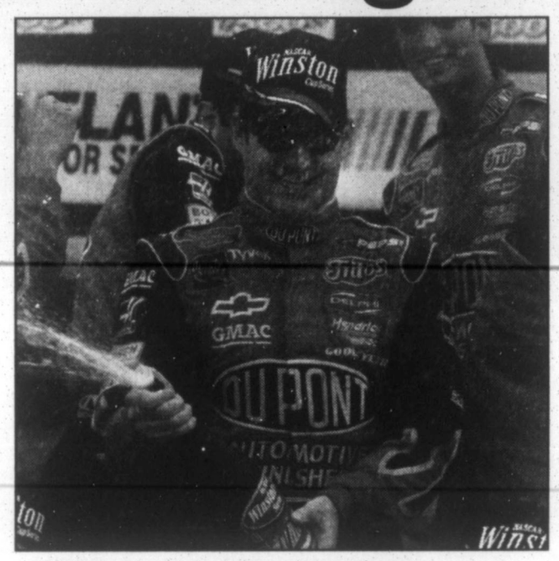
All Kenseth needs to do is finish 21st in the final three races and the championship is his.

Stewart, who had the dominant car in Monday's race, lost his chance to win because of two slow pit stops but finished second ahead of Jimmie Johnson, Bill Elliott and Bobby Labonte.

On the race's final 101-lap green-flag run, Stewart started 16th — he was second before he made his pit stop — but had moved to fourth when he made his final pit stop on Lap 286.

This time his crew came through with a quick stop, and he rejoined the race in second place. But he was unable to pass Gordon as the laps wound down.

The battle ended abruptly and prematurely with three laps to go. Earnhardt and Ryan Newman collided on the backstretch with Newman's No. 12 Dodge slamming into the wall.



JOHNNY CRAWFORD / Cox News Service

Jeff Gordon sprays champagne on his crew after winning the Bass Pro Shops MBNA 500 for his second victory in a row. Rain delayed the race from Sunday.

When the caution flag was thrown for Newman's wreck, all racing stopped as per NASCAR's new yellow-flag rules, so Gordon simply idled around for the final three laps.

For the 50,000 or so fans who returned on Monday for the final 439 miles, it was a disappointing, but seemingly appropriate, end to a race that never seemed to generate the usual level of excitement.

Gordon disagreed.

"It was a great race between four or five of us," he said. "It was an awesome battle."

He also said his No. 24 team is poised to make a run for points runner-up this year (he's just 38 points out of second place) and for the championship in 2004.

"What we're trying to do right now is build momentum for next year. We did it in 2000. We came into our own toward the end of that year, gained momentum and confidence with good race cars and good pit crew and just the chemistry of the team.

"It's just as strong as it's ever been. . . and now we're able to show just how good it is."

Gordon finished ninth in points in 2000, but won his fourth championship the next year.

Stewart's thoughts on the 500 and his team's late-season success — a win and five other top-four finishes — were a mystery. He left the track without attending the news conference that the top three finishers are supposed to attend, but now skip on an increasingly regular basis.

Bill Elliott skipped the meeting four weeks ago after finishing second at Kansas, and Jamie McMurray, who was supposed to attend as the highest finishing rookie, was a no-show at both Kansas and Atlanta.

NASCAR officials said McMurray was excused because he hadn't been receiving many questions, but declined to comment on the other no-shows at the post-race conferences. They said they'd delve into the issue next week at Phoenix. AMS president Ed Clark said NASCAR needs to get serious with drivers who dodge the media.

"They need to do something to get their attention, because obviously this is not working," he said.

Gordon said he considers it his duty to meet with the media.

"No matter whether you're unhappy or not, you're going to go and do your interviews," he said. "I don't look at it as an option."

POST-RACE NOTES

Dispute over caution puts drivers behind

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

The biggest stir on a water-logged weekend at Atlanta Motor Speedway was a scoring dispute brought about in part by NASCAR's new yellow-flag rules.

Adding to the confusion was the fact that the caution flag, which now is supposed to signal an immediate end to all passing, flew on Lap 104 during a round of green-flag pit stops.

Kurt Busch was leading, but he was penalized for passing Jeff Gordon and Kevin Harvick after the caution flag came out. Busch's old nemesis Jimmy Spencer was among those passed, and he was critical of Busch and NASCAR.

Spencer said that when the caution flag was displayed on Lap 104, he, Bill Elliott, Gordon and Harvick slowed and were passed by Busch, putting them a lap down.

NASCAR gave Gordon and Harvick their laps back and put them at the back of the lead pack based on a review of video. But while the scoring decisions were being made, most of the drivers involved were making pit stops and further clouding the issue.

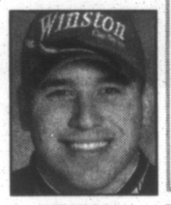
"I think all four should have been able to get their lap back," Spencer said. "[Busch] had no right to do what he did. . . That's no courtesy on his part at all, but what goes around comes around."

Race winner Jeff Gordon said the confusion was caused by NASCAR's hesitation in throwing the yellow flag for Ricky Rudd's spin.

"They didn't throw the caution soon enough," Gordon said. "And they should have closed the pits until they knew what their scoring situation was because that really could have cost us this race."

Bad day for Newman

For Ryan Newman, the results this season have been either really good or awfully bad. Monday was one of those bad days. After starting on the pole for the ninth time this year, he fell a lap behind early but was back in the top 10 late in the race.



NEWMAN

He was in sixth place with four laps to go, just ahead of Dale Earnhardt Jr., when the two cars touched and Newman's No. 12 Dodge spun into the backstretch wall.

Newman dropped to 29th at the finish, the seventh time this season that he has finished that bad or worse, and he slipped from fourth to sixth in the Winston Cup points standings.

He showed his displeasure at Earnhardt by gesturing to him on the track, but had little to say afterward.

Too soon for Mears

Sometimes, it seems that NASCAR's youth movement is sweeping up the fresh-faced drivers before they've had a chance to hone their skills.

Rookie driver Casey Mears, 25, moved to NASCAR's elite Winston Cup circuit this year after just one year in the Busch Series, where he had just one top-five finish.

After 33 Winston Cup starts, he has 27 finishes outside the top 20.

"We've had a tough year," Mears said. "I stepped into Winston Cup racing, I feel, a little bit too soon."

Schrader not in 'panic mode' over sponsorship

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

Ken Schrader might be the oldest regular driver, but he's also one of the most versatile, racing everything from ARCA cars at South Boston, Va., on Oct. 18 to a dirt Late Model at Dixie Speedway in Woodstock, Ga., on Saturday night.

And he's one of the most honest of the lot, even when the subject is a touchy one like the lack of a full-time sponsor for the No. 49 Dodge he drives in Winston Cup.

SCHRADER

"The phone doesn't ring a whole lot when you're 48," he said. "We're kind of on hold here waiting to see what happens.

"There are a couple of other little deals out there, a couple of opportunities maybe."

Schrader said if all else fails, he has a backup plan that would allow him to run his own truck on the Craftsman Truck Series with backing from longtime sponsor Federated Auto Parts.

"I guess that would be Option One," he said. "But there's been way too much conversation on [car owners Tony and Beth Ann Morgenthau's] part and the whole team with other companies to really be in panic mode."

More Marylanders Applying For State Help With Heating Bills

by Marisa Navarro
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – A state program that helps low-income residents pay their heating bills has received more applications than it had at the same time last year, when demand for the program was the highest in nearly a decade. About 30,000 households have already applied for assistance from the Maryland Energy Assistance Program, which expects that at least 75,000 families will apply this winter for a stipend between $215 and $396.

Officials said applications could exceed last winter's total, when 77,828 households got MEAP stipends. That was the most since the winter of 1994, when 97,000 families got help, said Mary Lou Kueffer, director of the state Office of Home Energy Programs.

The increase in requests comes at a time when both heating fuel costs and jobless rates are on the rise.

Congress allocated just under $1.8 billion for the program nationally last year, but is wrangling over this winter's funding, with the House proposing $1.7 billion for energy assistance programs and the Senate pushing for $2 billion.

"Poverty rates are up, and there's a strong argument to push for the $2 billion," said Mark Wolfe, executive director of the National Energy Assistance Directors Association.

Depending on which version passes, Maryland would get between $26 million and $31 million to dole out this winter. It got more than $28 million from the federal government last winter.

Whichever version passes, energy assistance programs nationwide will still be "seriously underfunded," according to a letter from congressional supporters of the program. The Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition estimates that only 15 percent of the country's 30 million eligible households receive help paying their heating bills. Kueffer said the rise in applications this fall could be attributed to a variety of factors, from increased poverty to residents simply planning ahead.

Last season's large number of requests was due, in part, to one of the coldest winters on record. This winter has been harder to predict, however, with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration saying there is an even chance for either above- or below-normal temperatures. Whatever the temperature, heating bills are expected to increase.

Nationwide, natural gas bills are expected to rise 9 percent, said Dave Costello, an Energy Information Administration economist. He said last winter's cold created a shortage in natural gas reserves that forced energy providers to buy more.

"You can argue that we're still paying for last year's winter," he said.

Even though Congress has not yet approved funding for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program, the Department of Health and Human Services this week gave states an advance on their allocation so people can pay their bills now. It took Congress until January of this year, three months after the budget deadline, to approve funding for LIHEAP for the harsh winter of 2002-2003.

Maryland got a $10 million advance this week that will be counted against whatever amount is ultimately approved by Congress this winter. Beginning next week, eligible Maryland households will receive their stipend, an average of $314, Kueffer said Friday. The funding will arrive just before the cold weather hits the region – and residents' pocketbooks.

"Mid-November is the crisis time for applicants," Kueffer said. "That's when people start needing help the most with their payments."

Residents can call 1-800-352-1446 for MEAP information or visit the Department of Human Resources web site at www.dhr.state.md.us.

Wal-Mart Names New Manager Of Local SuperCenter

George W. Jones has been named the new store manager of the Wal-Mart SuperCenter in Oakland. Jones, who has more than 10 years of experience with the company, began his duties on Oct. 20.

"I'm enjoying being back here in Oakland," Jones said. "When I started my career at Wal-Mart, I didn't know where it would take me. I've found incredible opportunities with this company. I look forward to working with our associates and customers."

Jones joined Wal-Mart in 1993, unloading trucks in New Port Richey, Fla., and later serving as a stocker and a department manager. He transferred to Bedford, Pa., as a department manager. He then transferred to Tampa, Fla., as a department and support manager, before being promoted to assistant manager.

Jones held the same position in Largo, Spring Hill, Southington, Conn., and Rocky Hill, before being promoted to co-manager of the new Oakland store in 2001. He was promoted to store manager of the Keyser store a few months later.

"George is a great success story," said district manager Jerry Sharp. "He is an example of the kind of careers available at Wal-Mart. He is truly a talent, and we couldn't be more pleased to have him back in Oakland."

In Keyser, Jones was a supporter of the United Way. As part of Wal-Mart's commitment to "enhancing the quality of life in the communities it serves by being personally involved in the community," Jones plans to pursue opportunities in the schools, sports, and youth activities in Oakland.

He and his wife Lisa have three children, Amanda, Bethany, and Trevor.

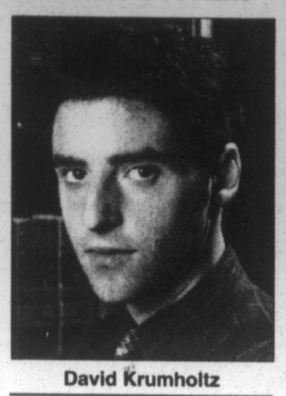
TV PIPELINE

'ER' psycho wasn't Chandler's roomie

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it



David Krumholtz

Q: My boyfriend insists that the guy who killed Lucy and stabbed Carter on "ER" is the same psycho roommate that Chandler had briefly on "Friends." He isn't right, is he? –Janette L., Casper, Wyo.

A: No. David Krumholtz, who co-stars in this fall's new NBC drama "The Lyon's Den," played Paul Sobricki, the disturbed patient who attacked Lucy and Carter in "Be Still My Heart," the Feb. 10, 2000, episode of "ER."

That was Adam Goldberg from "Saving Private Ryan" and "How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days" as Eddie Menuek, the nut job who briefly moved in with Chandler in early 1996 on "Friends."

Q: I notice that when John Thaw ("Inspector Morse") walks, he moves as if he might have had a knee replacement or something. Can you shed any light on this? –Roberta Bowser, Jackson, Mich.

A: Thaw, who died of cancer in 2002, had a slight limp from an accident at age 15, when be broke his foot by tripping over a curb.

Q: Where did Benjamin McKenzie of "The O.C." grow up? –Craig in Brea, Calif.

A: Unlike his troubled "O.C." character, McKenzie was born into an upper-class family in Austin, Texas, and earned a degree in foreign affairs and economics from the University of Virginia. The nephew of 1992 Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Robert Schenkkan ("The Kentucky Cycle"), the 25-year-old actor honed his craft in the New York theater before moving to Los Angeles and, after a couple of minor TV roles, landing the role of Ryan Atwood on "The O.C."

It bears remarking that McKenzie is a polite, articulate and talented young man who deserves much success.

Q: What was the name of the male lead in "The Equalizer"? By the way, I tried to e-mail you, but apparently the e-mail address in my paper is wrong. –Jill Castagna, Port Charlotte, Fla.

A: Despite our best efforts to get this corrected, some of our newspaper clients continue to list an e-mail address that is missing the crucial "at" symbol in the middle of it, between "tvpipeline" and "tribune.com." If you were reading the correct e-mail address out loud, it would sound like: "tvpipeline at tribune dot com."

British actor Edward Woodward, now 73, played "equalizer" Robert McCall in that 1985-89 CBS drama.

Q: I understand that A&E has released its Katharine Hepburn "Biography" on home video. Do you have an address where I can order one? –Mrs. Wanda Davis, North Garden, Va.

A: You can order any A&E Home Video release by credit card simply by dialing 888-423-1212. The call is free. As I write this, the Hepburn video is priced at $19.95 plus delivery.

Send questions of general interest to TV Pipeline, Zap2it, 333 Glen St., Glens Falls, NY 12801, or e-mail to tvpipeline@tribune.com. Only questions selected for this column will be answered. Personal replies cannot be sent.

Bassam Abed has lived in Cleveland for 10 years, worked as a telephone repairman and has divorced. He returns to the Middle East to marry Mariam, a traditional Palestinian whom his family selects. They know each other only for a month when the wedding, with a dowry of gold and goats, occurs.

Trivia

Alan Rickman ("Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets") attended the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art at age 27.

Morgan Freeman ("The Shawshank Redemption") collected refundable bottles as a child to pay for movie admissions.

State To Begin Levying Unemployment Tax Surcharge To Restore Fund

by Cheryl Johnston
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland employers should begin receiving notice next month of a 1.1 percent unemployment insurance surcharge beginning next year that will likely continue, at a slightly higher rate, for 2005 and 2006, according to state officials.

Tom Wendell, assistant secretary for unemployment insurance, told the state's Unemployment Insurance Task Force last week that the surcharge is needed to bring Maryland's unemployment insurance trust fund up to its state-mandated level of $822.5 million.

The 1.1 percent increase will be levied beginning in January, and will cost businesses an additional $93.50 per employee per year, Wendell said. He said the surcharge will likely rise to 1.2 percent for 2005 and 2006.

"Right now, the estimate for 2005 is 1.2, but it also will depend on what benefits are paid out, also, in that time period," said Susan Bass, head of policy and planning in the Office of Unemployment Insurance.

The increase comes after an annual assessment of the trust fund found that, as of Sept. 30, it had fallen to $646.1 million, Wendell said. Under Maryland law, a surcharge on employers for the following year is triggered anytime the fund falls under $822.5 million.

"Most businesses don't know it's coming yet," said Ronald Adler, the Maryland Chamber of Commerce representative on the state unemployment task force. "We knew something was going to happen, we just didn't know how much."

Unemployment taxes are levied on a scale that takes into account how much an employer's laid-off workers have drawn from the fund, and the amount of taxable wages the employer pays.

While the additional $93.50 does not sound like a lot, it can add up, said Adler, who is also president of a human resources consulting firm, Laurdan Associates Inc.

"If you start saying, 'I have 100 employees, and it's now 100 times $100, and if someone leaves and I have to a hire a new person,' then it's an additional person," that the company has to pay for, he said.

Adler, who chairs the chamber's unemployment insurance task force, said the state and chamber task forces are looking for a balance between protecting individuals who have lost their jobs, and employers who are trying to make a living.

"We're now in a situation where there's structural unemployment. Jobs and employers just aren't there anymore. And the way to get out of it is to create new jobs – not just rehire," Adler said. "Like other taxes, [the unemployment insurance tax] reduces profits and that's what drives job creation. So, it's a balancing act."

The unemployment insurance surcharge has been levied several times in the last three decades. Bass said it was in place from 1991 through 1996, for four years in the 1980s and for most of the 1970s. It has been as high as 2.2 percent.

The state was able to avoid the surcharge last year by putting $142.9 million in special federal unemployment money into the state's trust fund, keeping the fund above the level that would have triggered the extra charge. But since then, the state paid out $518.6 million in benefits while taking in only $260.1 million in unemployment taxes, helping to push the fund below the mandated level.

GED Exam Set At Garrett Coll.

The new Maryland High School Diploma GED exam will be offered in December at Garrett College's McHenry campus. Only individuals 16 years of age and older who are not currently enrolled in the public school system may apply to take the exam. The application deadline is set for Friday, Nov. 7, and the cost is $45, payable at the time of application.

The new exam is given in two separate sessions. The first session is slated for Thursday, Dec. 4, from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m., and the second session is set for Saturday, Dec. 6, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Applicants must attend both sessions.

Ongoing exam preparation classes are also being offered free of charge at a variety of locations throughout the county. Applicants are also required to take an official GED practice exam. To schedule a practice exam, request more information on classes, or apply for the exam, persons may contact Patricia Baer at 301-334-8304.

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell & Ron Boyer

The bold colors of autumn have all but disappeared. As you drive the back roads of Garrett County, the landscape unfolds before you in dingy shades of brown, green, and gold. But spend the time to take a closer took, and you'll be rewarded with a visual delight. In roadside thickets and meadows, the New England aster with its bright violet and yellow flowers still offers a treat for the eye.

The New England aster, Aster novae-angliae, is just one of over 35 species of aster found in the mid-Atlantic region. Most of these asters bloom from August through October, displaying blue, pink, purple, or white ray flowers. Ray flowers are the outer ring of "petals" plucked from daisies by little girls playing "he loves me; he loves me not." The ray flowers surround the cluster of generally less conspicuous disc flowers that in asters are colored a variety of shades, including off-white, yellow, red-purple, and brown. This combination of ray and disc flowers appears star-like, so it should come as no surprise that they were given the genus name of Aster from the Greek word for star.

Aster leaves and seeds comprise anywhere from .5 to 2% of the diets of a variety of wildlife species, including the tree sparrow, ruffed grouse, wild turkey, chipmunk, cottontail rabbit, and white-tailed deer. Native Americans made a tea from the roots of the New England aster to treat fever and diarrhea. They also cooked the young leaves of at least one aster for greens. Today, certain woodland asters are reported to be important in honey production.

Since asters frequently hybridize, identification can be difficult at times. Instead of a field guide, it's best to use a botanical manual such as Flora of West Virginia when attempting to unlock the identity of species. Other asters currently in flower in Garrett County that you may encounter include the calico and heath asters. The asters are members of the family Asteraceae (formerly called Compositae), which also includes the familiar coneflowers, sunflowers, ironweeds, and goldenrods. Depending on your source, Asteraceae is either the largest family of flowering plants in the world or takes second place behind the orchids (family Orchidaceae).

For more information on asters and other native wildflowers, visit the Maryland Native Plant Society's web site at www.mdflora.org.

GET INSPIRED BY GOD'S LOVE

Carving Out Their Future

These young entrepreneurs have apparently had early encouragement in the work ethic, for they already exhibit enthusiastic marketing initiative. How did they learn this concept? Perhaps their parents have shown them by example. This could be the first of many steps toward a successful future.

You see, as surely as many of these pumpkins will be carved into various and indelible expressions, we carve out a future for our children through example and instruction. Unlike carving the pumpkin, where we have only one chance to "get it right", our job is to constantly work toward molding the character of our children.

How important that each family succeeds in the raising of its children, for as journalist, writer, and education Will Durant believed... "the family is the nucleus of civilization".

Fortunately, our greatest help comes from our Heavenly Father. We read in 1 John 3:1, "See what love the Father has given us, that we should be called children of God: and so we are." God will help us to shape our children's future as well as our own when we worship as a family each Sabbath. It's never to soon to begin.

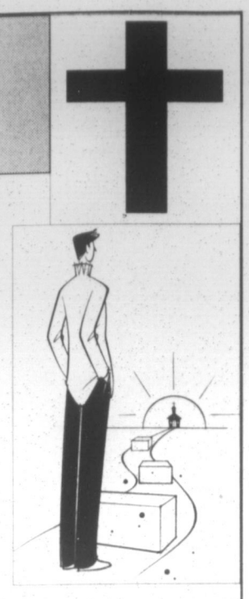
Stumbling Blocks



A good example is not to be copied, but to be emulated. We should try to equal or surpass the spirit of the virtuous rather than being eager to simply imitate their every deed. Hagiography, the writing or study of the lives of the saints, can be extremely effective as a spiritual exercise because of its power to motivate us to emulate these devout and virtuous souls. But we should not try to copy their lives or imitate their actions with wooden literalism. Although many of the saints lived exemplary lives in many respects, they were still far from perfect. Some of them abused their bodies mercilessly; others neglected their familial duties while devoting themselves to God. The faults of great men and women can easily become stumbling blocks to others, because we tend to cast a "halo" around great people, thinking that everything they do is somehow imbued with their greatness. People in positions of power, eminence or even just great influence should be careful in this regard because their less-than-exemplary actions might easily become a stumbling block to others, or even worse, a source of imitation. Emulate the pious and the virtuous, but don't imitate them uncritically, for surely they too have their faults.

Then let us no more pass judgement on one another, but rather decide never to put a stumbling block or hindrance in the way of a brother.

Red Yeast Supplements and Cholesterol

High blood cholesterol readings are indi-cative of potential heart and blood-vessel related problem. A study confirmed that taking a daily supplement of red yeast combined with a low-fat diet can reduce total cholesterol levels by an average of 40 points in only 12 weeks. That reduction is similar to what has been observed from taking a popular cholesterol-lowering prescription drug.

Red yeast has been used for centuries by the Chinese as a heart remedy. Since the extract of red yeast contains a number of cholesterol-lowering compounds, it is very important not to take red yeast supplements without your doctor's knowledge if you are also taking a prescription cholesterol drug. Red yeast supplements may also lower blood triglyceride levels. People with liver dysfunction or with abnormal liver test re-sults should avoid taking the supplement.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Every year, the United States prints 8 billion notes of paper currency. If you were to lay all of these bills end-to-end, they would encircle the Earth's equator more than 30 times.

• The first climate-controlled, fully enclosed shopping mall in the United States opened in 1956 in Edina, Minn. It had 72 stores and cost $20 million to build. Strangely, the mall offered helicopter service to customers — in 10 minutes, they could be transported to the airport, downtown St. Paul or the Dayton's department store in downtown Minneapolis.

• The words "under God" weren't included in the original version of the Pledge of Allegiance; that addition was made 60 years later.

• Do you agree with this observation made by journalist Helen Rowland? "True love says, 'Love me — or I suffer!' Infatuation says, 'Love me — or I'll make you suffer!'"

• Five million bacteria can live on 0.155 square inch.

• Yo-Yo Ma is probably the best-known cellist in the world today, and he began playing at a very young age. His first public recital was performed when he was 5 years old, and he made his Carnegie Hall debut in New York at age 9.

• Spiders often travel by air, floating on currents in the atmosphere. In this manner, they can travel 200 miles and go as high as 2 miles above the ground.

• Have you ever gotten a permanent at a hair salon to make your locks curly? You might be surprised to know that the first one was performed in 1906 — and the price tag is also surprising: In today's dollars, it would cost $18,481.

Depression Glass

Q. I started collecting Depression glass three years ago and have managed to find about a dozen pieces, mostly in the English Hobnail pattern. Can you tell me about both this pattern and the value of Depression glass in general? — Susan, via e-mail

A. The English Hobnail pattern was introduced during the 1920s by the Westmoreland Glass Company of Grapeville, Pa. Before being discontinued in 1983, it was manufactured in an array of colors, including amber, cobalt blue, crystal, green, ice blue and red. A check of eBay found several pieces of Depression glass in this pattern, including a green celery dish, $30; crystal iced-tea tumbler, $15; a pink beverage pitcher, $140; and a pair of crystal candlesticks, $30.

Although there are dozens of reference books about Depression glass, one of the better ones is Warman's Depression Glass: A Value and Identification Guide, edited by Ellen T. Schroy, now in its third edition. Published by Krause Publications, it features more than 170 Depression glass patterns, including the current market value of more than 10,000 individual items. The color photos and drawings make identification of various patterns easy. This handsome guide is available for $27.95 through bookstores or may be ordered by calling Krause toll-free at 1-888-457-2873.

Even though Depression glass was once an inexpensive giveaway, it has become a popular and valuable collectible, as many of the prices in this guide indicate. For example, a pink pitcher in the Avocado pattern is listed for $900, and an American crystal platter, an astonishing $850.

Other sources that might be helpful include the Land of Sunshine Depression Glass Club, P.O. Box 560275, Miami, FL 32856, and two serious collectors, Anita Wood, 1412 Alamosa Street, Odessa, TX 79763; and Mary Faria, P.O. Box 32321, San Jose, CA 95152.

Cat Won't "Go" at Rest Stops

Q. On a recent two-day trip with our cat, we were concerned that his "elimination" was infrequent. He only urinated once and then nothing else. We gave him ample time to go at rest stops in the pet areas, but he wouldn't use them. He was pretty calm otherwise, and when we got home his regular bathroom routine resumed immediately. We have another trip planned for the holidays. How do we stop him from "holding it," and can this damage his urinary tract? — Kate and John J., West Hartford, Conn.

A. Not using the bathroom can make your pet more susceptible to infection. However, it's tough to get them to "go" on your schedule, especially during trips.

Even though your cat seemed calm during the car trip, he was probably very anxious. His surroundings changed dramatically, and his usual litter box was missing, replaced by an outdoor area with strange smells.

On long trips, make sure your pet is comfortable in a roomy carrier, with food and water and a favorite toy or two. For cats, carry along a small litter pan with a plastic liner. Fill it with less than an inch of litter at every stop and leave the cat alone with it for a few minutes in a sheltered area (keep him on a leash if he's outside). Dispose of the litter (keeping it inside the liner) in a trash receptacle and refill at the next stop, so he knows it's always available.

Dogs don't often have this problem when traveling, but they may need time to find the perfect spot to go, so be patient and encouraging.

If a pet is very anxious on long trips or won't go, consider getting a mild sedative from the veterinarian to help it roll with the changes.

Almanac Predicts Woolly Winter; Woolly Bears Tell A Different Tale

by Sofia Kosmetatos
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – If almanac weather prognosticator Bill O'Toole is right, the coming winter will be almost as harsh as last year's, with snow into March. But the National Weather Service – and the state's woolly bears – are not so sure.

For the record, the official National Weather Service outlook for the next three months calls for near-normal temperatures and precipitation. Average for the Baltimore-Washington area means high temperatures of 56.3 degrees for November, 46 degrees for December, and 41.2 degrees for January. Average snowfall for the region is 0.6 inches in November, 1.7 inches in December, and 7 inches in January.

But O'Toole, the longtime forecaster for the Hagers-Town Town & Country Almanack, predicts 70 inches of snow this winter in Hagerstown, just 5 inches short of last year's snowfall and almost twice the 38-inch average. He said this winter will probably not break records, but it will come close.

Not so, according to the almanac's preliminary woolly bear analysis. Folklore says people can predict the harshness of the coming season by studying the length of the black bands on the furry black-and-orange caterpillars.

The almanac has a contest to gather woolly bears every October. Almanack business manager Jerry Spessard said he has studied just a small sampling of this year's caterpillars, but so far they are indicating that the first half of winter will be harsh, followed by a milder second half.

The rival Old Farmer's Almanac seems to agree with the woolly bears. The New Hampshire-based almanac predicts the beginning of the season will be the coldest, with Christmas and New Year's temperatures 6 degrees below normal.

The farmer's almanac makes its predictions well in advance of the woolly bears' appearance, but has faith in the forecasting power of that and other natural events, said senior editor Mare-Anne Jarvela.

SUBACUTE REHABILITATION UNIT CELEBRATES – The Subacute Rehabilitation Unit at Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently held a celebration for the 1,000th resident entering the unit: Charles W. Smith. The unit opened in 1997 and is designed for patients of all ages who are too sick to return home or to a traditional nursing home, but not sick enough to remain in the normal hospital setting. Some patients who fit this description are post stroke patients, post surgical patients, cardio respiratory patients, wound care patients, and those needing services such as physical and occupational therapy or diabetic and colostomy instruction. "The unit – which features a comfortable, home-like environment with its own dining area, activity room, and laundry facility – provides patients with the care and education needed to function in a home-like setting upon discharge through a high intensity of nursing and rehabilitative care," explained Debbie Hawk, subacute nurse manager. Pictured seated, left to right, are Smith and Camelia Libel, medical student. Standing are Gregory Was, GCMH vice president of finance, Dr. David Tuel, Hawk, Dr. Margaret Kaiser, and Debbie Strawser, subacute director.

"We do believe in nature and we believe in the signs," Jarvela said.

Signs of a harsh winter ahead include a lot of acorns on the ground and thick skins on onions and corn husks, she said: Squirrels eating – instead of storing – nuts in the fall usually indicates a mild season ahead.

Because the farmer's almanac goes on sale in mid-September, however, forecasters there turn to longer-term meteorological computer models, sun-spot data, and historical trends to predict the weather.

At the National Weather Service, computer models compile the seasonal outlook, said hydrometeorological technician Calvin Meadows. As for the almanacs, he said, "We don't touch that."

Jarvela said the Old Farmer's Almanac predictions are right about 70 percent of the time for winters and 65 percent of the time for summers, but she admitted that "because we're working that far ahead, sometimes we do miss a trend."

O'Toole, a computer science professor who has been predicting weather for the Hagerstown almanac for 35 years, said his forecasts are right about 60 percent of the time. He shrugs off critics – and he has had plenty over the years – who scoff at his methodology, which uses changes in moon phases, sun-spot data, weather patterns like El Niño, and plain-old gut feeling.

"Lighten up," he said. "I don't tell them how to do their job."

Upgraded Voting Machines Will Debut Nov. 4

by Michael Duck
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Five municipal elections Nov. 4 will provide the first test of security improvements to Maryland's new touch-screen voting machines, which critics have called vulnerable to tampering.

City, county, and state administrators say they're confident in the security upgrades and are preparing for elections in Chestertown, Gaithersburg, Rockville, Salisbury, and Takoma Park.

"We want these elections to be successful [and] make the system look good," said David Heller, a project manager for the state elections board.

Security concerns have dogged the machines since the July release of a Johns Hopkins University study that said the system's software was open to attacks from computer hackers and polling place janitors. A subsequent state-ordered review called the voting system "at high risk of compromise" and recommended technological and administrative changes.

City election plans had been on hold pending that study's Sept. 23 release. The state gave the go-ahead to use the machines after fixes by manufacturer Diebold Election Systems.

State legislators called for yet another investigation Oct. 20 to re-examine the two previous reports.

"I don't have any concern," said Brenda Colegrove, Salisbury city clerk, adding she has "all the faith in the world" in county election officials and the new security measures.

Fred Felton, Gaithersburg assistant city manager, said he found it "very reassuring" that the more-secure software was installed. The city is also raising election judges' awareness of potential security threats.

Takoma Park, Rockville, and Gaithersburg voters are already familiar with the machines, since Montgomery and three other counties used them in Maryland's 2002 gubernatorial election. But they're brand new to Chestertown and Salisbury's elections in Kent and Wicomico counties, respectively.

"It'll be a good way for the voters to get their feet wet in preparation for the primary," said Florence Sutton, Kent County election director.

Security won't be a concern in Chestertown, said Town Manager Bill Ingersoll, since only two city council seats are on the ballot and both incumbents are unopposed.

"What could be better than a dress rehearsal like this?" Ingersoll said.

Cities said they've had few calls from constituents questioning the system's security.

"I have not personally gotten any calls about it," said Claire Funkhouser, Rockville clerk. "It may not be the big concern to voters that some people would make us think it is."

Worried voters have called Gaithersburg, Felton said, but usually a five-minute description of security measures puts them at ease.

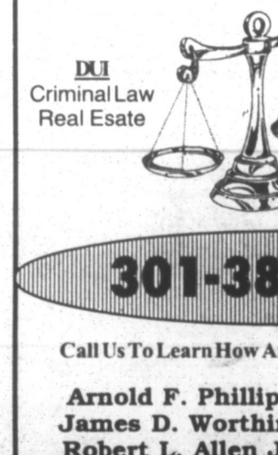
Aberdeen and Bel Air, both in Harford County, will use the county's old optical scan machines, but not out of security concerns, said Rita Dather, county election director. State re-approval of them came too late to train election judges, she said.

Gaithersburg, Rockville, and Takoma Park didn't have any other option, since Montgomery County has already sold its old punch-card machines.

"If the old equipment was still available, I think our Board of Elections would have considered using it," Felton said, because of public perception based on touch-screen machines' bad press.

But Felton stressed he and the board "strongly believe in the system."

Former Oklahoma Resident Joins C&S Contracting



Former Oklahoma resident Jock Harpole has joined the staff of C&S Contracting Inc. as a superintendent. Harpole, who began working in construction as a summer job while still in high school, has more than 25 years of experience.

In his new position with C&S, Harpole is responsible for obtaining permits, overseeing materials, preparing the site, supervising employees, coordinating construction of projects, and delivering the home in a timely manner.

"I like working with my hands and feeling a sense of accomplishment when I see a quality home completed that I helped build," Harpole said.

Bill Cook and Mark Shrout of C&S Contracting said they were excited to have Jock on their team. "Jock's work ethic and motivation are as important as his building experience in the superintendent position," said Cook. "We're lucky to find a person with Jock's credentials," added Shrout.

"I am fortunate to have found a growth-oriented company like C&S to work for, especially in an area as beautiful as Garrett County," said Harpole.

His wife Lesa was the one who suggested moving from Oklahoma to be near her family in Garrett County. Harpole, an outdoorsman who enjoys hunting, fishing, and boating, was reportedly all for the move. When he discovered that extensive building was going on in the county, he said he felt the area was "perfect."

The Harpoles reside in the Oakland area with their two children, Zach, 17, and Alicia, 6.

Students Honored At NMS For Two Character Traits

Each week in homeroom, Northern Middle School teachers take time to introduce and reinforce various character traits to the students. These traits are selected for focus according to the most relevant season in the school's calendar by the administration and guidance department.

Teachers are given resources to assist them in teaching students about the desirable behaviors. Throughout the day they watch for students who are demonstrating the current character trait and acknowledge their behaviors.

Then, periodically, two male students and two female students from each grade are selected to be recognized for demonstrating exemplary behavior in each of the character trait categories. Their exemplary behavior is recognized by awarding a personalized Character Counts Certificate and by having their pictures posted in the main hallway at the school.

During the months of August and September the school focused on "self-discipline" and "self-control." Students learned what the terms meant and heard related thoughts for reflection read by their peers as a part of the morning announcements.

At the end of the month, the teachers selected the students they felt best demonstrated both self-discipline and self-control throughout the previous two months. Among the quality behaviors demonstrated by the winning students were: assuming responsibility for making up assignments, missed due to absence, on their own without prodding from their teachers; being punctual with submitting homework and class work; and unfailingly following school rules.

Grantsville Student Recognized During Honors Reception

The Honors Program at Allegany College of Maryland recently held its annual reception in the Gilpin Room on the Cumberland campus. Grantsville resident Trisha Canfield was among several members of the program honored during the event.

The reception was sponsored by the college president and board of trustees to recognize those students who have excelled academically, and who have accepted the challenge of excellence in academic achievement and the development of leadership skills championed by the ACM Honors Program.

Dr. James D. Stickler, Honors Program director, introduced the students who were present. Each student provided a brief biography and a statement of his or her future education and career objectives. The students received a certificate of participation and an honors lapel pin.

Friends Of REL Hear Feldstein, Elect Officers

The Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library held their annual meeting last Thursday at the Oakland branch. Al Feldstein, award-winning area historian, was the guest speaker. The group also elected officers and directors.

Feldstein has published more than 26 books and videotapes during the past 23 years, covering all of western Maryland, as well as nearby West Virginia. His topics have ranged from historic newspapers and grave sites to floods, postcard albums, coal mining, railroads, and tour guides.

The speaker lives in LaVale with his wife Angela and daughters Natasha and Josinda. He is employed by the Maryland Department of Planning.

Also at the meeting, Kathy Helbig was elected president for a two-year period. Also elected were Chris Enlow, vice president, Pamela Thank, secretary, and Cosette Harman, treasurer. Directors elected were Marjorie Hamill, Gretchen Shaffer, Cathy Ashby, Bud Peed, DeCorsey Bolden, and Brian Boal.

The Friends of Ruth Enlow presented a $3,000 check to the library for the purchase of adult and children's books. They have contributed $9,000 to the library during the 2003 membership year, according a group spokesperson.

The October meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club was held at Yough Glades Elementary School on October 16. We were privileged to have as a guest Deputy Chris Helbig, assisted by Deputy Eric Geroski. Deputy Helbig brought his German shepherd drug dog "Bach" to the meeting. Deputy Helbig demonstrated how they trained their dogs and explained the history and how to care for the dogs.

The members were to bring their raffle tickets and turn them in. Members were reminded of the fall weigh-in dates. They are November 1 from noon to 4 p.m. and November 8 from 8 a.m. to noon.

We also discussed the November meeting. There will be the election of officers at the November meeting. The members also discussed forming a December Planning Committee. We will draw names for Christmas at the November meeting.

The next meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club will be held November 20 at Yough Glades.

We also want to add a special thank-you to Deputy Chris Helbig, Deputy Eric Geroski, and Bach.

Pressley Ridge Camp A "Natural" Piece Of Juvenile Justice Puzzle

by David Foster

A few miles from the northwestern corner of Garrett County, just across the Pennsylvania state line, lies the Pressley Ridge School (PRS) at Ohiopyle, a "therapeutic wilderness camp" where teenage boys come from across that state to be challenged to take responsibility for their past behavior and future choices. Although the boys sent here come from a variety of backgrounds, all have one thing in common – each is a convicted criminal.

PRS's remote, thickly wooded 1,300 acres couldn't be farther in esthetics and in attitudes from the hard streets of the various inner-city environs that most of these boys call "home." Rather than pounding endless pavement and cracked sidewalks, they now trod wooded paths, where they are careful to avoid stepping on a wooly worm instead of crushing empty crack cocaine vials. But it's not the surroundings that mold the desired changes – they surface from within.

"We want our kids to be successful here, and also realize that it's not us or the place that makes them succeed. It's each one of them, individually and as an important part of a group, that fuels the success," said Rick McClintock, PRS at Ohiopyle's director of residential services. "We provide our kids with structure, expectations, and goals, which are often lacking at home, and hold them accountable for meeting those expectations and goals." Those goals are symbolized with camp patches, much like Boy Scout patches; however, in addition to patches for first aid, fishing, and tent construction, the PRS camp awards also include patches for anger management, drug and alcohol awareness", and a successful homestay with their families.

"Kids love predictability, safety, some level of accountability, and knowing that judgment is not strict but there is room for changes," McClintock stated. "The skill of the adult staffer is to help the child come to his own conclusion, to come to grips with his own situation, and come up with his own solution. It's not the work of cutting wood, for example, it's the process of working together as a group to get something positive accomplished. In doing this in our outdoor setting, we're kindred spirits with Outward Bound."

The youths get up together in the morning, plan their day and carry out their activities and schooling together, and dine, bunk, and live side-by-side with each other and the PRS staff seven days a week. They are responsible for maintaining their primitive shelters, cutting firewood for their own heat, and a variety of other projects on and off the wooded campus.

When a member of the group strays from the established goals – quits helping stack firewood, for instance – the work stops and a "huddle-up" is called. Youth and staff gather in a circle to get the individual's reason for his actions, and to provide other points of view for how to proceed to correct inappropriate behavior, actions, or comments.

"Huddle-ups are groups of kids who have worked to put together the schedule for the day, and if they get off that schedule they can call a huddle up to identify and correct themselves," said Jim Natural, the camp's education director. "Kids hold each other accountable, take pride in the group and what the group accomplishes, and the individual's part in it."

McClintock concurred, adding, "We want kids to think about what they are doing, by talking about their experiences when they huddle up. It's a different approach than the forced compliance of a boot camp. You may do well in a boot camp when you have adults yelling in your face, but what happens when you go home and there's no adult who will keep you in line there? Boot camp is appropriate for some kids, but not all.

"We feel we provide an alternative within the juvenile justice system, not a replacement service," Natural remarked. "We are a juvenile justice facility, but we don't treat kids' stays as if they're 'doing time,' we want them to grow and learn through counseling, academic classes, literacy training.... We don't get into past problems in a big way, such as psychoanalysis...we are more into doing things through work and activities, working side-by-side with adults, building relationships, which builds trust in kids that haven't trusted in a long time."

"Our kids' stays are six months to a year, rarely does a participant stay more than a year. The time is determined on their meeting goals and identifying their own behaviors and alternatives to behaviors. In releasing kids, we call it 'graduation', we try to have family or some other adult who holds a stake in a kid's future involved in the reintegration. We also try to have job placement, counseling, and other supports in place. Reintegration is a very intense period for kid and community, and it's where a lot of things can go wrong."

Beyond convictions for burglary, theft, assault, drug dealing or abuse, and more, the boys' rap sheets could also list years of abuse or neglect. "Most of our kids are offenders who themselves have been offended upon," McClintock observed. "The kids today come in thinking they'll be dead by the time they are 20; back when we were kids we thought we were invincible. It's a totally different mindset today. Another big difference is that many of the staff are familiar with the value of a group, stemming from communes of the 1960s and 'group think' of the 1970s. Today's 'Generation X' is more about the individual, 'what's in it for me,' and instant gratification. So an important part of our program is having the kids take ownership in the group process in order to reach positive accomplishments."

Changing attitudes so prevalent in all segments of today's society – not just the inner city – requires a true "re-education." An actual underpinning of the PRS philosophy, "re-ed" is based on a European treatment model that combines education and psychology while also considering living environments and family relationships. Change is made possible by focusing on the strengths of each youth and his family to bring about change in the teen and his interactions, with the most significant factor being the development of trusting relationships with caring, committed adults.

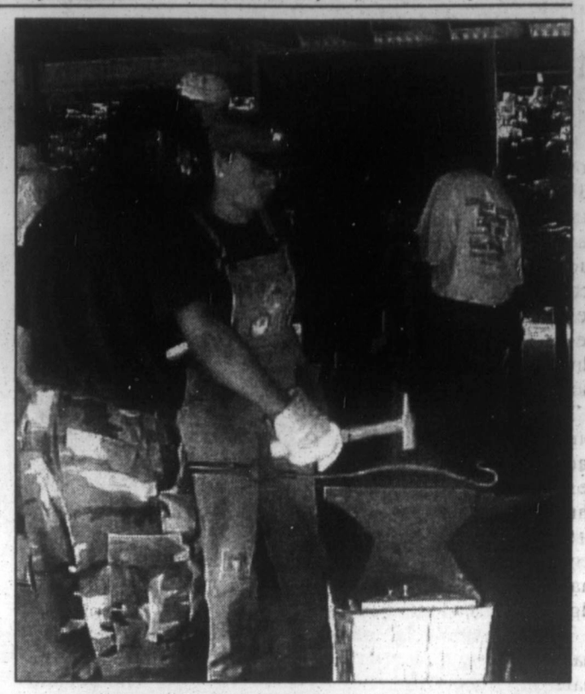
To begin building those relationships requires an enormous commitment of time. The staff lives at the camp when working with the kids, and may stay on campus for several consecutive shifts before taking time to go home. While the school resumés of staffers may list a variety of degrees in psychology, education, social work, and others, along with military or similar service, the common denominator is a desire to help youth overcome their pasts and surmount challenges.

The per diem cost is $160 per child per day, which is funded by government sources and PRS fundraisers. That cost is less expensive than a lockdown or psychiatric care, and more expensive than foster care or community-based programs.

The results of PRS's work seem to bear out its mission. "Our criminal recidivism rate is approximately 20 percent, which is much better than the average juvenile justice detention facility or boot camp," said Natural. "That means 80 percent of our graduates are out in the community 'keeping clean,' whether living with their families and going to mainstream school or holding jobs, paying taxes, and raising families of their own."

Perhaps the best way to sum up the work at the Pressley Ridge School wilderness camp was put into words by 13-year-old Wayne Jones of Lancaster, Pa. The youngster, whose troubles are evidenced by a prior incarceration at a juvenile justice facility, wrote a rap poem titled, "Peace Begins with Me," which ends with the line, "If all the hatred leaves and peace begins with me, maybe life would be grand."

MAKING A DIFFERENCE IN KIDS' LIVES in the western Pennsylvania woods, the Pressley Ridge School at Ohiopyle melds three philosophies into one: Every human being is worthwhile; the woods are the best teacher; and with help from others, the best learning can come from within. This group of four PRS students and three staffers is shown recently taking a break from cutting firewood, a vitally important chore as another long winter prepares to set in. After living in the woods in lean-to structures throughout the summer, the camp's residents moved into small bunkhouses earlier this month, which will be heated by the fruits of their labor. "I like keeping busy cutting wood, because I can see the results when we make a fire and I'm not cold," one boy said. The rap poem by 13-year-old Wayne Jones that appears below provides a glimpse into the world many of these boys come from – a world they will have to return to, and hopefully overcome, with life strategies learned at Pressley Ridge's therapeutic wilderness camp.



FORGING NEW LIVES, the students at the Pressley Ridge Ohiopyle wilderness school in nearby Fayette County, Pa., have the opportunity to take part in a wide range of alternative educational and therapeutic activities. This summer a group of 58 boys ages 11-16 spent a full week getting "hammers-on" instruction in the art and science of blacksmithing from three area smiths who brought portable work stations and forges to the 1,300-acre PRS school. As one youth who learned the value of patience put it, his hammer would "flatten metal if you heat it over and over again and hit it about a million times." A residential treatment facility for court-placed youth, the PRS wilderness school is looking for other activities to incorporate into its curriculum, both on-site and off-site. Pressley Ridge youth have also performed a number of community service projects, including working with handicapped children, rehabilitating fishery areas, and stocking trout streams.

PEACE BEGINS WITH ME
by Wayne Jones, Lancaster, Pa.

I don't think there will ever be peace
if people are just like me
Not carin about the police with a heart full of hatred
Makin fun of the gay kid
Packin guns, thinking they havin fun
But really they just acting dumb
It would be nice if we could go out at night
But we can't without getting a flashlight
People relievin their stress with a crack pipe
Matter of fact with needles makin their faces look ripe
They think them and the boys is tight
But when it comes down to it all they do is fight
Doin what they got to do to make sure they're not under the ground
This world will be endin quick if you keep dependin on your clip, bite your lip
Take the stuff like a man. Sit back and devise a plan.
If all the hatred leaves and peace begins with me
Maybe life would be grand.

A VISITOR TO DENNETT ROAD – Paige is a 6-month-old yellow Lab and future leader dog through the Leader Dogs for the Blind Foundation, located in Rochester, Mich. She has been living with the Dugan family since she was 7 weeks old, and will remain there for about a year. They are to teach her basic commands and social skills. When Paige returns to the Leader Dogs for the Blind Foundation, she will enter eight months of formal training. Upon successful completion of the training phase, she will be matched with a blind person, and together they will be trained for one month. After that she will graduate and live in her new home. It costs about $28,000 per dog for training, all from donations. Each dog is free to the blind person. In the picture above Paige and her current owner, Tamya Dugan, are visiting with a third grade class at Dennett Road Elementary School. They visited several classrooms throughout the day.

Local Student Inducted Into Honor Societies

A Grantsville resident recently had the distinction of being inducted into two honor societies at Allegany College of Maryland. Tina Lee Martin-Selders was one of seven students initiated into ACM's Kappa Theta chapter of the Alpha Sigma Lambda Honor Society, and one of 12 students inducted into the Omicron Pi chapter of the Phi Theta Kappa International Honor Society.

Alpha Sigma Lambda was founded to recognize the academic achievements of nontraditional students. The Kappa Theta Chapter is a component of the honors program at ACM and serves as a support group for the nontraditional students enrolled at the college.

Membership in the society requires a minimum grade point average of 3.5 and the successful completion of 30 credit hours, of which 15 hours must be in the student's major.

Phi Theta Kappa is the international honor society for two-year institutions, which was established in 1918 to recognize the academic accomplishments of students in junior and community colleges.

Membership in Phi Theta Kappa requires a minimum of 12 hours of coursework leading to an associate degree program and a GPA of 3.5.

The new members of the societies were recognized at initiation ceremonies by ACM faculty, staff, and administration.

American Legion Offering E-Cards To Thank Troops

With thousands of troops deployed overseas and thousands more readying for deployment, the American Legion has relaunched a free, easy way to thank them for their service on the eve of Veterans Day, Nov. 11, through electronic greeting cards.

"Veterans and those serving in the military services today need to see that there are friends and family members who are proud of their sacrifices for America," said John Brieden, national commander of the American Legion.

Anyone who has an e-mail account can receive the special electronic greeting cards. The cards may be sent directly to active duty service men and women if their military e-mail addresses are known. Creating the card is quick at the American Legion's web site: legion.org.

"Our troops serving overseas often have access to e-mail, and they look forward to the cards that do not take up a lot of bandwidth," Brieden said.

The American Legion offers e-mail cards representing each military service along with the service song that plays when the card is opened. Each card also provides space to compose a personal message.

This service is being offered for the fifth consecutive year. Cards may be sent now through Nov. 12.

"TREASURE CHEST" BOUTIQUE NOTES ANNIVERSARY – The Treasure Chest, a boutique housed at Garrett County Lighthouse, recently observed its one-year anniversary. Supported entirely by donations from the community and volunteer labor, the Treasure Chest raises funds for Lighthouse programs that serve individuals with mental illness. Many individuals who receive services from Lighthouse have remarkably little income for the bare necessities of life, and the store offers them discounted grooming and personal care items, small gifts, household merchandise, and seasonal specials. "Our volunteers have spent hours gathering merchandise to sell at an easy-on-the-pocket price," said Lighthouse board president Bobby Henderson. "We are committed to keeping the store open for business," added volunteer store manager Loretta Bailie, "and remain appreciative to the many businesses and individuals that have helped us to grow to be a chest full of treasures to individuals with mental illness." Pictured from the left are Lighthouse director Debbie jo Adams-Noroski, Bailie, and Henderson.

WARM THE CHILDREN
Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children
For the seventh year, The Republican is asking for your help.
Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

THE REPUBLICAN with the GWFC Civic Club of Oakland

The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

The Republican staff is pleased to announce that the Civic Club of Oakland has taken Warm the Children under its wing and will be heading up volunteer/shopping coordination in the southern part of the county. Betty Ellington is serving as the chief coordinator, assisted by Bobby Andersen. For the northern part of the county, Lisa Broadwater will continue in her role as the volunteer/shopping coordinator for trips to the LaVale Wal-Mart. Many other functions of the program are being handled by Civic Club members, for which the newspaper staff is very grateful.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Please make your donations before December 1, 2003. Those collected after December 1 will be saved for next year's campaign.

Corn Harvest Nearly Complete

Fall-like temperatures and minimal precipitation last week allowed farmers to move the corn harvest past the three-quarters point and increase their harvest of soybeans. There were 6.4 days suitable for field work for the week ending October 26. Air temperatures were in the 60s during the day and the 30s at night.

Corn is 78 percent harvested, 12 percent below last year and 4 percent below the five-year average. As harvest nears completion, reports continue to indicate yields are better than normal.

Soybeans are 28 percent harvested, 3 percent below last year and 15 percent below the five-year average. Although there are blank spots in some fields with no soybean plants, overall yields are expected to be better than last year.

Sorghum harvest is almost complete with 76 percent harvested, 14 percent above last year and the five-year average. Fourth cutting of other hay is 88 percent harvested and alfalfa hay is 75 percent harvested. Hay supplies are rated 57 percent adequate, 27 percent short, and 16 percent very short.

Planting of small grains is progressing at a rapid pace. Barley is over 80 percent planted, compared with 50 percent last week. Wheat is 60 percent planted, compared with 32 percent last week. Both crops are in good to excellent condition.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Speakers Bureau Offers Service To Civic Clubs

As fall brings forth a bountiful harvest of nutritious, great-tasting foods to Marylanders' dinner tables, some may wonder where and how this array of delicacies is produced. The Maryland Grain Producers Association's (MGPA) Speakers Bureau answers this question and more with a presentation, available free to civic and service organizations statewide.

"When families sit down to their meal at night, they rarely think about the farmers who produce the food," said Debra Spurrier, coordinator for the program. "This colorful presentation brings consumers in touch with the business of agriculture and how it benefits them."

The presentations cover descriptions of day-to-day workings of a farm business, economics, production methods, environmental stewardship, and more. Each is different and personalized by the speaker's own farm experiences.

"Our success in spreading agriculture's message to our consumers through the Speakers Bureau has been phenomenal since its inception in the spring of 2000," said Spurrier. "Our bureau's bank of volunteers is excited to continue this service, speaking to more and more organizations in the communities throughout Maryland."

The MGPA Speakers Bureau consists of a unique collection of volunteers who either farm or are involved in agriculture-related businesses or activities. "All speakers are trained in public speaking and work hard to offer an exciting presentation about Maryland's agriculture industry," Spurrier said.

"Marylanders are becoming farther and farther removed from their farming roots with the birth of each new generation. Many do not understand the importance of this industry to our state's economy or their daily lives," said Byron Grossnickle, a farmer who volunteers as a speaker. "The purpose of the Speakers Bureau is to get people back in touch with Maryland's top economic industry – agriculture – and let them see its local and global effects."

The Speakers Bureau was developed to reach nonprofit, civic, and service organizations with a slide-show focusing on Maryland agriculture. Since February 2001, the group has given presentations to such groups as Rotary, Jaycees, Lions, Ruritan, Optimists, and chambers of commerce.

To take advantage of this free service and reserve a presentation in the local area, persons may contact Debra Spurrier at 301-473-7522.

Correspondent's note: Last Thursday when we awoke to find the ground covered with our first snow, my husband looked out, and across from our house in a big oak tree were three bears, up high looking over the country. They didn't seem to care that winter is coming. After a few minutes they climbed backwards down the tree and went on down through the woods toward the lake.

A TREE-MENDOUS EFFORT TOOK ROOT in Loch Lynn recently as the town, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forestry Service, the Maryland Conservation Corps, and Allegheny Power have teamed up to beautify the community with a major tree planting project. The seed for the effort was planted back in the spring by town councilwoman Carolyn Corley, who consulted with DNR and Allegheny Power to explore options for removing diseased, damaged, and hazardous trees and replacing those and other trees removed in the past. While DNR's Becky Wilson, coordinator of Urban Forestry Programs for the state's western region, conducted an inventory of Loch Lynn's 258 trees, the town entered into a highly competitive grant application process that paid off with a $1,000 award from Allegheny Power and a $4,520 grant through DNR's Urban and Community Forestry Program. The first phase of the new plantings, which will resume next spring and fall, took place recently as shown in the photo above. Some of those who worked putting the 20 dogwood, service, and crab apple trees into the ground are shown below. In the front row, from the left, are Loch Lynn maintenance department employee Dale Moreland, MCC member Mary Bittinger, MCC crew chief Patti Glotfelty, MCC's Gary Bittinger, DNR's Louise Upole, and MCC members Angela Jackson and Erin Shaffer. In the back row are MCC member Toby Upton and Loch Lynn maintenance supervisor Bill Helbig. More trees will be planted next spring and fall, and by time the project concludes approximately 75 new trees will grace Loch Lynn's streets thanks to this team effort. Photos by Becky Wilson.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

You know the old saying that age is supposed to give wisdom. That was proved true last week when a couple of West Virginia alumni ventured over to Morgantown to the big football game between the Mountaineers and highly ranked Virginia Tech. If you watch Pittsburgh news, you know what happened after West Virginia's upset.

Bill Southerly and Kevin Bass learned from their much earlier experience from those long gone college days. So they only watched the students celebrating on the field, then "got out of Dodge" while the getting was good, before the student body really went to town. In Morgantown this sometimes means burning porch couches, etc.

Besides their enthusiasm for West Virginia sports, Bill and Kevin also share the same birthday, November 7, but Kevin was born several years after Bill and me (my birthday is one day before theirs, but Bill and I will both face the ultimate landmark of the big 50 this year). The traditional "over the hill" birthday looms, but like I told a few friends who reached this milestone before us "You don't seem over the hill yet, so neither will we." We're still chasing rainbows in hope of finding a pot of gold on the other side of the hill, just over the top.

I hope my pot of gold will include my November Art Show at the Art Council Gallery on Alder Street in Oakland, on Thursday November 13. The opening reception is between 7 and 9 p.m. Besides great refreshment, the reception also features a fine collection of the most interesting and intelligent people around.

After Bill's, Kevin's, and my birthdays the first week of November, the birthdays keep coming fast and furious in the next couple of weeks around here. Seems like there is always a celebration, with Christmas and Thanksgiving finding their place in there somewhere. I think it makes the shorter days easier to take as we wind our way towards winter.

I didn't include the announcement last week about the Lutheran Braille Workers benefit turkey dinner to be held at Northern High School this Saturday, Nov. 1, between 4:30 and 7 p.m. at the cafeteria. It's always a great meal for a great cause, so be sure you go. They also will have take-out dinners, as well as baked goods and crafts for sale.

It's no longer autumn in Bittinger. I have been thinking of it more as fall after the big winds of last week. The majority of our leaves have gone to ground. Not all of them, but most. As most of our corn fields have been harvested, mostly what remains is that aromatic task of manure spreading.

This morning's dreary rain now appears, sad to say, turning to something like sleet. We already had our first real snow, enough to stick for a couple of hours, but not enough to cause real problems.

Although I have plenty of work to do on my art to get ready for my show, I should go out to do a few errands. But I just can't get inspired to do it, so I crawl back to bed with a good book and will maybe follow the lead of Boo and our cat Tiger and take a nap. Oh well, it didn't work out as well for me as for those mindless pets. I've noticed that if I take a nap in the daytime I still don't escape from daily worries or tasks which need done. They just crowd my dreams. And they are waiting for me anyway when I wake up. It's a pity I don't feel like going out.

The various ministers of the Bittinger area have held special worship services for themselves. They work closely and share their blessings, with each speaking about his/her services, sharing reasons for giving thanks, and sharing love. Besides our own Pastor Pat, Pastor Keith, Glade's pastor Chris Weaver, and Pastor Junkins of Bethesda Brethren have participated. I recently spoke with Mrs. Niner of Bethesda Brethren, and she is working on a history of that church. The congregation first met in her farm's old barn in the early 19th century.

Read. Then Recycle.

DONATING HER HAIR – Natasha Childers, 7, recently donated 12 inches of her hair to Locks of Love, which is a not-for-profit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children under the age of 18 with medical hair loss. These custom-fitted hair prosthetics are provided free of charge or on a sliding scale to children whose families meet the Locks of Love board of directors guidelines. Donors provide the hair, volunteers staff the office, and the manufacturer hand-assembles each piece, which requires approximately four months. According to Natasha's grandmother, knowing that the hair would help some little girl or boy was all the motive she needed for this latest haircut. She is the daughter of Janice Childers and is a second grader at Dennett Road Elementary School. Amy Marple of Amy's Place in Oakland cut Natasha's hair.

Friendship Quilt Project Will Kick Off In Aurora Nov. 8

The Aurora Community Education Outreach Service and the Aurora Area Historical Society will kick off their newest community partnership, the "Friendship Quilt Project," with a discussion and workshop on Saturday, Nov. 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Aurora Community Building. The workshop will be the first in a series bringing together area residents, scholar Fawn Valentine, and artist Dorothy Demboski to collaborate on a multi-part project. Continuing throughout the next several months, the Friendship Quilt Project will include an oral history activity, an exhibition of historical quilts, a catalog, educational programs, and a community quilt/art project. The workshop is open to the public and free of charge.

At the Saturday workshop, quilt historian Valentine, returning for her second visit to Aurora, will be joined by artist/designer Demboski, a Tucker County resident. They will show examples of other projects on which they have worked, discuss their own work, and use the quilts brought in by the workshop participants to examine the social, historical, and aesthetic considerations of friendship quilts. In addition, they will work with the participants to develop a plan for the study of the area's collection and establish working groups to gather related oral histories, document the quilts, and work on the community quilt/art project.

Valentine is a noted expert, scholar, and author of West Virginia Quilts and Quiltmakers: Echoes from the Hills (Ohio University Press, 2000). Her master's thesis, "Scotch Irish Quilts in West Virginia," was published and later presented at the National Museum of American History. Her involvement with West Virginia Heritage Quilt Search resulted in a documentation instrument, statewide quilt registration, and the group's oral history project. She currently teaches through the College of West Virginia's distance learning program, is an adjunct professor at Mountain State University, and serves on the board of directors for the American Quilt Study Group. During her 2001 visit to Aurora, Valentine remarked on the breadth of friendship quilts local residents possessed. Her interest in returning to study these quilts was the impetus for Aurora's Friendship Quilt Project.

Friendship quilts are described as unique expressions incorporating traditional and individual quilt patterns with written and stitched names and sayings. They remain as identifiers of cultural groups, family ties, and lasting friendships. "Whether created for fundraising or as homage to special individuals, friendship quilts provide an opportunity to investigate needlecraft, fabric, design, and artistic interpretation, as well as economic, social, and cultural relationships," stated a program spokesperson.

Valentine will research the original source material and, in collaboration with community residents, using the names on the quilts as their guide, interview the surviving quiltmakers and their descendants. Those interested in participating in the oral history component will be trained by Valentine in the oral history interview process. Within the context of the exhibition's catalog and included with images of the quilts and stories by or about the quiltmakers, Valentine will publish a scholarly essay reflective of her research in the local area.

While Valentine will focus on the historical and social aspects of friendship quilts, Demboski's community quilt/art project will address the design and artistry of friendship quiltmaking. As the designer for Mountain Artisans quilters cooperative for 15 years, she won a Cody award for her clothing and interior designs. She has also worked with the quilters from Cabin Creek Quilts on several projects and is again involved with them in collaboration with the MountainMade Foundation to develop a product line of home furnishings and dolls. She has exhibited her work nationally, was the founder and director of the Art Company of Davis, and is a past board member of the Tucker County Arts Council. She has served as a Peer Assistance Network consultant and is currently a commissioner for the WV Commission on the Arts.

According to the spokesperson, the community quilt/art project may not, in fact, turn out to be a pieced fabric construction; the concept will be collaboratively developed at this workshop and will culminate in the spring of 2004. "With Demboski's far-ranging experiences and the skills of the many quilters in our area, this aspect of the Friendship Quilt Project could take any number of directions as the workshop participants apply the concepts associated with design, quilting, community relationships, creative expression, and history. Depending on the 'product' of the community quilt/art component, either the work created and/or documentation of the process will be a part of the exhibition in August 2004," she said.

Looking at the many examples of friendship quilts will complete a full schedule for the daylong workshop. Participants are asked to bring to the workshop examples of any Friendship Quilts they have available to share with the group and to extend the opportunity for study. Those who know anything about the individuals whose names are noted on the quilts are asked to write down and bring that information.

Though the quilts and quiltmakers studied will be primarily from the Union District of Preston County, the workshop and activities including the community quilt/art project are open to anyone who wishes to participate. To register for the workshop, persons may call Virginia Martin (304-735-3402) and leave a message if necessary. Martin will return calls promptly. Participants should plan to bring a bag lunch; the Aurora CEOS will provide beverages and cookies.

The Friendship Quilt Project was made possible through a partnership with MountainMade Foundation and its support of Demboski's residency and through a grant from the West Virginia Humanities Council in support of Valentine's residency and the upcoming exhibition catalog.

TC Teacher Seeks Families To Host Exchange Students

Tucker County resident and middle school teacher, Kim Falls has been appointed as an area representative with NorthWest Student Exchange (NWSE). Falls is looking for a few homes in Tucker, Grant, and Mineral counties in West Virginia and Garrett County, Md. to host foreign exchange teens during their stay while attending school during the second semester.

NWSE is a nationally known non-profit organization which sponsors international exchange students. The organization has been designated by the Department of State to operate J-1 visa exchanges since 1989, noted NWSE regional administrator Linda Bolinger.

The purpose of the NWSE program is to promote international understanding, cultural awareness, and academic excellence. The program is fully listed with CSIET (Council on Standards for International Educational Travel), which maintains an ongoing collegial support of the National Federation of State High School Associations and the National Association of Secondary School Principals in its work, according to Bolinger.

Falls's responsibilities will include finding and screening host families for foreign exchange students during their five-months in the surrounding areas. Upon the students' arrival, Falls will serve as the liaison for the student, host family, school, and community, as well as assisting the student in adjusting to his new home, school and community.

The club finalized the details of the Haunted Trail on Oct. 11 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. The skits and refreshments were discussed. The Haunted Trail is the main fund-raising activity for the club.

New business items included discussion of Project North Pole, for which club members would donate crayons, coloring books, hats, gloves, and coats for needy families in Preston County. The project was tabled until the November meeting. The club purchased a bottle rocket launcher kit.

Josh Mullenax discussed proper parliamentary procedures for conducting a monthly 4-H meeting. The club members learned the proper way to conduct a meeting, make motions, and conduct votes for proposed club actions.

Following the meeting, club members went to Cathedral Park to tour the paths for the Haunted Trail.

Aurora CEOS

Eight CEOS members attended the Oct. 21 meeting of the Aurora Community Education and Outreach Service, held at the Union Ambulance squad hall. Opening devotions were by Virginia Martin. She followed this with a responsive reading.

In a discussion of "The History of Jackson's Mill," leader Opal Myers had many facts, including that the first 4-H camp was held there in 1921.

Wilda Harsh reported that 175 ribbons were distributed throughout the district communities in observance of October as "Cancer Awareness Month." The committee also gave out 20 packets of information at the Aurora Post Office.

Members were requested to continue recording the volunteer hours until they need to be reported to club and county in August. The club's community project involved the efforts of 15 members throughout the year.

Opal Myers, Ressie Conrad, and Wilda Harsh attended the Fall Conference at Jackson's Mill.

Community Christmas Lighting in cooperation with the Aurora Pioneer 4-H Club, will be held Dec. 7, at the Aurora Community Building. The CEOS will serve refreshments. The CEOS will hold its annual Christmas dinner on Dec. 13 at Union Ambulance squad hall. Members are asked to bring non-perishable food items for the food pantry.

The club has decided to continue with the Salt Box project to benefit Jackson's Mill repair.

Fawn Valentine and Dorothy Dembroske will host a 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. session at the Aurora Community Building on Nov. 8. During this time they want to assist members of the community in learning to do oral or written histories of Friendship quilts. It is planned that a bag lunch be brought by those participating. The club will have a potluck dinner with the guests that evening.

The vice president's feature was an article concerning the benefits of grapefruit in losing weight and protecting from cancer. Ressie Conrad displayed an antique cookie tin owned by her husband's parents. The pig-in-the-poke went to Ressie Conrad.

The next meeting will be Nov. 18 at 1 p.m. in the Union Ambulance squad hall.

Seniors Can Prevent Medication Errors

New studies that reviewed prescription medications taken by senior citizens found many reasons for concern. Some of the concerns relate to inappropriate drug choices by prescribers, excessive dosages, non-compliance with prescribed doses and possible interactions. Such incidents signal the need for better communication between doctors, pharmacists, and the person taking such medications. Research has shown that about half of all medicines taken for chronic health problems such as diabetes, arthritis and high blood pressure are not taken as prescribed. Obviously, some things need to be done to improve the situation.

One of the bests ways to prevent medication errors is to make a list of all drugs commonly used, including over-the-counter products and nutritional supplements. Periodically discuss the list with your pharmacist and bring it to each doctor's visit. A copy of this list should be kept at home and posted so emergency workers can easily find it.

American high school. The students are fully covered with health and medical insurance and provide their own spending money for clothing and other personal expenses.

"Hosting an exchange student can be one of the most rewarding experiences a family can have," said the spokesperson. "Host families provide room and board, and perhaps, most important of all, love and support to a young person during this once-in-a-lifetime experience. NWSE students must maintain no lower than a "C" in each class and are expected to abide by and respect all the program, school and host family rules."

NWSE students are between the ages of 15 and 18 years of age. Students are required to have their own bed, but they may share a bedroom with a host sibling who is 11 years or older.

In addition to providing a home to a foreign exchange student, host families will be exposing their own family to many interesting facts and cultures from all over the world. Families interested in hosting a student will have the opportunity to review the student's application, the student's and natural parents' letter of introduction, a school academic transcript, a health record, and a portfolio of pictures representing one's family and country.

Falls asks the families in the communities to "consider giving your family one of the best gifts of this coming new year" by hosting a student who will be arriving in January. Students are available to host come from Brazil, South Korea, and Germany, and will be arriving at local airports. For more information, persons may call Falls at 304-478-3530 or Bolinger at 823-1718 or -2661.
